Charlevoix may get more help for sheriff

By PEG ORLE

If all goes well, Charlevoix County will soon have another deputy sheriff and two more patrol vehicles.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week indicated its desire to take advantage of funds being allocated under Public Act 416 of 1978 for the Sheriff's Expanded Secondary Road Patrol.

The next step is for the county board to enter into a contractual agreement with the Office of Criminal Justice Programs, which should happen within the next few weeks.

Under terms of the Act, Charlevoix County will receive $38,422 for the year 1979. Comparable funds will also be available in 1980 and 1981.

Appearing before the commissioners, Sheriff George Lasater indicated how he proposes to spend the funds.

One deputy sheriff and one patrol unit will be assigned to the East Jordan area, working out of an office in the East Jordan City Hall building, as provided by the East Jordan City Commission. This officer will reside in the East Jordan area and be responsible for investigations, complaints, etc. in the East Jordan area, which will include the townships of South Arm, Wilson, and parts of Eveline and Marion.

This assignment will free the officers assigned to the main office and the Boyne Falls Sub Station to concentrate their efforts in their assigned areas and will give excellent coverage in the county in that there will be officers assigned to three areas: Charlevoix, Boyne City, and East Jordan.

A four-wheel vehicle will be utilized as a secondary road patrol unit for winter months when it is difficult to respond to calls for help or assistance, such as was experienced last winter.

The officers will be given assignments to conduct selective motor vehicle inspections on the secondary roads.

The sheriff's department will continue its traffic safety program that is now being presented to the drivers education classes in the county. It is hoped that with the 1980 funding, additional equipment can be purchased to expand this program to include the General Motors training program of "Advanced Driver Education", of which Sheriff Lasater is a certified instructor.

Finally, the sheriff's department will continue to provide coverage to county, township, and state parks.

The cost of the Expanded Secondary Road Patrol will be budgeted as follows:

One certified deputy sheriff, including salary and all fringe benefits, $14,474; one standard patrol unit, including vehicle, insurance, gas, general maintenance, radar, light bar, radio, inmate screen, and decals, $11,811; one four-wheel drive patrol unit, including vehicle, insurance, gas and maintenance, light bar, radio, and decals, $10,000.

The above expenditures total $36,787, which would leave a "cushion" of $1,635 from the state allocation of $38,422.

MUCC opposes winter navigation on Great Lakes - Seaway

Immediate termination of the Army Corps of Engineers winter navigation demonstration program on the Great Lakes is being sought by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

Wayne A. Schmidt, MUCC staff ecologist, said that is "the only responsible course MUCC can take as a public interest organization" in view of lack of information on the impact the program might have on the environment.

In a letter to Major General Richard L. Harris, division engineer for the Corps' North Central Division, Schmidt said that MUCC has found the Corps' final environmental statement on the multi-million dollar program to be "inadequate."

"We believe the proposed program is in violation of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 and the Endangered Species Act of 1973," Schmidt said.

The program is aimed at demonstrating the feasibility of year-around shipping on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River. It involves ice-breaking activities and other operations to keep channels and ports open for freighters transporting iron ore, petroleum products, coal and other commodities.

Schmidt said studies conducted in New York State, "raise serious questions about under-ice impacts on fishery resources, on fishery habitat, on vegetation and wildlife in near-shore wetlands areas and a host of other disruptions to the delicate but poorly understood winter ecology of the Great Lakes."

He said MUCC is especially concerned about potentially extensive damage to wildlife, fish and their habitat in the event of spills of oil or hazardous chemicals under the ice in connecting channels of the Great Lakes.

The demonstration program is believed by MUCC to be in violation of the Endangered Species Act "because of unidentified impacts on the endangered northern bald eagle," which winters on the St. Marys River, a connecting waterway of the Great Lakes that would be particularly vulnerable to winter navigation operations, according to Schmidt.

"As with many of the profound environmental insults we have inadvertently made to the Great Lakes system in the past, the impacts of winter navigation are not readily seen by casual observation," Schmidt told Corps officials.

Charlevoix Courier is 94 years old

How old is the Charlevoix Courier?

That is a question we have been asking ourselves lately. According to volume numbers on past Courier issues, it would appear we are heading into our 85th year of existence. But are we?

A check of the records show that the Courier was first published in 1883. The paper was then called the Charlevoix Journal and was edited by King James Strang's first son, Charles.

We have those first issues of the Charlevoix Journal on microfilm. We do not know when the paper's name changed to the Courier. Our records are incomplete, but we do know the paper was called the Charlevoix Courier as far back as 1908. (A fire destroyed our records from 1886-1908.) The 1908 editions are considered Volume 25, which would mean, of course, that the paper was printed each year between 1883 and 1908. We have each year after 1908 on microfilm.

So, taking that into account, we now believe we are 94-years-old. And soon will be 95.

Rehabilitation care seminar here Nov. 30

"Rehabilitation care that begins on day one of illness or injury can mean achieving the fullest degree of rehabilitation possible without the need to be dependent upon the welfare of others," says Helen Millen, R.N., nursing consultant for the Kenny-Michigan Rehabilitation Foundation.

Ms. Millen will demonstrate and discuss the latest techniques of rehabilitation nursing during an all-day workshop seminar Thursday, Nov. 30, at Charlevoix Area Hospital in Charlevoix.

Topics for the day will include: transfer techniques, specific patient disabilities such as stroke and arthritis, activities of daily living, pressure sores and practical methods of preventing systemic deterioration of the bed patient.

Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. A fee of $2 includes lunch. The seminar is open to the public and all interested persons are invited to attend. Co-sponsors are Charlevoix Area Hospital and the Kenny-Michigan Rehabilitation Foundation a United Way of Michigan service.

"Nurses", says Ms. Millen, "can do more than any other medical personnel to prevent patients hospitalized with acute illness or injury from suffering unnecessary muscle deterioration, weakness and even permanent disability.

"When illness or injury keeps a patient from normal activity, it is up to the nurse to prevent the disuse that can limit range of motion and eventually cause disability and painful contractures."

Advance registration may be made through Isabelle Seidel, R.N., Inservice Director, Charlevoix Area Hospital, Lake Shore Dr., Charlevoix.

Corps of Engineers proposes wall for Park Island

The U.S. Corps of Engineers has announced that it is proposing to construct a steel sheet pile wall along approximately 340 feet of the south shoreline of Park Island.

The proposed wall would provide erosion protection to the island and it would reduce the silting of the channel in the Charlevoix Harbor. It would extend approximately 50 feet waterward from the existing shoreline.

Approximately 20,000 tons of clear granular material obtained from a upland source would be used as backfill. It is expected that the construction would be accomplished from a marine floating plant.

Construction is tentatively set for Oct. 1979.

Any person who has an interest which may be affected by this construction may request a public hearing. The request must be submitted in writing to the District Engineer by Dec. 7.

Let's Talk Real Estate

by Jim Thomas

One of the big problems facing our government is that of land use. Most people in the United States still live on five percent of the land, but they are spreading out year by year. In addition, commercial pressures and demand for recreational land give rise to land use issues faster than the government has been able to handle them. What is needed is a land use program that would allow for growth while preserving our natural resources. What is so frustrating, is that while the problem is not new, the solutions are not new either, and are too slow forthcoming.

Kelley files suit against island restaurant owners

Attorney General Frank J. Kelley has filed suit against the owners of two Mackinac Island restaurants contending that they illegally withheld nearly $1,500 from five student employees by such practices as:

--Paying less than the minimum wage and overtime;

--Improperly deducting money from wages; and

--Withholding security deposits for living quarters in which they were rquired to stay while employed.

Kelley filed the suit in cooperation with the Michigan Department of Labor in Ingham Circuit Court, naming as defendants Robert and Patricia Hughey, and the Iron Triangle Company, who do business at little Bob's Restaurant and the Fort Mackinac Tea Room.

The students – listed in Kelley's suit as entitled to an average of almost $300 each – are: Cynthia M. Theut, presently living in Mt. Pleasant; Robin Rae Grubaugh, presently a high school student from St. Johns, Michigan; Elizabeth Ann Hill, now living in Gwinn, Michigan; Julie Kay Bennett, presently a student at Michigan State University; and Leslie Jean Hossach, presently a student at Central Michigan University. Each of the five worked briefly as a summer employee in 1976 or 1977 at one or both of the restaurants operated by the Hugheys.

Kelley asked the court to order the restaurant owners to repay the money to the student employees plus double damages for all except the minor student, and to discontinue any and all of the illegal practices detailed in his suit.

The case has been assigned to Judge Jack W. Warren who has scheduled a hearing on Wednesday, Jan. 10, at 9:30 a.m.

CHIP plans workshops on 'authority'

Authority, who should exercise it, how and when and why, will be part of the focus of the Parenting Workshops, CHIP Counseling Center is holding in Charlevoix on Nov. 29 and Dec. 6th, from 7 to 10 p.m.

The workshop will be in two sessions and is open to anyone in the area. They will be conducted by CHIP Center Counselor Terry Smith, who, as a parent of two adolescents, himself, approaches the subject of parenting with special sensitivity.

"The key to it, I believe, is exercising the proper authority at the proper time.

"Often we may not feel like exercising parental responsibility," Smith acknowledges, "but to give it away, especially to the child, is an error."

He speaks of developing a "Master Plan" for parenting, the goal of which is "training a child for maturity and independence."

And he talks of discipline.

"Love incorporates discipline.

"You don't, through good feelings alone, love a child into adulthood and responsibility.

"We are not talking about oppressive authority, but there cannot be effective parenting without discipline.

"It takes courage to be a parent," the counselor comments.

Those are a few of the ideas which participants in the workshops will discuss.

"It's a big job – parenting– to know what behavior is about, what it means, and then to act appropriately," Smith concedes.

The workshop will open with Smith conducting getting acquainted "exercises" for the participants.

Discussions will follow with more exercises aimed at relaxation and reducing tensions, Smith explains.

"Frequently as parents we mishandle situations because we are so tense. I want to help parents be aware of their tension and how to deal with it."

Another part of the workshop will be a "parent profile." Through questionnaires and discussions participants will be able to see, more clearly, how they behave as parents.

"Our styles of parenting will vary considerably," Smith observes.

Explaining that the workshop will deal also with the stresses of being a parent, Smith says parents "will make brief profiles of a typical week trying to identify stress points and how to eliminate them."

He cited "the morning rush" as a time of typically high stress.

Laughing, Smith says, "We offer no guarantees, but we hope that by the end of the workshop parents will have a way of assessing theirs and their childrens' behavior.

"Parents can learn to take a more rational approach to emotional situations.

"I wish there were a pattern or plan which we could simply apply, but no plan could be devised which would cover all situations, recognizing the uniqueness of each person in a family."

Parents at the workshop will spend considerable time in small groups discussing the dilemma which all parents face – "being a parent 25, 28, hours (some days are longer than others) day to day.

"It's a damn big job."

Anyone interested in attending the workshop, which costs $15 per person or $25 per couple for the two sessions, should call the CHIP Center at 547-6551

Sundew store open to retired service people

The ship's store aboard the U.S Coast Guard Cutter Sundew will be opened to retired servicemen and women residing in the Charlevoix-Petoskey area according to LT. CDR. Warren E. Miller, commanding officer of the ship homeported here.

In making the announcement, CDR. Miller said "Retired service members are entitled to shop at military exchanges and commissaries. In fact, this is considered as part of their retirement compensation. However, retirees residing in this area are offered little benefit, if any, from this provision." He went on to say that, in an effort to assist these veterans, many of them on a fixed income, who would like to take advantage of their exchange shopping privileges, the Sundew's ship's store will be open at scheduled times listed below. All schedules are subject to change brought about by search and rescue and other mission demands.

He explained that items in the store are limited to convenience items such as cigarettes, snack foods and personal items such as shampoo, soap, razor blades and similar items.

However, catalog sales are virtually unlimited with many gift and clothing items offered for sale. Additionally, Sundew participates in the Army Air Force Exchange System catalog sales program further extending the line of merchandise available.

Order blanks and merchandise lists will be available at the quarterdeck on a 24-hour basis for those people who wish to pick one up and make an advance order by mail. In that way, their order will be ready for pick-up during available store hours.

It is our desire to serve all military in the Charlevoix-Petoskey area ... active and retired alike, Mr. Miller said.

The following schedules lists the times and dates that the Sundew ship's store will be open for sales to eligible persons.

In November, 3-4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 11; 6-7 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 15, Thursday, Nov. 16 and Tuesday, Nov. 21; 3-4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 26 and 6-7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 27. In December, the hours and dates 6-7 p.m. Dec. 1, 6 and 11; 3-4 p.m. Dec. 16; 6-7 p.m. Dec. 20 and 3-4 p.m. Dec. 31.

Retired military personnel must have the same identification they would find necessary if utilizing an exchange any place.

CDR. Miller said any suggestions are appreciated. Anyone with questions may call the ship. The telephone number is 547-6766

Where are the wooden shoes?

I've never put much stock in folks who claim to have extra-sensory perception (ESP), but I may have to change my tune after a mystifying experience at Edwards' IGA the other night.

Judy and I walked over to the store after supper to pick up a few items. We took with us our great dust-ball of a dog, Holly, a Dutch Keeshond. The breed is relatively rare and over the years Holly has turned out to be a great conversation starter.

When we arrived at the store, Judy went inside and Holly and I waited by the front door where two young boys were swinging on the slanted foyer posts. As far as I could make out, one of them was playing Tarzan and the other Batman.

Tarzan's eyes grew big when he spotted Holly.

"Hey, will your dog bite?" he asked.

"No," I said stiffly. "She has just had her supper and she doesn't care for anything else."

"What kind of dog is that?" asked Batman, swooping low for a better look.

"Holly's proper name is Holland Rusk," I explained patiently. "She is a Keeshond – that's spelled K-E-E-S-H-O-N-D. The Keeshond is the National dog of Holland."

With that, Batman dropped lightly to the ground next to Holly and proceeded to hug the National Dog of Holland around the neck, which is something you can't do to the Star Spangled Banner of the National Anthem.

Holly returned the greeting with a great deal of licking and pawing, totally out of character for a national symbol. She even cosied up to Tarzan when he stopped to join the fun.

With the ice broken, I decided to try some Keeshond whimsy on the boys by telling them that in Holland Keeshonds usually wear little wooden shoes.

"Usually, I started...but Batman wouldn't let me finish.

"Hey," he interrupted, "if she's the National dog of Holland, where are her little wooden shoes?"

OK, OK, I'll grant that Batman is probably the funniest kid in his class. But how the devil did he know I was going to talk about little wooden shoes?

In Detroit Mayor Coleman Young announces that he has hired his girlfriend as his press agent at a salary of $35,000 plus.

Winning state and national politicians are busy hiring new help and setting up regional offices throughout the state. You'll be hearing more about them in the media in the weeks ahead. I never could figure out why our elected representatives need representatives of their awn to represent them back home, but that's the way things are in this free-and-easy society where dollars are as plentiful as confetti on New Year'a Eve.

Even local governments are going ahead with plans to spend, spend, spend until there isn't any left.

If Tisch had passed and property taxes had been cut in half, it would be a different story, I can guarantee you.

The E.F. Hutton syndrome

This newspaper will be read out loud today by one half of every married couple in the United States.

The other half of every married couple in the United States would like to stuff this newspaper into every opening of their faces.

I call it the E.F. Hutton syndrome, where people assume from the moment they open their mouths to speak that everyone within a 90-mile radius is mesmerized and strains for every word.

To me, reading a newspaper should be as private as dyeing your roots, as privileged as a confessional, as quiet as a dinner table when you ask, "Whose turn is it to do the dishes?"

At our house, my husband's soliloquy usually begins at the breakfast table. "Did you read this story that says you are more likely to catch cold from shaking hands than from kissing?"

"I read it."

"Just listen to this. 'Government financed research by the Virginia School of Medicine indicates that the common route of infection is from the hands to the nose...' "

"I read it."

"...and eyes. It says the virus can survive up to..."

"I told you, I've read it."

"...three hours on the hands once it is transmitted by an intermediary surface such as – where are you going?"

"I do not like to be read to. How would you like it if you were reading Playboy and I was turning the pages?"

"It's not the same thing," he said. "You tend to skim and I want to make sure you get the total impact. I'll bet you raced right over the part about volunteers who were contaminated with rhinovirus..."

"I am a high school graduate," I said evenly, "and I read what interests me. Do you have any idea how frustrating it is ta have someone read the comics to you? It's like listening to a magic act ... on radio."

Minutes passed. Then, "State won by 16 points, but I suppose you want to read the story yourself."

"Why would I read it after you've just told me the scores?"

The listeners of this world can't win. They get a few words read over them when they are baptized, a few more when they get married, a few when they're buried, and every time this newspaper is delivered.

If there's anything worse than having my own column read out loud ta me, I don't know what it is.

Tax bills on the way, here's how you stand

By Peg Ohle

Charlevoix County residents will soon be receiving their 1979 tax bills, some for the entire year and some for just the winter portion.

To show how taxes vary throughout the county, the Courier is printing a township-by-township and city-by-city review of approximate tax costs on a home with a cash value of $40,000 and a state equalized value of $20,000.

The county tax is 4.50 mills, down .2 of a mill from last year, plus an additional voted mill for Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Township mills vary from 1.00 to 10.70, city mills from 12.00 to 22.20, and school mills from 17.10 to 35.63.

It should be noted that tax mills may vary within the individual townships if the township is located in more than one school district.

There is something haunting about 'London Town'

London Town
McCartney-Laine
MPL Communications, Inc.
by arrangement with ATV Music Corp., 1978

London Town
Walking down the sidewalk on a purple afternoon
I was accosted by a barker playing a simple tune upon his flute, toot, toot, toot, toot silver rain was falling down
upon the dirty ground of London Town.
People pass me by on my imaginary street ordinary people it's impossible to meet holding conversations that are always incomplete
well I don't know
Oh where are there places to go someone somewhere has to know
I don't know

Out of work again the actor entertains his wife
with the same old stories of his ordinary life maybe he exaggerates the trouble and the strife
well, I don't know
Oh, where are there places to ga
someone somewhere has to know
Crawling down the pavement on a Sunday afternoon
I was arrested by a rozzer wearing a pink balloon about his foot, toot, toot, toot, toot
Silver rain was falling down upon the dirty ground of London Town
Someone somewhere has to know
(Silver rain was falling down
upon the dirty ground of London Town.)

Before this one slips away off the charts on its way to immortality or oblivion, depending on the impact it made while around, I have to take a closer look at "London Town."

This is the title cut from the L.P. of the same name which peaked sometime last spring. It is the third single from that album to have made the top 40. That's pretty good mileage for Paul McCartney, Wings, and "London Town."

There is something haunting about the song. Maybe we'll be hearing it again done instrumentally by the Boston Pops one day, I wouldn't be a bit surprised. "London Town" is an example of the truly poetic lyric. The imagery is fantastic. Add on the melancholy mood supplied by strings and Paul McCartney's plaintiff solo and the combination is a total portrait in mood.

But more than any other single factor, the theme strikes home. Not many of us have walked around the streets of London, but who hasn't felt melancholy, lonely, or misunderstood? There have certainly been days when I have felt that life is a theater of the absurd. Surely no one can meet me on my level. When I get that low, no one would want to! Call it a dip in biorhythm, call it periodic depression, call it the pits. But whatever you call it, it hits us all now and then. The feeling of searching for that imaginary Someone who will understand our misunderstood motives and dreams is about as common a factor in the fraternity of the human race as the navel.

As for o remedy, there ore several alternatives to giving in to depression. Probably the best one is shaking free of yourself and doing something nice for someone else. Just don't try wine. It makes it worse. And if the mood should take effect on a misty, moisty London-foggy day in Charlevoix – good luck. Remember, you can always give me a call. I'll understand.

What the voters decided at the polls Tuesday

Perhaps stimulated by 11 ballot referendums and highly emotional races for Governor and U.S. Senator, a record number of voters for a non-presidential year turned out for last Tuesday's election. Most observers feel that between 2.7 million and 2.8 million of the state's registered voters turned out, but some are calling the turnout closer to 3 million. Absentee voting throughout the state was also up this year.

I think most voters knew which way they were going to vote on the issues and candidates before they stepped into the voting booth, and they should be congratulated on their concern for others' time by keeping their own time in the booth to a minimum.

Let's take a look at the issues decided by this record number of voters last week.

–They do not want a constitutional convention. By a 75 percent majority, voters were apparently saying that they do not want to spend $10 million for a new constitution.

–They are serious about tax limitation and they do not want a graduated income tax. The Headlee Amendment passed, meaning that taxation will be tied to Michigan's total personal income at between 9 and 9.5 percent. The two more drastic proposals, Tisch and the Voucher Plan, were soundly defeated. I believe that this is an indication that the voters of Michigan are willing to look at tax cuts and tax limitation carefully before any big decisions that could prove catastrophic are made.

–They want early parole prohibited for persons convicted of serious crimes such as murder, armed robbery, kidnapping and rape. This constitutional amendment will take effect 45 days after the election, Dec. 22.

–They want the state to be allowed to keep its money in savings and loan associations.

–They want the legal drinking age in Michigan raised to 21. This will take effect Dec. 22.

–They feel that state troopers, like other public employees, ought to be allowed to bargain collectively with the State of Michigan. This will take effect Dec. 22.

–They want to give judges authority to deny bail bonds for persons accused of murder, treason, rape, armed robbery and kidnapping. It is also up to the judge's discretion whether he chooses to grant bail bonds to persons who have been guilty of two or more serious felony convictions in the last 15 years.

–They want to put a cap on the percentage of gas tax revenues used for general road purposes and change the name of the state highway commission and its make-up. The new commission will be known as the transportation commission. The commission will remain bi-partisan and the Governor will still appoint the commission's director. But he will also have the powers now to appoint the deputy director for urban and public transportation. The new commission will also be comprised of six members instead of four and they will serve three year terms instead of four year terms.

Band congratulated for fine performance

Dear Mr. Van Wieren:

Let me take this opportunity to congratulate you on your fine music system and, in particular, the Charlevoix High School Band for their performance at our October 14th football game.

The band performed in an excellent manner and was warmly received by the attending crowd. I have heard only positive comments on their mature conduct, which is a credit to your school system.

In addition, thank you for your warm reception and accommodation during our recent visit to Charlevoix. Our band personnel enjoyed the performance as well as the opportunity to help such an excellent Charlevoix Band. Mr. Stutzman is providing an excellent educational environment for your students and is a credit to music education.

If I can be of additional assistance, please feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,
Jerrold M. Michaelson

Attend public hearing Monday

Editor:

On Monday, Nov. 20, at 8 p.m. in the City Hall there will be an important public hearing regarding an attempt to rezone some Round Lake property for another condominium.

The Charlevoix Planning Commission after investigation disapproved this request. And I agree with them. If the beautiful, open, free and clean character of the lakeshore is to remain we have to plan now. Once the lakes are walled in it will be too late.

I hope the people of Charlevoix will attend this important hearing and make their feelings known or if they are unable to attend in person to call a council member before Monday night and ask to have their viewpoint on the record.

Heart attack victims wait too long for help

Though the death rate for heart disease has been declining in recent years, there is one fact that has medical authorities nationwide both concerned and frustrated: the average heart attack victim waits a shocking three hours before seeking help.

"This is a real tragedy," said Dr. Richard Antell, Flint internist and president of the Michigan Heart Association, "because before that three hours is up, one out of two heart attack victims is dead.

"Of the 650,000 people expected to die of a heart attack in the U.S. this year, 350,000 will die before reaching a hospital. We believe that perhaps as many as 175,000 could be saved if they took prompt action."

"Why does the average heart attack victim wait so long before seeking help? Primarily, two reasons: first, many people don't know the symptoms of a heart attack; and second, it is common for the person suffering the symptoms to deny the possibility he is having a heart attack.

"Often, when we ask people why they didn't seek help sooner, they say they would have felt foolish going to the hospital for what they thought might be a heart attack, only to be told it was 'only indigestion.'"

Dr. Antell continued, "If you feel an uncomfortable pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the center of your chest (which may spread to your shoulders, neck or arm), and if it lasts for two minutes or more, you could be having a heart attack. Severe pain, dizziness, fainting, sweating, nausea or shortness of breath may also occur. Sharp, stabbing twinges of pain, however, are usually not signals of a heart attack.

"At this point," Dr. Antell went on, "your life may depend on what you do. First, call the emergency medical service in your community immediately. Or, if someone can get you to a hospital faster in any other way, go. Don't refuse to accept the fact that you may be having a heart attack. And don't wait that average three hours. Before those three hours are up, one out of two heart attack victims is dead. Remember, if it isn't a heart attack, it doesn't matter. If it is, nothing matters more."

If you would like more information on the symptoms of heart attack, call any office of the Michigan Heart Association.

Charlevoix passes quota, 125 pints of blood collected

Charlevoix surpassed its quota of 125 pints of blood during the recent visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile, Mrs. David Fowler, chairman of the Bloodmobile, has announced.

A total of 134 pints of blood were donated during the hours the Bloodmobile was conducted at the American Legion post home.

One-hundred and fifty-two prospective donors responded to the call for volunteers. However, it was necessary to defer 18 persons because of illness, medications and similar reasons.

Among the donors were 27 first time donors which is always encouraging Mrs. Folwer said. Among these were Coast Guardsmen who responded well to the request for donors. In fact, they were among the largest single group of donors. However, there were 20 persons who made appointments who did not keep them.

Mrs. Fowler said the clinic was a good one with a steady, even flow of donors throughout the hours the clinic was open. She expressed the committee's appreciation for the fine response from both donors and workers.

Among the 134 donors were two who gave their 47th pint of blood at this clinic. They were the Rev. Austin Regier and Richard Sayward.

Motorists:

Firestone '500' tires are being recalled

Michigan motorists with Firestone "500" steel-belted radial tires which are being recalled can go to dealers for immediate replacement, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Motorists can determine if their tires are affected by the recall simply by checking the serial number of the tires on the inward exterior wall," stated Robert Smith, Auto Club's Emergency Road Service manager.

"Although letters to owners of certain blocks of the '500' tire won't be mailed for at least the next 30 to 60 days, Firestone officlas say free replacement is available now at dealers," said Smith.

Smith advises motorists to make appointments prior to bringing the tires to dealers for replacement. A survey of six Firestone dealers in the Detroit, Grand Rapids and Flint areas shows most have a good supply of replacement tires.

Tires to be recalled following a written settlement with the federal government besides the "500" include private brand Firestone tires similar in construction to the "500," and some Firestone "TPC" tires made to General Motors Corp. specifications.

Three groups of Firestone tires are under immediate recall, with details to be worked out for the other tires.

Tires to be replaced free by Firestone dealers include: radial "500," five ribbed; "500," seven ribbed, and the "TPC."

Only five ribbed "500's" bearing serial numbers ending in the digits 355 through 526, seven ribbed "500s" with serial numbers ending in digits 176 through 355 and "TPC" tires with serial numbers ending in 176 through 355 will be replaced without proof of purchase.

All of the recalled tires, except the five-ribbed model, were manufactured between Sept. 1, 1975, and May 1, 1976. Steel-belted rodials made in the five-rib tread design are included in the recall if they were manufactured before Jan. 1, 1977.

Five and seven ribbed "500s" with serial numbers ending in the digits 095 up to 355 will be replaced without cost to the owner, if proof of purchase on or after Sept. 1, 1975, is provided. In addition, these tires presented for exchange may not be worn at any spot to 2 32nds of an inch or have otherwise failed.

The replacements in most cases will be a Firestone "721" or a "TPC" of current monufacture, mounted and balanced and with valve stems, when required, provided without charge.

Firestone also must notify owners of "500s" made prior to the recall cutoff dates that the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has ruled the tires unsafe. Firestone has agreed to sell replacement tires to owners of those tires at half the retail price.

"The serial number of the tires is on the side nearest the axle. The numbers appear somewhat like a cattle brand and follow the raised letters reading, 'DOT'," Smith explained.

"Persons who may have exchanged the involved tires at their own expense can obtain a recall refund request form through Firestone dealers within the next month.

Private brand tires -- such as "The Grappler" sold by Montgomery Ward, and Shell's Radial "800s" -- also are scheduled for recall, but details haven't been worked out as yet. Refunds of those and other private brand tires will be arranged through the respective retailers and not by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co.

November is REACT month

REACT teams throughout the nation and elsewhere are observing November as REACT month to call attention to the public service rendered by this group of concerned citizens.

In the Charlevoix area Northwestern REACT team No. 3433 has been among the most active.

In August, 1977, Northwestern REACT purchased a CB base unit for the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department for the purpose of monitoring Channel 9, the emergency channel.

Since that time, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department has received 203 emergency-type calls from citizens in Charlevoix county who have needed assistance. In making this report, Sheriff George T. Lasater said "This is another way in which REACT has helped local citizens of the county through their voluntary efforts."

REACT teams have dedicated themselves to moniroing Channel 9 for your emergency or motorist assistance calls. If you need help on the highway, call REACT on your CB a spokesman for the Northwestern REACT advised. Or, if you want to help Northwestern REACT, call 547-9868 for information.

Charlevoix vs. St. Ignace for conference cage title

Basketball fans in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference couldn't have asked for a better ending.

The girls conference cage championship has boiled down to one game: Charlevoix at St. Ignace on Tuesday.

Both teams are 10-1 in conference play. Charlevoix's lone setback was to St. Ignace, 54-46, while St. Ignace stumbled at Boyne City, 54-50.

The Rayders primed up for their showdown with the Saints by beating Rogers City, 64-32, and Cheboygan, 54-49, last week.

Against Rogers City, the Rayders jumped out to an early 18-8 first quarter lead. But Rogers City bounced back and cut the gap to five points, 31-26 at halftime. The third quarter was all Charlevoix, though. The Rayders outscored the Hurons 22-2 to grab a comfortable 53-28 lead going into the final quarter of play.

Melinda Klooster topped all scorers with 31 points. Mel Kerridge and Teresa Noirot each had 10 points.

The Rayders had a closer call against Cheboygan. Charlevoix opened up a 19-6 lead in the first quarter only to see Cheboygan fight back and cut the margin to one, 24-23 at halftime. At the end of three quarters it was 42-38.

Again, Klooster led all scorers with 27 points. She is now nvaraging 22 points a game in conference play.

In junior varsity play, Charlevoix lost to Rogers City, 50-40, and to Cheboygan, 47-26.

Area boat companies to market Santanas

Bill Kenifeck and Craig Tallberg, principals of the Pine River Boat Co., and Dave Irish, president of the Irish Boat Shop, announced the merger of their mutual effort to establish one-design sailboat racing fleets of Santana 525's and 20's on Lake Charlevoix in Northern Michigan.

In the transaction recently consumated between the two companies, Irish Boat has become the local authorized Santana dealer, while the Pine River Boat Company will assist in the marketing of the boats and the promotion and development of the fleets.

Kenifeck, Tallberg, and Irish said they feel strongly about the future of local one-design racing, and agree that the exciting and affordable Santana's, backed up by the extensive facilities and services of the Irish Boat Shops offer the local sailors a great opportunity for first class competition. The Santanas are fast, lightweight, versatile fiberglass racer cruisers which have consistently outperformed larger and more expensive boats in all weather conditions. The boats are designed by Shad Turner and built by W.D. Schock of Santa Ana, California and Bradenton, Florida. Sails are built by most reputable sail lofts including local sail makers, Gary Gleason of Gleason Sails and Jay Hansen of Irish Sails.

Through the efforts of Kenifeck and Tallberg, the Charlevoix fleet of 525's has already been designated Santana 525 National Fleet No. 1, with an estimated 10 boats racing on Lake Charlevoix next spring. Efforts are also underway to gain national fleet status for the Santana 20's.

Anyone interested in more information about the new Santana 525 and 20, or about the local race schedules and class rules should contact Kenifeck, Tallberg, or the Irish Boat Shop in either Charlevoix or Harbor Springs.

The book review group of the Charlevoix Women's Club will hear Margaret Duerr review Ellen Williamson's "When We Went first Class" on Monday, Nov. 20, at 1:30 p.m. at the home of Mildred Campbell, 115 Pine River Lane.

All Charlevoix women interested in hearing about Mrs. Williamson's travels are welcome to attend the book review.

4-H, FFA youth to get advice on selling steer

A workshop for participants in the 4-H, F.F.A. Market Steer project will take place on Monday, Nov. 20 at the first State Bank of Charlevoix.

The meeting which starts at 7:30 p.m. will feature Richard Strong, 4-H youth agent from Traverse City. Strong will speak about "Finding and Maintaining contact with buyers for your steer."

Bob Bellairs, Charlevoix County 4-H program assistant explains, "The Market Steer program has grown tremendously, from 16 steers at the 1976 auction to a projected 50 for 1979. It is most important that our members learn how to find buyers for their steers, and it becomes even more important as the project enrollment increases. Grand Traverse County has had much success with their market projects, and we hope to learn from them."

New members are still welcome as the deadline for steer purchase is Jan. 1, 1979. But Bellairs adds, "This project, like marriage should not be entered into lightly. Kids must realize the time, and costs involved before they decide."

Prospective members are invited to this meeting and are asked to call Bob Bellairs, 582-6232, Krista Crosby, 347-2569 or Gerald Hamilton, 347-6023 for project information.

Local officials, residents discuss concert problems

The Marion Township Board Monday night met informally with several local officials and residents to discuss problems relating to the rock music concerts presented at Castle Farms.

In attendance were Arthur Reibel, owner of Castle Farms; John Michael, township attorney; George Lasater, county sheriff; Dean Mikulski, a health department official; and Scott Beatty, county prosecuting attorney.

The meeting was called primarily to talk over problems stemming from last summer's concerts. Several residents have complained about the traffic problem on M-66, the noise from the concerts, trespassing on private property by those attending the concerts and litter left after the concerts.

No action was taken at the meeting, but the township board did emphasize it would make Reibel adhere to the township's ordinance which "regulates - and controls...outdoor gatherings of persons" in excess of 500 in number.

Among items listed in the ordinance are:

–The sponsor must apply for a license to conduct an outdoor assembly in writing at least 60 days prior to the date of the proposed assembly. The application must include, among other things, a statement of the kind, character and type of proposed assembly and an estimate of the number of people who will attend each concert.

–Each application must be accompanied by an explanation -- to include drawings and diagrams – on how the sponsor plans to provide police and fire protection, food and water, health and sanitation facilities, medical facilities, and services, vehicle access and parking facilities, noise control and abatement and facilities for clean up and waste disposal.

–The sponsor should also employ at his own expense the necessary security personnel. No license shall be issued unless the chief law enforcement in the county in cooperation with the director of State Police is satisfied that such necessary and sufficient security personnel will be provided during the assembly.

–That one toilet shall be provided for every 300 males and one for every 200 females.

–The sponsor shall provide a parking area sufficient to accommodate all motor vehicles.

–Before a license is issued, the sponsor shall obtain public liability insurance with limits of not less than $300,000 and property damage insurance with a limit of not less than $25,000.

–Before being issued a license, the sponsor must obtain,–from a corporate bonding company, a corporate surety bond in the amount of $10,000 to make sure the terms and provisions of the ordinance are complied with.

There was some discussion about trying to limit the number of people attending concerts. Castle Farms can accommodate between 15,000 and 17,000 persons. Sheriff Lasater recommended 7,000 saying his department could handle this size of crowd. Reibel, however, said he needed 15,000.

Reibel also said there were 62 port-a-johns on the premises last summer which more than met the requirements for sanitary facilities.

Following the Board of Appeals meeting, roll call of the Council was again taken with all Council members being present.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the request by Charlevoix Manufacturing Company for an Industrial Development Exemption Certificate. Thomas Pointner, Attorney for Charlevoix Manufacturing, stated that the tax exemption law was passed in 1974 and is available to new or expanding businesses, and was passed to encourage industry in Michigan. The following Resolation was offered and moved for its adoption by Alderman Muma and supported by Alderman Timms.

BOARD OF APPEALS
NOVEMBER 6, 1978

The Board of Appeals convened with Councilmen Muma, Porter, Timms, Plumm, Wood, and Whitley present. Absent: None.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the variances requested by Eugene Steel which would allow him to construct a house at his property on the corner of Eaton Street and Ferry Road. David Moyer, an adjoining property owner, objected to any variances being granted due to the small size of the proposed construction.

Moved by Alderman Porter and supported by Alderman Timms that Gene Steel be granted a 5' variance of the required setback on the South side and a 19' variance of the required setback on the North side at Lot 17 of Eaton's Addition to the City to allow construction of a house. A Public Hearing was held regarding the request presented by Jack Begrow on behalf of Clark Matthews to rezone Mr. Matthews' property, Lots 8 through 12 inclusive of Newman's Addition to the City, from Marine-Commercial to R-4. Mr. Matthews stated that the zoning of this property was changed from R-4 to Marine-Commercial when the new Zoning Ordinance became effective and that he desires to return it to the former zone in order to allow construction of a four unit multiple dwelling complex. Tom Duke, a member of the General Public present, spoke against the proposed development and stated that, in his belief, it would be in the best interest of the City to maintain the Marin-Commercial zone. The Board agreed to table any action for two weeks and to reconvene the Public Hearing on November 20, 1978.

The Board of Appeals adjourned.

CLYDE WARNER is shown in the pictures above using an 'antique' bean thrasher in harvesting this year's bean crop. Warner harvested about 154 bushels of white pea beans which he plans to sell in the spring when, hopefully he says, the prices will go up. Because of the damp weather this year, Warner was unable to harvest the beans for several days. In fact, he says, about 30 bushels were lost due to the wet weather.

Wedding

Kamila Cherry - Timothy Millea

Before an altar decked with yellow and white mums and cedars, Kamila Suzanne Cherry and Timothy Sean Millea repeated their vows to Rev. Joseph A. Lima. The double ring ceremony took place at St. Joseph Church of East Jordan on Oct. 28.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cherry of Rogers Road, East Jordan. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Millea of Plymouth, Ind.

The church pews were marked with bouquets of fall mums and daisies and ribbons as the bride approached the altar on the arm of her father. For her dress she chose a gown of shimmery silver white Qiana with empire bodice, pearled inserts of roses, high collared and a flowing train edged in lace. Her head piece matched her gown and was also made of Qiana and inserts of pears holding it in place. The bridal bouquet was made up of white carnations, yellow roses, white mums and baby breath.

Marcia Cherry of Charlevoix was the maid of honor for her sister's wedding. Carolyn Millea, of Plymouth, Ind., sister of the groom and Jill Will of Charlevoix acted as bridesmaids. All three wore identical dresses of toast satin with empire styled bodice with bouquets consisting of fall mums, beige and wine daisies with yellow roses and baby breath and a spray matching for their hair piece.

Ben Speagher was best man and Ron Conn of Plymouth and California and Larry Leachman were the groomsmen. All wearing brown and beige tuxedos.

Traditional wedding music was provided by Jean Cole of Saginaw.

For her daughters wedding Mrs. Cherry wore a cranberry shade gown. Mrs. Robert Millea, mother of the groom wore a teal blue green gown. Mrs. Joseph Sysel, grandmother of the bride wore an old rose colored gown. Each had corsages of varied mums, yellow roses and baby breath.

At the close of the ceremony a luncheon was served to those from out of town. In the evening a reception was held at the American Legion Post of Charlevoix where the guests danced to the music of the Red Hearts of Petoskey and Indian River.

The traditional wedding cake was made by Mrs. Richard McKinnon with Mrs. Orlando Blair and Mrs. David Pray doing the honors of cutting. The three tiered cake was crowned with a basket of carnations, yellow roses and varied mums and baby breath. Flowers were imbedded in cedar bows for the center pieces on the dinner tables. Mary Beth Cherry of Gaylord, cousin of the bride attended the guest book.

The bride is a 1971 graduate of East Jordan High, attended CMU of Mt. Pleasant and is presently employed by Paperworks System Inc. of Bellingham, Wash. and Hartford, Conn.

The groom is a graduate of Aneille Domini College and Indian University and is employed as assistant manager of Marshall Lumber and Manufacturer, Inc., of Plymouth, Ind.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted at the Weathervane Inn of Charlevoix by the grooms parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Millea.

Guests attending were from Plymouth, Indiana; Indianapolis, Indiana; Toledo, Ohio; Cheasaning; Caro; Ferndale; Gaylord; Detroit. (Photo: Jim Elzinga of Oden Photography, Oden, MI)

Ruth Lugibihl - Steve Tornga

Ruth Lugibihl became the bride of Steven Tornga Nov. 4 in an evening candlelight ceremony at the Bible Baptist Church in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of the Reverend and Mrs. Jim Lugibihl, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Tornga. Both families are from Charlevoix.

Approximately 90 guests witnessed the double-ring rites performed by the bride's father and the Reverend John Beard.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of woven acetate with a crepe finish. Cluny lace trimmed the gown and edges of the train. The gown featured a split neckline, empire waistline, and trumpet sleeves which flared from the elbow. The wide, full skirt extended to the back from the train. The bride's bouquet was of roses and baby's breath, carried on a Bible.

Candy Metzger was the bride's only attendant. Her gown was of pink nylon chiffon, and she carried one long stemmed rose.

Allen Smith served the bridegroom as best man, and Ted Mathews and Brian Smith were ushers.

Music for the ceremony was furnished by Ann Fiedler, who played traditional wedding music, and Nancy Lugibihl, sister of the bride, who sang "Evergreen".

Mrs. Lugibihl chose a light blue floor-length gown for her daughter's wedding, while Mrs. Tornga chose a mid-length melon colored gown.

The bride's parents were assisted by relatives of both families in giving the wedding reception. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents the evening before the wedding, at the Flap Jack Shack in Petoskey.

The newlyweds are at home at 201 Meech Street, Charlevoix.

Apple pie without cheese is like a kiss without a squeeze

By MARLENE CASZATT
Extension Home Economist

Apple pie and cheese is the most common way of serving cheese with dessert in this country. In Europe, however, cheese, crackers and fruit is considered an extremely desirable dessert and usually is the most expensive item on the dessert menu.

Besides Cheddar which goes well with almost any kind of fruit pie or fruit, other cheeses that are readily available go well with fruits. Brick, Gouda, Edam and Emmental Swiss are all good with fresh fruits such as apples, pears and grapes.

It takes about 10 pounds of milk to make a pound of cheese. Therefore, cheese contains most of the nutrients found in milk but in concentrated form. The exact food value differs among varieties.

Both Cheddar and cottage cheese are outstanding sources of protein and good sources of riboflavin. Cheddar is an exceptionally reliable source of calcium, while cottage cheeses is less so because most of the calcium is removed during manufacture. Cottage cheese is lower in caloric content than Cheddar and cream cheese because it contains little butterfat.

Cook cheese, a protein-rich food, at low heat as for all protein foods. High heat or cooking too long causes cheese to become stringy, tough and leathery. It may also cause mixtures of cheese, egg and milk to curdle. If time is at a premium, dice the cheese to speed melting. For casserole toppings, add cheese during the last few minutes of baking.

Cheese should not be kept outside of refrigerator for extended periods. Exposed to air and heat, cheese dries out, "oils off" and might become moldy. Storing in original wrapping, waxed paper, transparant wrap, aluminum foil or plastic bags at 40 degrees F. preserves the original flavor best. If kept too long, a harmless mold may develop. This can be scraped off with no change in flavor to the remaining cheese unless the mold has penetrated deeply into cracks or holes of the cheese.

Cheese that has dried out may be grated and kept in a covered container in the refrigerator. Pasteurized process cheese should be refrigerated after opening to prevent drying and unattractive "oiling off."

Mancelona is turkey capital

There's a good chance that the turkey on your dinner table Thanksgiving day came from Mancelona.

Mancelona is the turkey capital of Northern Michigan. There are six turkey farms in the Mancelona area, four of which are owned by various members of the Biehl family.

Jim Biehl owns one of the larger farms. He has nearly 10,000 turkeys. Almost half, though, will be sold the week of Thanksgiving.

"Thanksgiving is our big time," Biehl said, "and price-wise this is the best year I've seen yet."

For a live turkey, Biehl will get 45 cents a pound. This is considerably higher than 18 years ago when he got 17 cents a pound and lost nearly $1 a bird.

Biehl will butcher about 25 percent of the turkeys he raises. The rest are sold live to processors. He has his own processing plant where workers can clean and bag 500 turkeys a day.

Biehl purchases the birds as day-old poults from a supplier in Ohio. The birds are vaccinated and put on a special diet to improve the flavor and texture of their meat. At eight weeks, the birds are put out on the range and at 20 weeks they are ready to be processed. By this time the Toms will weigh about 26 pounds and the hens about 18 pounds.

Next year Biehl plans to raise 12,000 to 14,000 turkeys. The market is good now, he says. He'll get his new birds in the spring. And by November most will be ready for the dinner table on Thanksgiving.

'Such a kind man'

Eleanor recently attended the installation of Pope John Paul II in Rome.

"He is such a human individual, such a kind man," she said. "It was a moving experience."

Eleanor talked about that experience with Courier reporter Peg Ohle. The story appears on page 3.

Council tables rezoning, seeks compromise

For over an hour Monday night, the Charlevoix Common Council deliberated on whether or not it should rezone property adjacent to the Wharf Condominium on Belvedere Avenue from marine commercial to R-4 (residential) to allow for construction of a four condominium units.

The request had been made by Clark Matthews, owner of the property. Matthews had said the property had been zoned R-4 before the city zoning ordinance had gone into effect and he wanted to have it returned to the R-4 designation.

After listening to a handful of residents discuss the pros and cons of the rezoning, council once again tabled action on the proposal. But there was a slight hitch, or "a happy compromise" as Mayor Sam Supernaw said.

Council asked Matthews to refile his petition for the multiple units, but to leave the zoning at marine commercial. Under marine commercial zoning, Matthews would be able to construct four condominium units, needing only variances on the side yards, according to city officials. Matthews is proposing to erect two buildings containing two units each.

Earlier in the year, Council rejected a proposal for eight condominium units on the site.

There was talk Monday night about bringing the issue to a referendum and letting the voters decide if the property should be rezoned and condominiums erected and also about having the engineering firm, Velican-Lehman look at the proposal and advise city officials about what ramifications the rezoning and subsequent development would have on the area. However, the two suggestions never materialized.

The Charlevoix Planning Commission recommended the rezoning be denied. The commission had said a special committee studied waterfront properties on Round Lake and determined that no more condominiums should be built. The committee said the town is boat oriented and marine use is more valuable.

In other action council

•Agreed to participate in the Michigan Municipal League Compensation Program.

•Agreed to have the city manager hire "proper expertise" to review the city insurance program and make recommendations. The city's insurance policies cost $66,000 yearly according to City Manager Norm Gaffney, which, he says, is "very, very high for a city of this size." Gaffney said the city may be over-insured.

•Agreed to amend the Lake Michigan Project to meet handicapped requirements.

•Approved a lot split, for William Marme on Carpenter Avenue and also approved variances of five feet in the front and eight feet in the rear on one of the lots to allow for a single family dwelling. The city attorney will review the deed to make sure it has been properly drawn up and recorded.

School gets $500 refund

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its regular meeting Monday, appointed a coach for seventh grade boys basketball, accepted a bid for snow removal, received an insurance refund and tabled the bids for a washer for the high school.

David Willson, student teacher from Central Michigan University, was appointed seventh grade boys' basketball coach for the 1978-79 season. The position had been posted for some time with no takers until Willson offered to accept the job.

The bid submitted by Hugh Lambert for snow removal at the schools and those buildings in the district requiring snow removal was accepted. It was one of two bids received. The bid was for $15 an hour using his equipment and $25 an hour if a loader and tractor is required. Vincent Olach, business manager, said that, using past years as a yard stick, the cost would be approximately $2,200 as compared to approximately $3,300 if school equipment and personnel were utilized and a front-end loader leased.

Olach advised the board that a $500 refund had been received from the insurance company since the school district had disposed of its trampoline.

Bids for a washing machine for use at the high school were tabled until Olach can investigate costs on a commercial type washer. A decision will be made at a later meeting.

An easement over school district property requested by Michigan Bell Telephone Co. was refused. The board felt that allowing the telephone company an easement might result in other utilities making the same request. Members felt they should not allow public use of district property. The company had requested an easement along the western boundary of school property from Robinson Street to Carpenter Avenue which would have meant a minimum of 10 feet the length of the property.

Connie Pointner announced that the recently-named Task Force had held its first meeting and named Thomas LaBlance as chairman. They reviewed their goals and will be meeting in the near future.

The board also voted to hold the next regular meeting of the board of education on Dec. 11 which would result in only one meeting in December unless an emergency meeting for some reason is required.

Private land on South Fox Island to be sold

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

At the end of deer hunting season the private land on South Fox Island will be sold to buyers whose identity is a closely guarded secret.

Sitting some 25 miles northwest of Charlevoix, in Lake Michigan, South Fox Island is presently owned by three private shareholders in The South Fox Island Company and the Department of Natural Resources.

The private land holders hold two-thirds (2200 acres) of this wild, forested and sand-duned beached island. The DNR owns the rest of the total of 3500 acres.

The three private owners, Stanley Riley, Irwin Gale and Thomas Stevens of Hart, Mich., purchased South Fox Island approximately four years ago from the estate of the Lynn Dillon family, for $375,000.

The island has been on the real estate market for $1.2 million dollars, according to Stevens.

"But," Stevens said in a telephone interview, "We are getting something less."

During deer hunting season South Fox Island has attracted hunters from all over Michigan, because 171 special permits are issued by the DNR for deer hunting there. These special permits still allow hunters to take a deer on the mainland as well.

Hunters have the option of hunting either on the state land, taking all their own equipment – tents to food to hunting gear – or at a hunting camp on the private land.

Hunters on the private land pay up to $325 for five days of hunting. They stay in bunk houses and all their food is provided by caretaker Keith Chappel and his wife Madelaine, according to Mrs. Chappel.

In either case, the only ways of getting to South Fox Island are by mail boat or by private plane. Hunters who want to hunt on the DNR land must pay a $50 transportation fee to the private owners to be driven from the airstrip to the private lands. That is in addition to their airfare.

This year the bow and arrow season went as scheduled and accommodations were set for the 71 firearms hunters who were scheduled to arrive Nov. 15.

However on Tuesday Nov. 7th Riley flew to the island and informed Chappel that the island was sold, that the hunts would have to be cancelled, and that he, Chappel, should prepare to leave the island.

Riley told Chappel "Unnamed buyers had purchased the private two-thirds of the island," and there would be no more hunting, Mrs. Chappel said.

Mrs. Chappel said that the new owners were apparently concerned about problems of liability involved with the hunt.

Keith Chappel returned to the Traverse City area and began lobbying for the hunters. He called the buyer's agent, a Detroit lawyer, and explained that 71 firearms hunters and 15 muzzle loading hunters had long term reservations and had planned their vacations around the hunt.

Chappel also inquired who would police the hunters on state land, protecting the private buildings.

Chappel had the buyer's agent speak to DNR Game management officials who, according to Mrs. Chappel, responded with a lesson in game management.

By Friday Nov. 10, everything was back to normal – the hunt was reinstated.

Riley, reached by phone, explained that the new purchasers had decided to not close the deal until after the hunting season.

He said he had no idea who the new owners might be, and he said the agent, too, said he did not know for whom he was working.

However, Riley said that he tended to believe the rumors that the new owners of South Fox Island are from The Netherlands.

South Fox Island has been a favorite destination of Charlevoix sailors who anchor in its southwestern bay and climb the sand dunes.

Riley said he hoped the new owners would maintain the island pretty much as it has been – undeveloped and relatively open – but he seriously doubts that deer hunting will continue on the private land as it has in the past.

"This is probably the last year of the hunts," Riley said.

Local development commissions can do a lot to improve the local economy. They are essential in luring new businesses and industries to a community. They can also be active in helping the community plan for new growth, for both business and residential areas. The function of a commission is to discover unfilled local economic potentialities and to bring them to the attention of entrepreneurs and business managers. Bringing in new business generally means an increase in value of all property in the vicinity. The catch may be the need to construct new municipal supports, i.e., sewers, roads, schools, extra fire and police protection, etc.

The staff of professional real estate personnel at THOMAS REAL ESTATE 100 Pine River Lane, 547 4494 offer prompt, personalized and dependable service in all phases of real estate. Whether you are buying or selling property we use our knowledge and experience to make sure you receive maximum market value. Call us at 547 4494 when you need any real estate advice. Test results to be sent home on Monday

Results of assessment tests administered earlier in the school year were sent home with students on Monday, according to Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren.

The assessment tests were given in September to all public school fourth, seventh and 10th grade students in the state to measure their basic skills in reading and mathematics.

VanWieren added that test results help teachers, counselors, principals and district personnel examine the status of basic skills in education on a student, classroom, building and district level. If there are any weak areas in the instruction program in reading and mathematics, they can be corrected.

VanWieren, in making the announcement, went on to say "It is a pleasure to tell you that once again Charlevoix students scored well on the state tests".

If parents have questions or concerns regarding their students' test results, they are free to contact the principals or counselors for further interpretation.

Horton Bay woman attends pope's installation

By PEG OHLE

The story has been told in large city newspapers all over the country – the story of local people who went to Rome for the installation of Cardinal Karol Wojtyla of Krakow, Poland as Pope John Paul II.

Now the Courier tells the story of a Charlevoix County woman who went to Rome for the installation of an old friend as Pope John Paul II.

Eleanor Sadowski of Horton Bay first met and visited with Cardinal Wojtyla in 1968 while on a trip to Poland with her mother and a group of other friends. It was at this time that he autographed one of his books for her and she took a picture of him doing so. This picture appears elsewhere in the Courier.

Miss Sadowski also met Cardinal Wojtyla in 1972 while on another trip to Poland. On this trip she had occasion to travel through the rural countryside outside of Krakow near Wadowice, where Wojtyla was born. She was so struck by the similarity of the landscape to that of northern Michigan that she took a picture of the rolling hills. This picture also appears in the Courier.

"Now I know why so many Polish people settled in northern Michigan," Miss Sadowski mused, "they feel at home here."

It is not surprising, then, that when Cardinal Wojtyla was elected pope, Miss Sadowski, her mother, and a group of friends from the Polish seminary in Orchard Lake decided to go to the installation.

Miss Sadowski says it was a moving experience. Through connections in Poland and in Rome, she was able to attend not only the installatiion, but two audiences of the new pope, one for the 6,000 Polish people who attended the installation, and the pope's first general audience.

"The installation was a moving experience," Miss Sadowski recalls. " "I sat in the third row and could see everything clearly. I so wanted to take a picture, but when I lifted the camera to focus it, my hands froze. I couldn't push the shutter."

At one of the audiences, Miss Sadowski was also up front, close enough to move forward and touch the new pope's fingertips.

"He is such a human individual, such a kind man," she says in describing the pontiff.

Miss Sadowski teaches social studies in the East Jordan Middle School, but is on a leave of absence this year to study middle school systems in other parts of the country.

"I am so thankful to the board of education for giving me a leave this year," she says. "I didn't know when I asked for it that I would be traveling to Rome, but the opportunity came and I thoroughly enjoyed it."

The teacher-traveler has been teaching in East Jordan for eight years. Before that she taught in the Detroit area and in Ecuador and Japan. She also served with the Peace Corps in Ghana.

Miss Sadowski knows her way around Washington, too. She grew up there while her father served over 20 years as a congressman representing the Hamtramack district of Detroit. A graduate of the University of Detroit, she also holds a master's degree in education from the University of Michigan.

So far this year, Miss Sadowski has spent considerable time at the University of Maryland getting information about Maryland middle schools and visiting with school authorities throughout the state. She will soon leave for California to further her studies, and, after making several other trips, will return to her teaching duties in East Jordan next September.

Eleanor Sadowski recently returned from Rome where she attended the installation of Pope John Paul II.

The start of deer season? Some would rather sail

By TOM DAMMANN

As has been the custom for the past seven years, a group of dedicated sailors participated in the annual "Deer Opening Season Sail from Harbor Springs to Charlevoix for Lunch and Back", on Wednesday.

But something new was added when two of the new Charlevoix based Santana 525 cruising - racing sloops set out from Round Lake early in the morning to rendezvous with three Harbor Springs yachts and escort them back to town.

Because of the light winds that prevailed, the 19 sailors were about an hour late for the sumptuous luncheon prepared for them at the Weathervane Inn.

After lunch the Harbor Springs group headed for home while the Charlevoix skippers took their boats RIBIT and SLY – to the yard to be hauled out for winter.

Sailing on RIBIT were its skipper Julie McGraw, Craig Tallberg, and Charlevoix Yacht Club Commodore William D. Kennifeck. On SLY were its owners, Dr. and Mrs. David J. Strawbridge and Thomas Collings.

The two boards are members of the new Lake Charlevoix Santana 525 fleet, recently designated the nation's Number 1 fleet of the new design. It is understood the RIBIT will be sailed by women only in next summer's race series.

The three Harbor Springs yachts were TIGGER, owned and skippered by Dr. John Hall; MERRY HELL, owned and skippered by Jim Dilworth, sailor, ski slope designer and General Manager of Nub's Nob; and DAISEY, owned and skippered by Steven Orr.

The annual event is the brainchild of David Irish, marina owner, and Dilworth, who is 1971 found themselves without workers on the Opening Day of Deer Season and decided that they would take the day off and do what they like best -- sail.

"We have made the round trip five out of seven times," Dilworth said. "Four years ago we had a 48 knot gale, so we turned back and ate lunch at Harbor Springs. Another time we didn't have any wind at all.

Deer season also brings out the sailors.

Motorists can lower holiday death count by cutting drinking

Michigan motorists stressing common sense driving and moderate drinking can help make the Thanksgiving holiday one of the safest driving periods of 1978 instead of the deadly weekend it has been the last two years, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

While motorists travel 50 percent fewer miles over the Thanksgiving weekend than on the three major summer holidays, the traditional short trips to family and friends provide maximum opportunity -and temptation for drivers to overindulge in alcohol.

"Sixty-two persons died on state roads during the 1976-77 Thanksgiving periods, compared with an average of 52 for each of the three summer holidays during that same two-year period," stated Arthur Gibson, Auto Club's Safety and Traffic manager.

"Alcohol was a known or suspected favor in about 56 percent of the fatal traffic accidents over the last two Thanksgiving periods," Gibson said. "More than two thirds of the fatal mishaps occurred within 25 miles of the drivers' homes while nearly 75 percent happened in darkness."

This thanksgiving, motorists are expected to travel 364 million miles in Michigan during the 102-hour weekend as compared with an average 728 million miles for the Memorial Day, Fouth of July and Labor Day holidays. The Thanksgiving holiday runs from 6 p.m. Wednesday (Nov. 22) to midnight Sunday (Nov. 26).

Auto Club suggests that holiday travelers and their hosts follow a few simple rules to make this a safe Thanksgiving holiday:

- Restrict one-day, round-trip travel to no more than 200 miles. Allow a minimum of four hours' driving time to travel 200 miles by freeway and five to six hours if traveling on other roads.
- Plan trips to begin and end in daylight.
- If driving, remember the "one for one" rule. More than one ounce of alcohol consumed within an hour doubles a driver's chances of having a fatal traffic accident.
- Drive with extra care near home.

Motorists driving through downtown Detroit or near Pontiac should plan trips to avoid parade and football traffic.

Approximately 500,000 spectators are expected to line Woodward Avenue to watch the J.L. Hudson Company's annual Detroit Thanksgiving Day parade, which starts at 9:30 a.m. at Woodward and Putnam. The parade will last 45 minutes.

More than 70,000 persons are anticipated for the 12:30 p.m. Thanksgiving Day football game between the Detroit Lions and Denver Broncos at the Pontiac Silverdome. Motorists not attending the game should avoid stadium-area surface streets and the I-75 freeway near Pontiac one hour before and after the contest, which should end at 3:30 p.m.

If planning a trip by air, many carriers reports flights filled at peak travel times, especially Nov. 21-22 and Nov. 26-27. Most popular destinations include warm-weather cities, especially those in Florida, California and Arizona, as well as Las Vegas, Washington, Boston and Toronto. Deluxe motel or hotel accommodations in most of those destinations will be difficult to find.

Eight members of the Charlevoix High School Symphony Band have qualified to participate in the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association District II Honors Band Director – Gary Stutzman announced.

As members of the 100 piece Honors Band, they will present a concert at Corson Auditorium at the National Arts Academy at Interlochen on Sunday, Dec. 3, under the direction of H. Robert Reynolds, director of bands at the University of Michigan.

The young instrumentalists are William Horton who plays the cornet; Jean Lenhart and Kristin Fiedler, the trumpet; Laura Dziedzic and Patti Cook, the flute; Darlene Smalley and Mary Horton, the oboe and Kathy Cook, the alto sax.

Can't get excited about snow

All weekend I tried to recapture the excitement of the season's first snow so I could share in my children's general dilirium.

But it didn't work.

We knew snow was bound to happen any minute. The temperature was right and you just know those heavy ominous clouds had something in them.

Danny and I walked to the store Saturday morning and a few granules of frozen rain bounced off our nylon jackets. We talked about horses and cutters and bobsleds and how things used to be in the winter.

But by dusk the ground was still as brown as apple crisp.

The yard was still bare Sunday morning. But there were flecks of snow in the air. Gradually, very gradually, they grew thicker and thicker so that you could actually see them from inside the house if you focused your eyes on one spot.

They collected nicely in the palms of dead leaves and between rows of dead bean plants in the garden.

"Is it going to stay?" the kids asked.

"It could stay until April or it could be gone tomorrow," I answered trying to sound wise. But I'm afraid I only sounded like a fence-straddler.

I was surprised that the kids didn't want to go outside immediately. Instead they congregated in the living room next to the stove to read the paper, play games and occasionally feast their eyes on the rapidly changing landscape outside the window.

Actually, I think they were afraid they would damage - or maybe destroy - - the snow if they went outside and ran through it too soon. By mid-afternoon, however, they could take it no longer. Out came the snow jackets, the boots, the woolen caps and mittens. Winter had officially started.

Danny was the first one back in the house with a bump on his head. They had been running and sliding on the sidewalk when Allison stopped short. Danny plowed into her and down he went. Jenny came in with him to apply an ice cube to his wound.

Before long every chair in the vicinity of the stove was festooned with wet jackets while mittens steamed on the hob.

But somehow the general excitement of the first snow escaped me. I could share my children's enthusiasm only by dredging the depths of memory.

Today winter means outrageous heating bills that I can't afford to pay.

It means getting up in the morning to a clammy house because, for economy's sake, I am forced to keep the thermostat below the comfort level.

It means driving to work on banana peel roads in the morning and driving home from work on banana peel roads in the evening.

It means leaving home before the sun rises and returning home after the sun has set.

In my book, there are nicer seasons than winter. One of them is called Florida.

CHARLEVOIX bids goodbye this week to one of her most talented citizens – Mrs. Earl (Irene) Young who many years ago executed that famous pictorial map of northwestern Michigan that never fails to intrigue visitors to our area.

Mrs. Young also had won considerable recognition for her skillfully executed watercolors.

She was the widow of the late Earl Young whose whimsical architectural creations included many of the stone homes in Boulder Park and the Weathervane Inn and Terrace.

The Youngs – husband and wife – both contributed more than their share to Charlevoix's artistic development.

Easier said than done

I usually don't spend much time watching television, but Sunday night I did watch "All in the Family." And I wonder if Ben Skora did.

For those of you who didn't watch it, Edith, after an unsuccessful attempt at obtaining a loan, decided Archie owed her money for staying home and doing housework. Afterall, housework was a great restriction on her time and it prohibited her from holding a fulltime job.

Well, if Skora has his way, the Edith Bunker's of America will not have to worry about the drudgery of housework.

Skora, the National Geographic Society reports, is creating a robot that can "vacuum the carpet, take out the trash, bring in the mail...and even wash the windows."

Now, before you get all excited, such a robot is still years away. Skora thinks it may be 50 years before one is perfected. There is still much to be done.

"Take the task of clearing the table and washing the dishes," said John McCarthy, director of Stanford University's Artificial Intelligence Laboratory. "The robot will have to be able to discriminate between trash and dishes that should be washed and, meantime, not trip over the dog or baby on the floor on its way to the dishwasher."

According to Joseph Engelberger, president of Unimation, Inc., which makes industrial robots, a domestic robot would probably need a sophisticated television camera to see and would have to have a sense of touch to do housework. It could, he said, be programmed for some superhuman tasks, such as acting as a glorified smoke detector that would alert a family of a fire and then fight it.

There could be one problem, though. Skora says it's costing him $750,000 to build this robot.

It has not been our policy in the past to print poetry, although we have been somewhat more lenient lately. Well, we are being lenient again.

The following poem was submitted to us by Jan McKay. It was written by Jan's daughter, Lynn, a sixth grader at the Charlevoix Middle School.

Tom Turkey

I'm Tom Turkey and I'm a good pet, and I don't complain when I get all wet;
I think I'm beautiful and you;ll think the same;
So please don't let Mr. Jones use me for game;'
Before Thanksgiving dinner,
I'll try to get thinner;
"If I do that," Tom Turkey said,
"I'll never fall dead!!"
Tom worked and worked on his hard plan, but it never worked, and he was soon in Mr. Jones' hand;
He was on a silver platter,
even though he didn't look any fatter;
Tom was eaten with ease,
and with cranberries, pickles, and all kinds of peas;

But them Jones' they never got full,
they went up and ate their best bull;
So, on Thanksgiving Day you'll never get thinner,
If you have Tom Turkey and goodies for dinner.

Happy Thanksgiving, everyone.

Who gets the benefits? Not Millard Beasley

Millard R. Beasley is mad, but he can't talk about it. He can't talk at all. Because of cancer, he just had his vocal cords and voice box removed.

Beasley, 60, used to be a free-lance salesman. A salesman who can't talk can't sell much. His 58-year-old wife has a serious back condition and several other debilitating ailments. She can't work, either.

The Beasleys live in a small apartment in the inner city. Their most valuable possession is a 1970 Cougar. Their only income is a $258-per-month pension from the Veterans Administration. That's around $65 a week to pay the rent and utilities and maybe eat once in a while and buy a new pair of socks.

These have been tough days, since Millard Beasley's operation. He thought maybe the Social Services office might extend some aid. Perhaps help with the rent and utilities? It would be a chance to get back some of the tax money he has been paying all hs life.

The answer was no. Social Services told Beasley he doesn't qualify for help at this time.

"I did, however, get the consolation that if I became delinquent in my electric or gas bill, to the point where service would be discontinued, Social Services would declare me an emergency and give me some help," Beasley said.

That's great logic if you don't believe the cliche about an ounce of prevention. Do people needing food have to prove it by starving to death at the feet of some bureaucrat in the welfare office?

"Must I join the Police Department to become eligible (for help)?" Beasley asked.

You might think that's a cheap shot, but Beasley should be excused. He'd just read about the 27 Detroit police officers who got their jobs back despite being indicted for welfare fraud.

The Board of Police Commissioners decided the 27 indictees didn't really mean to steal taxpayers' money. some of them collected illegal payments simply because they forgot to tell the welfare office they found jobs. And initial reports exaggerated the amount of money allegedly stolen, the commissioners said.

You, as well as Millard Beasley, might find the police commissioner's reasoning perplexing. It's a felony to fail to report an employment change that affects welfare benefits. That's why the 27 were suspended in the first place. So how can the fact that they failed to report their employment be used as an excuse for giving them their jobs back? You might as well grant a bank robber lenience because he failed to remain honest.

His reasoning might not be perfect, but Millard Beasley can hardly be blamed for getting mad when he compares his success at the welfare office to that enjoyed by the indicted police officers.

"Just who the hell is supposed to get benefits from the enormous sum of money that the taxpayers provide each year?" Beasley asked.

Who will answer him? Beasley sent copies of his complaining letter to a long list of government officials. One of them is state Sen. David Holmes of Detroit. He should be a big help.

Sen. Holmes keeps a watchdog eye on how taxpayers' money is spent so he can make sure much of it is spent on him. The Free Press recently reported the Holmes is the Senate's expense-account champion, by far. He spends 6 times more than the average senator on travel, food and lodging. He recently billed the public for 3 days in a hotel suite that cost $140 per day. That's more than twice the weekly income of Millard Beasley.

All intelligent people agree that this state and nation have needed welfare reform for many years. Lazy crooks are getting too much of the money that should go to people with real need. But nothing is ever done about it.

Who should Millard Beasley yell at, if he could yell? He might start with the Legislature, where too many lawmakers, like Sen. Holmes, are mostly interested in their own welfare.

Frictions arise over role

Dear Mom,

Like every other mother and daughter in the world, I realize that we've had our share of trouble in seeing things eye-to-eye over the years, but I always thought it had something to do with me being taller than you.

After reading "My Mother, Myself," Nancy Friday's manual for daughters in their search for personal identity, I realize that I was wrong. There can be ever so many more interesting reasons to account for our periodic differences of opinion. I just can't wait to tell you all about them?!

Okay Mom, come clean. Did you always love me? I mean always? Like did you love me when I spit peas and mashed potatoes in your eye? Did you love me when I made you wait up until 3:00 A.M. wondering what I was doing in the back seat of Jack Spernoga's Chevy? Nancy Friday says that if you were honest, you didn't love me then. Let's face it. It was no fun refilling your hot water bottle three times and tripping over the dog's gate, then shielding me from Dad's wrath in the morning.

And what about the "good fairy story?" – the one that said, "I wonder if the good fairy will come and make all those dirty dishes disappear while I'm taking my nap." Really, Mom. Didn't you know the consequences of love and guilt?

I loved the chapter on separation, "A Time To Let Go." It really helped me feel better about how obstinate I used to get about not getting my hair cut or wearing jeans to church, or riding from the Stadium to the Terminal Tower with baseball players after the Indian's games. Nancy Friday says that all the family photos of her mother show the same expression on her face: CONCERN. Just because I wanted to leave high school and become a missionary to Outer Angolia was no reason to become unglued, now was it, Mom? It's all so reasonable it you look at it from a mature viewpoint. All daughters must take progressive steps towards cutting the cord.

And the body, Mom. If only Sigmund Freud had been our neighbor instead of Earl Saunders, how easy all this gaining womanliness and losing virginity question might have been. Instead, and I don't blame you a bit, you still blush when you think of me reading Erica Jong. Listen, Mom. There's something I want you to know. Rich wants you to know too. In fact the four kids want you to know. I'm not a virgin, Mom. There, I've said it.

Let's face it. We are totally different women. You are short, I am tall. You wear Naturalizer shoes and I wear Dr. Scholl's Exercisers. But, and it took Nancy Friday an entire book to admit it, the differences are not to be found in our natures. Actually, as women, we are probably very similar. Yes, it's true. I like to bake bread. I like to get dressed up and go out to dinner. I like music and art. So do you, Mom! Isn't it fantastic? You're a fantastic person. So am I!

The frictions only arise over the ROLE. Why did you have to go and spoil it all by being my mother? If you hadn't had to spend so much time washing my socks and worrying over my hair-do's, we could probably have written a great book together.

Listen, I've got an idea. It's pretty clear, after reading this book, that you can't shake your role and I can't shake mine. It's kind of like predestination. But we can compromise. Next time you come for a visit, we'll bake the bread, then we'll get dressed and go out to dinner, and then we'll finish off the evening with a good show. Just so we're back early. I always wash the girl's socks and do their hair on Saturday nights. Also, of course, I don't want them to suffer from separation neurosis while we're out. I'm trying to be a good mother, and I'm concerned about them. I'm sure you understand.

Love as always,
Anne

Erma Bombeck

You don't love me!

Few columns over the past 14 years have gotten the reader response as the one called, "You don't love me!" – that old chestnut kids lay on you when you say "no."

It struck a chord with millions of parents who take their jobs seriously – parents who resist the luxury of laying back saying "Yes," when they should have the guts to say "No."

We've all been there. The slammed doors, eyes brimming with tears. The rejection. The threats. The secret phone calls. The hysterics. The nights when sleep would not come. The mornings of despair when you ached for just one sign of understanding.

Why do you do it? I've asked myself the same question. Came up with a few wonderful phrases like self-respect, integrity. But mostly, I guess, it's producing a human being who knows that love is caring.

What prompted this? A letter from Joyce Winchell of Waukesha, Wis., who was cleaning out a drawer recently and came across a parody on "You don't love me," written by her daughter, Susan, a student in St. Cloud, Minn., to her mother. It's a parody we'd all be proud to find.

"I loved you enough to forgive you when you punished me for something I didn't do.

"I loved you enough to go to church each Sunday because I would have disappointed you had I not.

"I loved you enough to respect your opinion.

"I loved you enough to listen to your 'old-fashioned' ideas in hopes of learning something from them.

"I loved you enough to spend too much money, for too short a time, to come home and see you.

"I love you enough to understand that the things you did for me were in my best interest.

"I loved you enough to hold my tongue when I knew the words 'I hate you' might have slipped out.

"But most of all I loved you enough to leave you in an effort to be on my own. That was the hardest part of all."

Someday, I'd like to meet the mythical "everybody else's mother," that illusive, liberal, devil-may-care woman who is the first to sanction every madcap scheme, every party, every overnight prom but who can never be found. Until I meet her, I'll keep handing out my middle-class wisdom: "Rather to die young from a thousand no's ... than to live a lifetime with a parent who doesn't care."

It's time to bury the hatchet

Editor:

Last Monday night I attended a meeting of the Charlevoix Township Board. Among other items on the agenda was an appearance by the City Attorney of Charlevoix, representing the Mayor and City Counsel, requesting the hook up of a township water line to the new snowmaking machine recently acquired for Mt. McSauba. The Board voted unanimously to honor the request with certain details to be worked out with the city.

Prior to the approval, however, it was brought to the audience's attention that the past history of cooperation between the city and the township has been somewhat lacking, with rumor and innuendos often taking the place of facts. Despite these past differences, the Board acted in a positive way to benefit the entire community. During the discussion, one of the suggested motions was to hold a joint meeting with the City Council to air these past differences and attempt to resolve them amicably, once and for all.

The purpose of this letter is to congratulate the Board for taking the first step toward that end by their vote last Monday; and, secondly, to voice support and encouragement for the city and the township to come together, bury the hatchet, and work together toward the betterment of both communities. With the fresh look in the city administration, perhaps the time has come.

Sincerely,
Richard J. Aull

Red Cross workers say thanks

Editor:

Thanks to the Charlevoix community and a wonderful spirit of cooperation, the Bloodmobile collected 134 pints of blood on Thursday, Nov. 9 exceeding the goal set for us.

We appreciate the informative article in the Charlevoix Courier and announcements on the local radio stations. These helped to bring the donors in, to make the drive a success, and it will provide blood to members of the Charlevoix community if it is needed.

The Xi Epsilon Gamma and Kappa Sigma chapters of Beta Sigma Phi sorority served the refreshments to the donors, while the generous donations of supplies came from Olesons, Crown Drug, Edwards IGA and Glen's Market. Their contributions were greatly appreciated.

Many RN's and LPN's gave their time to supplement the American Red Cross staff. We also are grateful to the American Legion who allowed us to use their very nice facilities, and the Coast Guard who assisted in loading supplies. Many of them also donated blood.

The planning committee, headed by Mrs. David Fowler, consisted of Mrs. Clifford Biddick, Sr., Mrs. Robert Tollas, Mrs. Francis Left, Mrs. Alan Towsley, Mrs. Vernon Mathews, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Izor. The success of the drive is due, in part, to the efforts of these people and their committees.

Our sincere thanks goes to those who donated blood and time. Some did both. We hope that many will plan to participate when the Bloodmobile comes back next May.

Sincerely,
Charlevoix County

Nature area step closer to reality

Antrim County's 565-acre Grass River Natural Area is a step closer to completion, thanks to a bill that was unanimously passed Wednesday by the Michigan House of Representatives.

The bill, sponsored by state Representative Ralph Ostling (R-Roscommon), would clear the way for the Department of Natural Resources to sell 65 acres of state-owned land to Antrim County for a token $1.

The 65 acres is part of an area designated for preservation by the county that stretches between Bellaire and Clam Lake and includes the Grass River and its shoreland.

The bill must now pass the Senate and be signed by Gov. Milliken before being enacted into law. If it does become law, it will mark the completion of the Grass River Natural Area in western Antrim County.

"I am pleased to see that this beautiful nature area is near completion," Ostling said. "The people of the Grass River area should be commended for their dedication to the cause of preserving wetlands in their local area."

The bill mandates that the land be used as part of the Grass River Natural area only. If the land's use is changed, the bill states that the land's title will revert to the state.

Students prepare breakfast for opening day hunters

While most people in Charlevoix were sound asleep Wednesday morning, a group of high school seniors were busy at the American Legion Hall preparing a breakfast for the opening day deer hunters.

Twenty-two seniors, plus Rachel Venstra, showed up at the hall at 4 a.m. so breakfast could be on the table at 5:30 for deer hunters who wanted to get an early start. And there were many deer hunters who did.

The breakfast lasted until 8:30 (for those who weren't interested in an early start) and, according to senior class President Brenda Boss, approximately 80 people (not all deer hunters) were served. The senior class raised nearly $275 for their morning's work. The money will help finance the senior trip to Cedar Point.

The senior class did have a lot of help. Oleson's donated coffee and milk and, in addition, gave the class a good deal on sausage. Bogg's made the pancake batter, the Kiwanis Club donated the pure maple syrup and the American Legion donated the hall and the dishes.

Prior to deer season, the class raffled off a rifle and made nearly $500. More raffles are planned for the fature.

...Norman Perkins

By PEG OHLE

Norman Perkins is a teacher consultant in special education for children with learning disabilities.

Attached to the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, he works in Charlevoix, Beaver Island, Central Lake, and Ellsworth testing and evaluating students with learning problems to determine if they are eligible for special education service and in developing appropriate programs within the regular school curriculum for those who are not.

In giving the tests and making the evaluations, Perkins is part of a special education team including a psychiatrist, a social worker, and a special education teacher. The tests include academic skills, visual and aural skills, motor skills and perception, among other learning facilities.

During the year, he will give initial tests to some 50 to 70 young people referred to him by teachers or counselors in the elementary, middle, and high schools in the area. He will also re-evaluate students in special programs and follow up on the programs with teachers and parents. At the high school level, he will make job placement studies for students in special programs.

Perkins explains that special education is designed for those who are handicapped by being emotionally impaired, learning impaired, mildly mentally impaired, or physically impaired.

"Children with learning disabilities are often called the 'hidden handicapped' compared to those with physical or mental disabilities," he says. "They can have a tough time in school and it's not obvious why. They can do well in some subjects and not others. Most are of normal intelligence. Sometimes they can function well in math but can't read, or vice-versa. It could be a matter of poor eye-hand coordination, motor disabilities, or any of a number of things.

"We try to diagnose extensively enough to find if they learn by hearing, seeing, or tactile perception, then design programs to strengthen the weaknesses. Some times it doesn't work and we don't know why.

"When that happens, we concentrate on developing some life or compensatory skills to try to make them productive members of society. We want them to become tax payers instead of tax receivers, and to feel good about themselves."

By state law, intermediate school districts have the responsibility of providing special education to all persons who require it from the time they are born to age 25. Those who are no longer in school are assisted with extra training and placed in jobs of many types, Perkins further explains.

Under the special education program, high school students may work part time in any of a number of jobs, receiving school credit but no money for their work. In such instances, Perkins coordinates what the students need to learn with the work they are doing.

"We place them in banks, retail stores, health care service institutions, garages and filling stations, construction firms, and other types of businesses," Perkins adds.

Eventually most of these special education students graduate from high school, either by pursuing a normal course of study or by another program designed to meet their specific needs. Their high school work is geared toward achieving marketable job skills. These students are also followed up for a year after graduation.

Perkins does considerable work with parents of special education students and says he enjoys it. "We encourage them to seek help starting with the home room teacher. We have a Char-Em Chapter of the Michigan Association for Children with Learning Disabilities. We encourage parents with such children to participate in the group to find out that they are not the only ones with these problems."

Perkins is in his 11th year at the local intermediate school district. He graduated from high school in Eaton Rapids, went to Central Michigan for two years, then took a job as a chemical analyst for Monstanto Chemical Company. He also spent three years in the Army before deciding he wanted to be a special education teacher. He attained that goal after receiving Bachelor of Science and Master of Science degrees in speech pathology from Eastern Michigan University.

"I went into special education because it is more challenging. There is a lot of satisfaction in helping parents work through their frustrations with handicapped kids," he says happily.

When not on the job, Perkins enjoys outdoor sports, including fishing and snowmobiling, re-doing his old house, and tinkering with his 1931 Chevy.

Mrs. Perkins is the former Vicky Racignol of Charlevoix. They live in Central Lake, where Mrs. Perkins teaches kindergarten, with their two children, Matt eight years old, and Kate, three years old.

Davis' aide, Bill Huber, will be in Boyne City on Thursday, Nov. 30. He will be at City Hall from 10 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. and at the American Legion Hall from 11:30 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Parenting workshop planned at CHIP center

Effective parenting will be the focus of the two-session Parenting Workshop the Charlevoix CHIP Counseling Center is holding on Nov. 29 and Dec. 6.

Terry Smith, counselor at the center, who will conduct the workshops, reports openings still exist for participants in the two evening sessions.

The workshop will deal with such issues as authority, discipline, stress, love and the goals of parenting.

"A Master Plan for parenting, which has as its goal the training of a child for maturity and independence," is a major theme in Smith's approach to effective parenting.

The workshops will include exerci. in interpersonal relationships, which while they will be focussed on relationships between parent and child, will be applicable to all human relationships.

"Personal growth should be a general benefit of this workshop," Smith observes.

Smith says that parents want to be effective and that moments of failure, which all parents share, creates feelings of guilt.

Smith approaches parenting with concern and sympathy.

"Our personal styles of parenting will vary considerably," he observes.

He says he offers no gaarantees that attendance at the workshop will create perfect parents, but he indicates that developing a personal master plan for raising children can help parents know they are doing their best, thus easing tensions and stress.

The two-session workshop is limited to 20 participants.

Early registration is urged. The deadline for registration is Monday Nov. 27. The sessions are on Nov. 29 and Dec. 6, from 7 to 10 p.m. Fees are $15 per person or $25 per couple. Further details may be obtained by calling the CHIP Center at 547-6551.

Automobile Club offers winter driving tips

Wintertime demands special driving skills and a vehicle that is properly maintained and equipped for sub-zero driving and survival in an emergency, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

Controlling a car on icy pavement can be a problem. If a car skids, turn the front wheels in the direction the rear wheels are headed. Slowly straighten the front wheels as the car corrects. When roads are slippery, do not downshift or suddenly decelerate. To stop on ice, pump the brake pedal lightly and rapidly.

Auto Club Emergency Road Service Manager Robert M. Smith adds that a home-mode "survival kit" should be in every car trunk. It should cost $60 or less to assemble and contain a coffee can to radiate warmth from a lighted condle inside, newspapers for insulation when placed next to the skin under clothing and carpet strips for traction under drive wheels.

Other suggested survival items are a blanket, shovel, flashlight, jumper cables, tire chains, boots, flares, reflectors, tools, first aid kit, sand, a scraper-brush and food.

Smith notes, "Motorists who follow maintenance recommendations outlined in car owner's manuals can expect summer starts all winter without taking any other steps."

According to Smith, 85 percent of all "can't start" calls received by Auto Club Emergency Road Service contract garages are the result of vehicle neglect, not vehicle failure.

For motorists who have not followed maintenance procedures outlined in the owner's manaal, Auto Club suggests this pre-winter program:

- Check the vehicle's fuel tank, fuel line, fuel pump, fuel filter, automatic choke and carburetor.
- Check the battery and replace it if necessary. Make sure it is fully charged, with fluid covering the plates. Terminals must be tight and corrosion-free.
- Check the fan and other belts and replace them if worn. A slipping belt can result in an undercharged battery.
- Replace spark plugs, points and condenser if needed. Inspect the radiator, heater hoses and clamps for leaks. Check antifreeze strength and levels. Effectiveness is redaced if water is added.
- Check and adjust or replace windshield wiper blades.

Cagers rebound after St. Ignace loss, beat Boyne City

Thursday evening prior to the tipoff of the Boyne City-Charlevoix girls basketball game, Charlevoix Coach Toni Felter was given a necklace by team members as a token of their appreciation. Perhaps they should have given her some aspirin, too, to help relieve tension.

Consider:

• Tuesday night the Rayders and St. Ignace collided in a battle for first place. Charlevoix had a nine point lead going into the fourth quarter. But a rash of fouls put starters Melinda Klooster and Chris Lehman on the bench and St. Ignace caught up forcing an overtime. The Rayders were held scoreless in the three minute overtime and lost a heartbreaker, 62-58.

• Thursday night the Rayders, playing before a Parents Night crowd, took a 14 point lead into the fourth quarter against Boyne City. A safe lead, right? Not quite. With 17 seconds to go the game was tied, 49-49. Klooster then made one of two free throws to give the Rayders a one point margin. But Boyne City had possession of the ball and considering how hot the Ramblers were in the fourth quarter a one point margin did not look very safe. A repeat of the St. Ignace game? Fortunately, for Mrs. Felter and Rayder basketball fans, it wasn't. The Rayders forced a jump ball and then controlled the tip. With just one second left on the clock, Mel Kerridge was fouled. The sophomore guard sank two free throws and Charlevoix escaped with an exciting, 52-49, win.

• But all the excitement was not over. Following the contest, Mrs. Felter called Jay Soderberg, the statistician for the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference. She gave Soderberg the results of the game. "I have some news for you," Soderberg said. "Cheboygan beat St. Ignace, 48-38." Mrs. Felter was ecstatic. The team had already left, so she promptly got on the phone and called each one to tell them the news: The Rayders were back in a first place tie. How did they react? "They went crazy," she said.

Both Charlevoix and St. Ignace are 11-2 in conference play. The Rayders conclude the regular season Tuesday night at Petoskey while St. Ignace hosts Grayling. A tie for the title appears likely since Charlevoix swamped Petoskey in an earlier meeting and Grayling sports a mediocre 6-7 record.

The Rayders may be without Lehman, a starting guard, for the Petoskey clash. She suffered a bruised elbow in a fall during the Boyne City game.

Charlevoix may not have seen the last of Boyne City, either. The Ramblers will be in the same district as Charlevoix. Rogers City, Onaway and East Jordan complete the five team district which starts Nov. 28 at Onaway. The parings will be announced Tuesday morning.

Meanwhile, Klooster continues to lead the conference in scoring, averaging 21.8 points per game. She had 22 points against St. Ignace and 18 against Boyne City. Sherri Selissen, who tossed in 14 points in both outings last week, is averaging 11.3 points per game in conference play and Kerridge, who had 15 points at St. Ignace and 10 in the win over Boyne City, is averaging 8.4.

In junior varsity action last week, Charlevoix lost in overtime to St. Ignace, 33-32, but beat Boyne City, 40-36.

Hospital looks for trends during 'peer review'

At Charlevoix Area Hospital, as at every accredited hospital in the nation, physicians devote considerable time to helping physicians and hospital personnel maintain a high quality of medical care.

One of the most important functions physicians on Charlevoix Area Hospital's medical staff perform is "peer review."

"Peer review" simply means that the medical staff, along with the board of directors, to whom they are sponsible, evaluates the quality of medical care of the physician staff.

A committee of five doctors, the Professional Activities Committee, chaired by this year's chief of the medical staff, Dr. James Gels, reviews, on a monthly schedule, operations, the use of medications, unusual transfusions, emergency room cases, the incidence of infection, and all complications and deaths.

This committee watches for "trends" according to its chairman.

In the case of operations, he explained, "whenever tissue is removed during an operation, that diseased tissue goes to the pathology department. If the pathology report indicates 'normal' tissue was removed, we review the case."

He continued, explaining, "A normal report does not mean that the surgery was unnecessary, but an unusual number of normal reports may indicate unnecessary surgery."

While such circumstances have not arisen at Charlevoix Area Hospital, if it should, the Professional Activities Committee would be in the position of reviewing a physician's privilege to perform that particular surgical procedure.

The use of antibiotics, with the hospital, is also reviewed. "We want to be sure antibiotics are applied correctly and appropriately," the chief of staff explained.

All the reviews which are conducted regularly are viewed as educational efforts, helping physicians stay abreast of their fast changing field.

Emergency room cases are studied similarly by random sample.

The hospital board of directors, administrator, and director of nursing can bring topics for discussion to the Professional Activities Committee.

Administrator Richard Krueger, Nursing Services Director Kathy Boss, and Medical Records Supervisor, Marguerite Ikens, sit in on the meetings.

This same group works with such hospital departments as medical records. With the Hospital pharmacist they study new drugs and approve all the medications maintained in the pharmacy. The doctors committee also makes recommendations for acquisitions for the hospital library.

In addition, staff physicians conduct medical audits four times a year.

"We review treatment of specific diagnoses," the chairman explained.

"In 1977 we chose to review pneumonia, Ceasarian Sections, gall bladder procedures and strokes," he continued.

When specific diagnoses, such as pneumonia is selected for audit, the doctors review every hospital case. The committee studies both diagnosis and treatment, tests and medications, as well as the outcome in each case. Statistics on percentages of recovery and complications are reviewed for a period of time.

"We are looking for ways of improving our treatment of these diseases or problems. Medical Audits are designed primarily as an educational process," a committee member explained.

Other Charlevoix Area Hospital staff physicians serve on committees within their specialities. Committees and their chairmen are: Medical, J.A. Gels and Reed Freidinger; Obstetrics, Gynecology and Newborn Nursery, William Mosher; Surgery, H.R. Custer; Emergency Room, Merle Plagge; Coronary Care-Intensive Care, Reed Freidinger; Pediatrics, Dennis Joy (medical) and H.R. Custer (surgical); Inhalation Therapy, J.A. Gels; Physical Therapy, R.W. Mansfield; Radiology, T.H. Kung; and Pathology, J. Webster.

An Utilization Review Committee, composed of physician and administration personnel keeps track of how long patients are staying at the hospital.

According to Administrator Krueger, the goal of this committee is to insure that patients are not hospitalized longer than necessary, in order to hold down hospital costs. Lengths of hospitalization statistics have been amassed by the Commission on Professional and Hospital Activities in Ann Arbor. These statistics show average lengths of hospital stay by diagnosis, sex, age and area of the nation.

"When a patient has been hospitalized the average days for his diagnosis, his physician is notified," Krueger explains.

"The Professional Activities Committee discussed why a patient was held beyond that average time, looking to see if legitimate reasons for longer stay existed.

Members of the board of directors and staff physicians also meet quarterly in a Joint Conference Committee, discussing matters of hospital policy and practice, especially those pertaining to efficient and effective patient care," according to Krueger.

Similarly, staff physicians meet in committees to review applications for hospital privileges by other physicians.

"When a new doctor seeks privileges at Charlevoix Area Hospital we review his her training, qualifications and require letters from other physicians recommending him / her in the areas in which he she seeks privileges," Gels said.

"We make recommendations and the whole medical staff and the board of directors votes on the question."

Gels emphasized the physicians give their time to work on these committees to insure that the practice of medicine at Charlevoix Area Hospital is of the highest quality and improves wherever improvement is possible.

THE PROFESSIONAL Activities Committee of the Charlevoix Area Hospital medical staff meets monthly to discuss policies procedures, review cases and plan educational sessions. Seated (l to r) Richard Krueger, Hospital Administrator; Marguerite Ikens, Medical Records Supervisor; Kathy Boss, Nursing Services Supervisor; and Doctors William Mosher, J. A. Gels, Reed Freidinger, Merle Plagge, and Dennis Joy.

The readings this year will include passages from Psalms: "I will praise the name of God with a song, and will magnify him with thanksgiving ... He healeth the broken in heart, and bindeth up their wounds."

Christmas tree demand higher than supply

There's a shortage of Christmas trees nationally this year and one of the reasons is a "return to things natural" trend, according to Dr. Mel Koelling, Michigan State University forest extension director. Dr. Koelling estimates that an additional one to two million Christmas trees could be sold – if they were available.

"The artificial tree is primarily a petro-chemical. These have increased in price and I suspect will continue to increase in price," said Koelling. "I think there's a little renewable, recycleable nature to us that's coming through. Natural trees don't require much energy in processing, and while they're growing they provide a good habitat for wildlife, provide oxygen and hold soil in place. In general, some of the values the natural tree represents are perhaps more important now than they were a few years ago."

This same trend is reflected in the growth of "cut-your own" Christmas tree operations, Koelling reports, a holiday ritual that usually involves the whole family. "Getting the Christmas tree has become nearly as important as having one," he says.

Consumers will be paying more for their Christmas trees this year than they did last, not only because of the supply-demand picture, but for the same reasons they are paying more for any other commodity they purchase. "Fuel costs, transportation costs, land ownership and labor costs are all higher. I don't think Christmas trees will be much higher than anything else, probably 6 to 8 percent, which is close to the cost of living increase overall," said Koelling.

Michigan claims the title as the number one Christmas tree producing state in the nation, with about 50 million trees growing on approximately 50,000 acres. Michigan's annual harvest of Christmas trees is about four million trees. They're sold not only in Michigan, but in other states as well, mainly in the south and east and some in the southwest.

There is even the potential for export markets in other countries, Koelling predicts. The major problem there, he says, is guaranteeing and assuring a supply of between 100,000 and 500,000 trees to an export market.

IT'S beginning to look a lot like Christmas, especially in northern Michigan where Christmas trees are being cut and taken downstate via train. Christmas is only five weeks away.

City prepares for Christmas holiday season

By FRAN MARTIN

Charlevoix is going to have a new look in street decorations this Christmas, thanks to the efforts of the Retail Division of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

In fact, the community will take on a real holiday look when these people have carried out their plans to attract area residents to Charlevoix.

Lighted Christmas trees, purchased by the group, will appear on lamp posts in the downtown district extending from Dixon Avenue on the north to Hurlbut Avenue on the south. Added to that, Christmas red bows will mark the doors of all participating businesses and others if they will permit the hanging of the bows.

In addition to all this, merchants will decorate their windows as they compete for the traveling trophy won in 1977 by Boggs Bakery. Judging for this will be done at 7 a.m. Dec. 14.

"We know that we must have attractive settings for our stock if we hope to attract shoppers. We are starting by creating an attractive setting with the lighted trees and Christmas bows. Each store will then be decorated in its individual style in which merchandise, designed for gift-giving, will be displayed." Mike Greeley of Wharfside Market, a member of the Retail Merchants said.

The stores involved offer a wide choice of items that run the gamut of gift-giving...from the smallest of earrings, for instance, to furniture, carpeting and even an entirely new interior in your home.

"As you can see from the list of those retail merchants involved in the promotion, we are attempting to offer everything anyone might have on their Christmas list," Greeley continued.

Among those who attended the meeting and who are involved in the advertising campaign are Nellie Hiehle of Silent Sports North, Patricia Helman of Patricia's on the Harbor, Candice Golden of Golden Shoes, Randy Brown of Hamilton's Men's Shop, Jeannine Wallace of Shop of the Gulls, Michael Holmes of the Apple Tree, David Hand of Bridge st. Hardware, Marty Stillings of Charlee's, Linda Mason of Mason & Stillings Interiors, Susie Reis of Reis Gallery, R.G. Lieberman of Lieberman's.

Also Lou Mettler of Mettler's on the Bay, Don Brown of Don Brown's House of Furniture, Phil Kluczynski of Barb's Hallmark Harbor, Mike Greeley of Wharfside Market, Fred DeMartino of Kaden's Emporium, Jim Miller of Staley Hardware, B.F. Bartlett of Bartlett Decorating Center, Jack Urban of Crown Drug, Jim Mabee of The Clothing Company, Glenn Kenney of Carson Lumber, Jackie Smiged of Wildwood, Inc., and Nancy Poser of the Little Traverse Trading Co.

Members of the Retail Merchants group will meet at the Wharfside Market at 1 p.m. Sunday to decorate the small Christmas trees with lights they have purchased and to make the bows that will decorate the doors throughout the business community.

New rules governing payment of utility bills takes effect Jan. 1

The Charlevoix Common Council has approved several new rules concerning payment of utility bills. The new rules approved last week, take effect Jan. 1, 1979.

City officials say the new rules "should provide more efficient service to customers, and eliminate the great number of past due accounts."

Under the new rules, for example, customers must pay their utility bills by the 15th of each month. If the bills are not paid by then, shut-off notices will be mailed to the non-complying customers. If the bills are still not paid by the 20th of the month, the utilities will be disconnected. To have the utilities turned back on, customers must have the past due bill paid in full and then pay a $25 turn-on fee.

Here is whot part of the resolution approved by council says:

- Deposits for rentals will be: electric only - $50, electric and water - $75, commercial - $125, electric heat - $125. The property owner is responsible for bills left unpaid by the tenant.
- All utility bills must be paid by the 15th of the month. The city will not accept any post-dated checks and will not hold.
- Certified shut-off notices will be mailed to customers in arrears on the 16th of each month. Those accounts still in arrears on the 19th will be notified by telephone, if possible. Any accounts in arrears on the 20th of each month will be subject to having the utilities disconnected. Shut-offs are not to be made on Friday or before a holiday.
- Turn on of past due accounts will not be made until the past due bill is paid in full and a $25 turn-on fee is paid.
- All final cut-offs will be the responsibility of one office.
- At the time cut-offs are made, the landlord is to be responsible for the final reading before a new renter moves in.
- Customers requesting meter checks will be charged $10 for the meter to be checked if the meter is not in default. There will be no charge if the meter is in fault.

GYM TIED UP

The girls just cannot seem to be able to get the gym to play volleyball. The boys have it all tied up. The girls can't get in to practice for their volleyball game. Now, I am a taxpayer, and I have a girl who plays, and I think she has as much right to play in the gym as the boys. I would like some of the other parents of girls that play to start to speak up so that we can have our share of the gym, too. Let's not discriminate and have only the boys use the gym. Thank you.

How sweet it is

CHARLEVOIX basketball coach Toni Felter was swept off her feet Tuesday and carried to the lockerroom as the Rayders beat Petoskey and clinched a share of the title in the Michigan Huron Shores Conference. For more on the game and on the girls basketball team see pages 6 and 7.

Anti-nuclear power group plans protest at Big Rock, vow it will be peaceful

A rally to "turn off Big Rock" is scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Elzinga Park on U.S. 31 North.

The rally has been initiated by a anti-nuclear power group called NoMAD (Northern Michigan Alternative Development). The group, concerned about the dangers of nuclear power to human health and world peace, plans to meet at Elzinga Park and conduct a "memorial service," recognizing Dec 2 as the "birthday" of the atomic age.

Elzinga Park is located just four-tenths of a mile from the Big Rock Nuclear Plant. The park is on the shoreline of Lake Michigan.

Following the rally, the group plans to march to the access road leading to the nuclear plant at Big Rock. If allowed by police, NoMAD spokesmen say, the group will march down the access road to the plant gates "carrying a single monkey wrench, symbolizing our desire to dismantle the plant."

If the group is not allowed to march on the access road, they plan to sit and pitch tents along the road, "occupying the land and maintaining a peaceful presence." Spokesmen say the group will not block the road to workers or emergency vehicles.

"This action may be considered trespassing by the Charlevoix deputies, and arrests may occur," a spokesman added. "But we will remain peaceful and true to our principles."

The march will be open to people who participated in NoMAD's non-violence training sessions offered in Petoskey and Traverse City. Five people attended the session in Petoskey Saturday while the session in Traverse City is slated for Friday night. Others – who are not trained – are welcomed to the rally, spokesmen say.

NoMAD spokesmen have emphasized, in particular, two concerns about nuclear power radioactive leaks and the unresolved question of waste disposal.

"December 2 will mark 30 years since the first stockpiling of by-product radioactive fission wastes, without any provision yet considered for its safe disposal," a spokesman said. "Will it ever be resolved?"

Saturday's rally is viewed as a direct action against today's nuclear technology.

Big Rock is owned by the Consumer's Power Company. Company officials have not commented on the planned protest.

The schedule is quite similar to this year's. The board did add a fifth color cruise because of the popularity of the boat trip. According to Jacquie Merta, manager of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, all the cruises were "jammed pack" this fall.

Although the Michigan Amateur is still slated for the latter part of June, there will be a change in one of the two golf courses used for qualifying rounds. Besides the Belvedere Club - where the final rounds are played - Antrim Dells will be used during the qualifying rounds next summer. This past summer Harbor Point hosted part of the amateur.

According to Mrs. Merta, there has also been preliminary discussion about coordinating a rock hunt during Michigan Week in May. However, nothing is definite yet, she said.

Let's Talk
Real Estate

by Jim Thomas

Many communities across the country are concerned about the disappearance of open land and greenery in their vicinity. Especially in areas of rapid growth, the disappearance of non-developed land is becoming a concern. Most communities welcomed growth at first, but are afraid now that too much growth might destroy the very things that made communities attractive in the first place. As a result, communities are attempting to limit growth, or are buying land with the idea of maintaining a green or undeveloped area within or around their community.

Professional real estate agents from the office of THOMAS REAL ESTATE, 100 Pine River Lane, 547-4494 can take care of all the details involved in buying or selling any kind of property. We are known for giving dependable and personalized service in all phases of real estate. Many times we are able to help in obtaining mortgages through our associations with the local financial institutions. Stop in and check our selected listings of choice properties in the area. "Do business where business is being done." Open Daily 9-5, evenings and Sun. by appointment.

Congratulations to Randy and Nancy Brown of Hamilton's on the birth of their daughter Sarah Marie.

Area MSU Alumni Club to organize

The first meeting of the newly organized Michigan State University Alumni Club of Charlevoix and Emmet counties will be held in the undercroft of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, 1020 East Mitchell St., Petoskey at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 30.

A proposed constitution and by-laws will be presented for adoption and an interim slate of nine members will be elected to the board. The program will also include the planning of future meetings and events, and a film "Go Green, Gu White" supplied by the MSU Alumni Office in East Lansing will be shown.

The need for a local MSU Alumni Club has been brought about by a steadily growing number of graduates and former MSU students in the Charlevoix and Emmet county areas. These persons, together with all others who are interested in Michigan State University are cordially invited to attend this organizational meeting. There is no charge, but a raffle will be held to defray expenses.

Keep safety in mind when using fireplace

It is no longer possible to ignore it – winter is here! There is nothing like a bright cheery fireplace to warm up a cold winter day. If you are one of the ever growing numbers who are putting their fireplace to use keep safety in mind.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that each year over 6,000 people receive hospital emergency room treatment for injuries associated with fireplaces. Most of these injuries are cuts and bruises caused by handling wood, andirons, and other equipment. But the most serious injuries are burns, and most of the victims are children.

The typical accident patterns associated with fireplaces include:

1. Clothing ignition from the open flames.
2. Sparks from the fire landing on nearby flammable material.
3. Using flammable liquids to rekindle the fire. It is hazardous to use flammable liquids anywhere near the fire because the vapors can travel to the flames and be ignited.
4. Carborn monoxide poisoning caused by the use of the wrong fuel or improper ventilation.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission offers the following suggestinns for the safer use of fireplaces:

–Check to make sure the fireplace was constructed to be used as a fireplace, not just for decoration. Have it inspected to determine whether it has all necessary linings and clearances.

–Don't use gasoline or other flammable liquids to rekindle a fire because the flammable vapors can explode. Never use fuels near a fire; explosive vapors can travel the length of a room.

–Always keep the damper open while the fuel is burning to provide for efficient burning and to prevent the accumulation of explosive gases.

–Don't use coal, charcoal, or styrofoam packaging in a fireplace because they can produce deadly quantities of carbon monoxide.

–Don't treat artificial logs (made from sawdust and wax) the same way you treat real wood logs. If artificial logs are stacked on top of each other, they can explode.

–Always use a screen around a fireplace to keep sparks from flying out. Don't put combustible materials, such as carpets or furniture, near a fireplace.

–Keep children away from the fire because their clothing can easily ignite. Warn the entire family about this hazard.

–Check fireplaces regularly to determine that all vents and chimneys are operating properly.

Lunch with Santa

Area children will have an opportunity to have "Lunch with Santa" on Saturday, Dec. 9 from 12:00 (noon) until 2 p.m. at the Grey Gables.

Each child will have the opportunity to sing Christmas songs, listen to "Twas the Night Before Christmas," have a hot dog lunch, and, of course, have a personal chat with Santa.

Those interested can contact The Apple Tree or Bridge St. Ace Hardware in Charlevoix for more ticket information.

Charlevoix revisited through memoirs of Will Hampton

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Courier has come into possession of the memoirs of early Charlevoix resident Will E. Hampton. Titled "Memories of Charlevoix the Beautiful Six Decades Ago", it was written by Hampton, then an octogenarian, in 1955. The Courier will reprint portions of the memoirs from time to time. The first installment follows:

What is written here is in no sense a history, but merely memories of one who passed the years 1890 to 1920 in this most beautiful of Michigan cities.

My first knowledge of Charlevoix came on July 4, 1876, when, with my parents and brother Charles, we came on an excursion with others from Harbor Springs, (then Little Traverse) and Petoskey, to celebrate the centennial "Fourth". The steamer was the A.A. Van Raalte, owned by the Hannah-Lay Co., and captained by, I think, Oscar E. Wilbur.

We had to land at a pier on the lake front, and the services were held on Park Avenue, in a grove where the residence built by "Rollie" Lewis is situated. At that time there were but three buildings on the south side of the street west of State Street, the Congregational Church, and the residences of F.G. Hines and Willard A. Smith. It was all woods west of the Smith residence.

Later in life, while living in Harbor Springs, I visited Charlevoix, about the years 1880-1883, as a member of the Harbor Springs Band, when we played for excursions on the Faxton or other steamers, and one memorable time when, as center fielder on the Harbor Springs baseball club, we participated in a tournament that was won by my team, taking home a gold medal, other teams being from neighboring Petoskey, East Jordan, Boyne City, and Charlevoix. The town was crowded, and as the tournament ran into the second day, I with others, slept on billiard tables at the Bridge Street House.

I settled in Charlevoix as a permanent resident in May, 1890, coming with my wife and three-year-old son Charles, to take charge of the Charlevoix Journal for my brother Charles, who bought it from Chas. J. Strang, son of "King" Strang of Mormon fame. My brother planned to have it conducted in connection with his Petoskey Democrat, using two of the four pages filled with material from his own paper and printed in Petoskey. This plan did not work out very satisfactorily, and in 1894 I bought the paper and changed the name to the Charlevoix Courier, continuing as editor and owner until selling to A.J. Usher in 1908.

In 1890 there was no railroad, and all supplies had to come by water, either by big lake boats from Chicago, or by steamer from the rail head at Harbor Springs via Captain CanDerhoef's steamer Friant. Mail came by stage from Petoskey. In spring and fall, Bridge St. between Clinton and Mason was a regular bog. There were few if any cement walks. Cows ran loose in the streets. No electric lights or water works. Fire protection was by a steam engine and hose cart, taking water from Round Lake. As near as I can recall, the business places along Bridge Street on the east side, starting from the river, were groceries by Amos Fox (successor to Fox, Rose & Buttars), vacant lots, a one-story building occupied by various businesses, the printing office of the Charlevoix Sentinel, a saloon of James Collick, a large livery barn, G.W. Crouter's drug store, Geo. Miller's father's shoe store, George Miller's clothing store, Major Edward H. Green's residence, his one-story office, a building owned by Major Green and occupied as a dry goods store by Washburne, the Brown Private Bank, now the liquor store.

In the next block, on the corner, the hardware store of Morris J. Stockman, and Mert Mason's grocery. From there to the Bridge Street Hotel were one-story buildings occupied by various businesses at different times, most, if not all, owned by the father of Ralph Washburne. Beyone the hotel was another frame building and then a saloon.

In the next block was the general store of Upright & Emerey the drug store, and general stores of Carpenter & L.S. Bartholomew, with, I think, interests in the business by P.G. Hines, who ran the drug store, and B.W. Miller, who was the active head of the general store. Later Mr. Hines bought out the others and owned the store until his death.

Container deposit law goes into effect Dec. 3

After Dec. 3, throwing away your beverage bottles and cans will be the same as throwing away nickels and dimes. That's the day the Michigan Beverage Container Deposit Law goes into effect. Its aim is to reduce litter.

The law, which permits only returnable soft drink and beer containers to be sold, was approved by 64 percent of the Michigan voters in the 1976 general election.

"There are a few facts and requirements for consumers to remember to make an easy transition to the new system," says Mary Zehner, Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service consumer marketing information specialist.

Containers which by law require a deposit are bottles and cans for soft drinks; soda water; carbonated, natural or mineral water; and other nonalcoholic carbonated drinks. A deposit is also required for containers of one gallon or less holding beer, ale or other malt drinks.

Wine, liquor, fruit juice and other noncarbonated beverage containers are exempt from the deposit requirement.

On cans you will be paying a desposit of 10 cents apiece. Twelve-and 16-ounce glass containers will require a deposit of 10 cents, or 5 cents each for "certified" bottles, which can be used by more than one bottler. The deposit for large containers has yet to be set by bottlers, but currently the quart and liter glass bottles carry a 20-cent deposit.

Merchants are required to accept empty returnable containers and pay (in cash) the full deposit -- but only if the continers you return are kinds, sizes and brands that they carry, Zehner says. All returnable cans will be marked with the name of the state and the refund value. Refillable bottles will be marked with a "money back" statement.

How should you handle returnable empties? Zehner urges consumers to rinse the cans or bottles so they don't present a sanitation problem in home or retail storage areas. And don't crush the empty cans. Returning uncrushed cans will help to speed up the return system.

Consumers should also be patient with retailers, Zehner says. "This return system is new to your grocer, too. He'll appreciate your cooperation to make the conversion to the new law as smooth as possible."

What about buying soft drinks from machines? Some will require a deposit on beverage containers; others will not.

However, vending machine suppliers who don't require a deposit will lose money if people walk off with containers. "These suppliers must pay a deposit on each container they purchase to sell in a machine. Consumers should be careful to return cans or bottles to the rack or bin furnished near machines," Zehner says.

A convenient place to redeem deposits will be provided near vending machines that collect deposits.

Are deposits necessary on soft drink containers sold in cafeterias, restaurants or schools? According to Zehner, if drinks are normally consumed on the premises, no deposit will be required and a rack or bin will be furnished for the empties. If drinks are normally taken away from the premises, a deposit will be required.

Prices for soft drinks and beer will increase, Zehner says, because costs to wholesalers and retailers will increase due to additional labor, equipment and storage space required to handle returned bottles and cans. The total capital expenditure for the soft drink industry to stay within Michigan law is estimated at $85 million, Zehner says. This does not include added labor, fuel or facilities for washing the bottles.

Will there be a decrease in the availability of imported beverages? Dennis Hybarger of the Michigan Liquor Control Commission in Lansing sees no need for imported beverage enthusiasts to worry that their favorite brews might become unavailable. Only a few states have beverage container laws, but importers have expressed their willingness to comply with the new state regulations, he says.

For more information on how the Michigan Beverage Container Law affects you, contact your county Cooperative Extension Service office or the MSU Bulletin Office, P.O. Box 231, East Lansing, MI 48824. Ask for Extension Bulletin E-1280.

ELEANOR SQUIRE, president of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Women's Guild, presents hospital administrator Richard Krueger with a check for $3,000 for the hospital's expansion and renovation program. The guild has pledged $15,000 over a five year period. This was the first of five payments.

Dealing with stress next CHIP workshop

A workshop entitled "Dealing with the Stresses in Life" sponsored by the CHIP Counseling Center, of Charlevoix, on Dec. 9, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., is scheduled for an approximate time of year, counselor Oren Schroeder thinks.

"Times of stress can be predicted," Schroeder said. "And learning to predict times of stress will be part of our workshop.

"Seasonal stress, particularly around the Christmas Holidays, is very common," Schroeder explained.

"As with a lot of stress, seasonal stress is self-induced. We feel pressure to put out a large amount of money for gifts. We often stretch our finances beyond their rightful position."

Schroeder continued, "It is a time when some individuals experience a great deal of loneliness – people whose families are not nearby, who cannot get together. And at the same time other worries become exaggerated."

Schroeder said the participants in the workshop will not only learn to predict times of probable stress, but they will learn to identify different types of stress, and examine methods for handling stress.

The all-day workshop will be led by the two psychotherapists on the CHIP Counseling Center staff, Schroeder and Terry Smith. It is open to everyone in the area. Learning to cope with stress, the counselors point out, is a valuable skill.

The Stress Workshop, as with other workshops sponsored by the CHIP Center this year, is part of a program of preventative mental health.

While the CHIP Center's counselors devote the majority of their time to helping individuals with specific needs, these workshops, open to the general public, are part of the CHIP Center's program to help improve the quality of our life.

Speaking about the stress workshop, Schroeder defined types of stress:

"We can speak of emotion stress, such as time of internal conflict; interpersonal stress, what's happening with my family; organizational stress, my relationship with my boss; and environmental stress, cabin fever is an example."

During the workshop, participants will look at how they currently deal with stress.

"Methods of dealing with stress run the gamut from jogging, walking, sailing – recreational methods – to alcohol and drugs.

"We will look at these methods and ask if they are effective. We will look for more constructive ways of handling stress. If a method of dealing with stress is destructive - alcohol abuse – we will look for alternatives."

Continuing, Schroeder pointed out that there is not one perfect way of dealing with stress, that people vary. He said some people withdraw, others confront situations head on.

There is a spectrum of methods of handling stress, from complete avoidance to all out war, Schroeder explained. The range of methods of coping and their results will be part of the workshop activities.

Defining times of stress, besides seasonal, Schroeder mentioned retirement, marriage, divorce, births, deaths, and job changes.

He was quick to add that stress is not all bad.

"Stress harnesses can be productive. Unleashed, it begins closing in on us."

Stage fright is stress which can be made productive," he continued. Your heart starts pumping. Your adrenalin rushes. This can produce a superior performance."

Among the techniques of dealing with stress, which will be practiced during the workshop is relaxation.

The therapists will demonstrate how to concentrate on deep muscle tension, creating contrast between tension and relaxation.

"Physical exercise backs you away from the problem. It helps you become less uptight."

"We hope to put people into a position where they can assess their personal techniques of handling stress.

"We hope to help them become the controllers of their lives."

The workshop is limited to 30 participants. Deadline for registration is Thursday, Dec. 7; but early registration is urged. The fee is $15.00 per person. To register call the CHIP Center, 547-6551.

Health center offers free blood check

The East Jordan Family Health Center has set aside the first Wednesday of every month between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. to provide free blood pressure monitoring.

Anyone who wishes to keep track of their blood pressure may have it checked at this time at the Center. The program is designed to assist those who periodically suffer from hypertension. However, those who are presently taking medication for the control of hypertension require a more extensive examination than this simple pressure check, and they should seek an appointment with their physician if they have reason for concern about their health.

The first blood pressure check will be on Wednesday, Dec. 6, at 2 p.m. An appointment is not required.

Shop Charlevoix this Christmas season

Christmas is just four weeks away, and now that Thanksgiving is over, most people will start their holiday shopping.

Last year the Courier urged Charlevoix residents to "shop at home" and to take pride in their business community by supporting it during this all important season.

We would like to reiterate that message this year.

Several stores in the Charlevoix area have expanded their business hours during the holiday season to accommodate shoppers, most notably on Friday – possibly the busiest shopping day of the week.

The stores — through the Retail Merchants Association – have united together to mount an extensive advertising campaign to get people to shop in Charlevoix. So, everyone is in the Christmas mood, the association has also purchased Christmas decorations for the business district.

We ask you to support our businesses and shop at home this year.

Working together we can make this a Merry Christmas for all.

Why did they do it?

The mass suicides and murders at Jonestown, Guyana, which totaled 912 at last count, will give psychologists something to ponder over until Judgement Day.

Why did hundreds upon hundreds of people calmly and deliberately sip the Rev. Jim Jones' lethal concoction of potassium cyanide, tranquilizers and pain killers and then curl up to die with their arms around each other?

Of course, infants and little kids who still nourished a strong sense of self-preservation, didn't go so easily. They were force-fed the cyanide with a syringe and then given a mouthful of grape-flavored Kool-Aid to wash it down.

Why did they do it? This is a question no one will ever be able to answer because each individual member of the People's Temple had a personal relationship of some kind with the Rev. Jim Jones.

I think an even more important question is why 900 people were willing to forego the delights of the "land of milk and honey" and follow this crazy gentleman into the jungle to live like animals.

Here is the real key to the Jonestown mystery and if the answer is ever discovered, I suspect it will be economical rather than religious, despite the Rev. Jim Jones' claims to be Christ incarnate.

From the little I have been able to read about members of the Peoples Temple, the only common denominator seems to be that most of them hail from the lower economic strata. Oh, there were a few professional people, including the doctor who mixed the poisonous concoction, but they certainly were outnumbered by the down-and-outers, mostly black, who lacked the skills to compete economically in today's society.

If a single thread runs through these people, it would have to be a long and grubby history of poverty.

And it wasn't the genial poverty of yesteryear that held a whole nation of farmers and day-workers in its benevolent grip. Poverty in the last quarter of the 20th Century means, for all practical purposes, you are a ward of the state, condemned to live in the teeming ghettoes until you either work your way up the economic ladder or die.

But there are no rungs left on the ladder for many, in this age of computerized automation. Many people in today's world are not equipped to perform any job that will pay them a living wage simple because even the simplest tasks have become highly complicated.

When was the last time you saw a classified ad for a ditch-digger? Or a gandhi dancer?

In the olden days, a man with a strong back, two good arms and a pair of stout legs could carve out a farm for himself in the wilderness and support as many children as his wife could bear. He didn't even have to know how to read and write, he had no dealings with the government, and his financial accounts were so meager he could keep them on his thumbnail.

Furthermore, he didn't have to worry about payments on a $30,000 tractor or costly fertilizers that run into three figures a ton.

In those days, a fellow was able to build and furnish his home, put food on the table and logs in the stove without mortgaging his soul. If he didn't have polished hardwood floors and a pianoforte in the parlor, who cared? Nobody else in the neighborhood did either.

But those days are gone and millions of our fellow citizens have been left virtually without hope of ever sharing in the American dream.

Is it any wonder that when a man like the Rev. Jim Jones comes along and offers the security of a jungle commune to these foundering citizens that they are willing to follow him like sheep? Nothing else has worked in their poor, pinched lives. Maybe this will.

I am sure the vision painted by the Rev. Jones was a beautiful one to the lost souls who frequented his Peoples Temple in San Francisco: The prospect of starting life anew in a lush tropical paradise where a man could earn his way, assist his comrades and praise God.

What their new spiritual leader didn't tell them was that his own personal paranoia was highly contagious and very deadly.

Drive carefully, winter weather here

Winter weather has arrived.

And although it might be nice to look at, snow can sure be a hazard to the motorist. That's why at this time we would like to advise motorists to drive carefully, and to follow these tips offered by the Automobile Club:

•If your car skids on icy pavement, turn the front wheels in the direction the rear wheels are headed. Slowly straighten the front wheels as the car corrects. If the road is slippery, do not downshift or suddenly decelerate. To stop on ice, pump the brake pedal lightly and rapidly.

•Carry a survival kit in the trunk. A survival kit should include a coffee can to radiate warmth from a lighted candle inside, newspapers for insulation when placed next to the skin under clothing and carpet strips for traction under drive wheels. Also, the kit should include a blanket, shovel, flashlight, jumper cables, tire chains, boots, flares, reflectors, tools, first aid kit, sand, a scraper brush and food.

•Keep your car maintained. Check the vehicle's fuel tank, fuel line, fuel pump, fuel filter, automatic choke and carburetor. Also, check the battery, make sure it is fully charged and the terminals are tight and corrosion free. Belts should be checked, too, and if any are worn they should be replaced. Most important, check the anti-freeze strength and levels. Effectiveness is reduced if water is added.

•If you are planning a trip, check the weather reports. It's sensible to wait out any threatening storm.

•Follow other vehicles at a far greater distance on slippery roads.

Stay alert and be conscious of what you are doing. Don't be a statistic.

Enrichment, color and inventiveness

My friend Ralph is a linguaphile who often inveighs against various pernicious influences that are infiltrating the mother tongue.

"One of the more recherche developments has been the substitution, by a certain segment of the population lately emerged from the closet, of the appellation "gay" for various more pejorative terms," Ralph said.

Recherche? I love it when Ralph uses words like that. How often do you hear anyone say "recherche"? William Buckley doesn't say "recherche."

I would say that Ralph is a recherche person, simply because he uses such rare words. That's what "recherche" means, rare or exotic. My dictionary says something recherche is "sought out with care; of studied refinement or elegance; precious."

So what is Ralph saying about homosexuals? He is saying it is elegant and careful of them to call themselves "gay" rather than "queer" or "homo" or other more vulgar terms.

Ralph doesn't object to homosexuals sticking a light-hearted label on their foreheads. He doesn't think they should be called a dirty name. I suspect Ralph agrees with Woody Allen, who said: "I'm a practicing heterosexual...but bisexuality immediately doubles your chances for a date on Saturday night."

Ralph's serious concern is not with anyone's sexuality. It's with the loss of a word.

It used to be that a gay person was joyous. A gay season was full of happy parties. The opposite of gay was sad.

In today's common usage, the opposite of gay is straight.

"The TV reruns of the Astaire-Rogers movie will have to be retitled 'The Straight Divorcee,'" Ralph said. "'The Straight Cabellero' seems to lose something in translation. And future histories of the first atom bomb will have to describe the aircraft which carried it as the Enola Straight.

Why are homosexuals called gay? Most straight people think it's because homosexuals flit around on their tiptoes and giggle a lot. That's nonsense, just one more stereotype. There are as many homosexuals as there are grouchy heterosexuals.

The true reason why homosexuals were first called gay is enough to make a gay grouchy. Not many people realize it, but there is a secondary definition of the word "gay." My dictionary says to be gay also means to be "licentious; dissipated; wanton."

It seems safe to assume that homosexuals were first tagged gay by prejudiced heterosexuals who thought a person couldn't be homosexual without being immoral. A lot of peope still feel that way. There are the same people who worry about hair growing on the palms of their hands.

But I digress. The subject for today is is word usage, not homosexuality.

For many years, to be gay was to be joyous. The "wanton" definition was forgotten. And when so many homosexuals go public these days, they wear the gay label with joy. As far as they are concerned, being gay has nothing to do with being licentious.

Thus a word is lost, and Ralph is sad, which is no longer to do with being licentious.

"I'm all for enrichment, color and inventiveness in language," Ralph said. "But where is the line to be drawn? There should be fewer and rarer solecisms."

Solecisms? Back to the dictionary. A solecism is a "substandard or ungrammatical usage." Sounds stuffy.

There's a simpler way to describe what's bugging Ralph. He loves words. All his life, he has used them carefully, and reverently. Now he is growing older, and words are more important than ever. Words evoke lovely memories, and words describe the way we were.

When waxing nostalgic, Ralph doesn't want to hark back to the days when his heart was young and straight.

Friends are valuable

Whenever I Call You "Friend". Ken Loggins and Melissa Manchester. Milk Money Music and Rumanian Pickleworks, 1978.

Whenever I call you "Friend"
I begin to think I understand
Anywhere we are
You and I have always been Ever and ever
I see myself within your eyes
And that's all I need to show me why
Everything I do
Will always take me home to you ever and ever
'N now I know my life has given me
More than memories
Day by day
We can see
In every moment there's a reason to carry on Sweet love's showin' us a heavenly light
Never seen such a beautiful sight
See love glowin' on us every night
I know forever we'll be doin' it
Whenever I call you "Friend"
I believe I've come to understand Everywhere we are
You and I were meant to be Forever and ever
I think about the times to come
Knowin' I will be the lucky one
And ever our love will last
I always want to call you "Friend"

When I was in high school, one of my older brothers was married. He and his young bride were "exiled" to a small town in Southern Ohio to embark upon their new life. They were young, they were broke, it was David's first sales territory.

They had had to cut the cord from family and friends and strike out on their own. We all did that subsequently, but at the time, I was 18 and very impressionable. At 16, everything has a slightly dramatic aura about it. Then, their first visit home, David's laughing about how they were each other's only and best friend. It just wasn't easy creating a new universe. And so, they found themselves gravitating even more towards one another in order to compensate for the lack of the larger community.

It struck home later on, then, when it happened to me, that you tend not to look upon the partner in your relationship as "Friend" until the time comes that it becomes essential that you do so. I suppose we surround our two somes with such a conglomerate of acquaintances and activities that we often forget how we started – probably as friends.

There was our year in Toledo. Graduate school for Rich, part-time jobs for me. Little money, lots of Kool-Aid and hot dogs and a tiny little bungalow that was so poorly heated that we had to wear gloves to get our clothes out of the closet in the morning. We didn't accumulate many outside friends that year. We played a lot of canasta and made a baby in our spare time. We were each other's best friend.

Calling your partner "Friend" is perhaps the most flattering and meaningful expression of love that you can bestow. It takes you back to the nucleus of your relationship, before other factors entered in. It takes you back to the time you caught each other's eye and unburdened your soul to someone who was sure to understand. To the time you held hands and weren't afraid to kiss in the grocery store.

What is it about the routine of being together that sometimes makes adversaries out of friends. I suspect that we, by our misinterpretation of love, tend to be possessive towards one another. When we are married, we restrict each other in ways we would never dream of restricting our friends, and all under the guise of love. "I love you," she says, "so you must never, never leave me alone." "What? No more poker parties or fishing trips," he's thinking. "I love you," is his comeback, "so you must never, never stop being supportive. No more talk about visiting that friend in Oklahoma or going back to school, now. Who would scramble my eggs?" Diplomacy is lost in familiarity. And minus sensitivity, so is friendship.

Friends are my most valuable possession. If I were to choose the most important commodity in my life, I would choose them over money. And, my husband is still a good friend above and among the others. I like the line in this song that says: "I see myself within your eyes..." I think that's what you do in love. The love or friendship you feel towards the other turns out to be a reflection of that which is best in yourself.

Nursing home bill approved

After nearly four years of legislative work to revamp the licensing and regulation of nursing homes, the house unanimously approved a minor senate amendment to the bill last week and sent it to the governor for his signature.

The bill spells out the rights of some 45,000 elderly patients in 450 Michigan nursing homes, and is intended to ensure adequate care and reduce fraud and kickbacks in the nursing home industry. The bill also provides tough penalties for violators, including up to a $10,000 fine and a year in prison for ignoring provisions on licensing, false advertising, kickbacks and other abuses.

The key elements of the reform measure are:

–A prohibition against physical, mental and emotional abuse and neglect of patients. The public health department is responsible for seeing that patients' safety is protected.

–Requirements for periodic health department evaluations of health care and good medical treatment.

–Protection of patients' rights, such as their ability to appeal transfers from one home to another, ability to file lawsuits against a home, a say in their medical treatment, investigations of complaints and safety for mail and personal belongings.

–Prohibitions against fraud, kickbacks and misleading advertising.

–Establishment of higher training standards to ensure that skilled professionals are on the job.

–Periodic unannounced state inspections of nursing homes.

This bill provides sweeping reforms of the nursing home industry and is in the best interest of all our elderly patients. It is a stronger bill than I had originally anticipated, and a giant step in protecting rights that have been violated in the past by some unscrupulous nursing home operators.

Children control wealth

Our economy is in the news a lot these days.

Every time I read of a move by the president to remedy the situation, I say a silent prayer: "Please, God, don't let him borrow from Amy. We're not that desperate."

People who have never borrowed from children could possibly see it as a way out. After all, it is a fact that children control the wealth of this country. But, for those parents who have ever tapped them for a loan, it's an experience one never forgets.

It was children who first initiated some of the loan expressions we have come to know and fear. Expressions like: "I'll break both of your legs," "How would you like a cement overcoat?" and "I understand you have a mother in Jersey."

I had a neighbor once who fell upon hard times and had to withdraw $700 from her son's savings account. The kid had a wire service for a mouth. No group was too small to enlighten with all the intimate details and confidences surrounding the loan and the repayment. One night he came into a cocktail party in his pajamas, went over to his mother, kissed her lightly on both cheeks and announced loudly, "Noon tomorrow."

Somehow, it seemed cruel when you stopped to consider that the $700 was the first payment to the orthodontist on the kid's overbite.

You never really realize how much wealth a child can accrue until you stop to consider these facts:

(a) A child does not pay for room, board, medical expenses, entertainment, charitable contributions, education, clothing, travel or herbal shampoo;

(b) He gets an allowance for breathing;

(c) Grandparents conspire to make him or her independently wealthy before the age of six;

(d) As soon as he is able to unclench his fist, he places a pocket-size computer in it and becomes a major lending institution.

Frankly, I'm worried about the president's wage insurance policy where people with wage increases that are held below 7 percent in a given year would get a tax rebate if inflation rose more than 7 percent in the same year.

The kids in the treehouses aren't going to like that. And if they're not happy, every adult in this country with an outstanding debt could be in big trouble.

Charlevoix ponders historical museum

Looking forward to the development of an historical museum, the Charlevoix Historical Society is studying fields of interest which should be considered in collection, preservation, and display of historical material.

Members and friends of the society are urged to attend the monthly meeting Dec. 5 at 8 p.m. in the Community Room of the First State Bank to offer their suggestions as to the kind of museum that is ultimately desired, and how the first development steps may be achieved with the resources at hand.

One function of an historical museum is to tell the story of the area which it serves, especially to portray the unique features which render it distinctive from the other areas. Of immediate concern is organization of an archive room where written records, pictures, and other memorabilia may be field, preserved, and made available for historical research.

In order to stimulate interest in local history, "show and tell" presentations are encouraged at all meetings of the Historical Society. In many cases they lead to more detailed investigations of historical events and fill gaps in the record.

Over 50 people will sing in Christmas Cantata Dec. 3

A Community Choir of more than 50 voices will present the Christmas Cantata, "His Love Reaching", at the Assembly of God Church off M-66 at 8 p.m. Sunday under the sponsorship of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

Written William and Gloria Gaither and Ronald Huff, the cantata tells not only the Christmas story but of the ministry of Jesus in song.

Steven Stargardt, vocal teacher in the Charlevoix schools, who is directing the cantata said "This is a lighter style of cantata designed for easy listening. The composition of the choir with its wide range of voices will make it a very fine musical presentation which we hope everyone will come to hear".

The choir, composed of members of various choirs in the community plus people who just like to sing, has been rehearsing since mid-November in preparation for the presentation of the cantata as a community event to usher in the holiday season.

The sponsoring organization, the Charlevoix Ministerial Association, has extended an invitation to the residents of the area to attend the concert on Sunday evening. A carol-sing will follow with the congregation joining the choir in singing all the familiar songs of the holiday season.

Rayders finish 16-3, share conference title

If Toni Felter could have looked into a crystal ball before the start of the girls basketball season, she might have found it difficult to believe that her squad would finish with a 16-3 record – 12-2 in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference and a share of the title.

Afterall, last year the Rayders were 4-10 in conference play. And this year Mrs. Felter was starting three sophomores.

But the sophomores – Melinda Klooster, Melanie Kerridge and Teresa Noirot – didn't play like sophomores. The sophomore jitters Mrs. Felter feared, never materialized. Instead they played with the calm expected of upperclassmen. And there were six seniors on the team and one junior to provide leadership and experience. The result was a 16-3 season.

"I thought we would have a winning season, but I sure didn't expect this," Mrs. Felter said.

The Rayders will take their impressive record into the Class C district at Onaway. Charlevoix drew a first round bye and will play East Jordan on Thursday. The winner of that game will play in the final on Saturday.

Two keys to the Rayder success have been their ability to play as a team and to stay healthy, Mrs. Felter said.

"There is no individualism on this team," she said. "They play as a team. We always seem to get 10 to 12 assists a game."

The only injury that has hampered the Rayders this year has been Chris Lehman's wrist injury. She sat out last week's victory over Petoskey, but will be available for the district tournament.

Charlevoix could have used Lehman against Petoskey. The Rayders got in early foul trouble. Petoskey grabbed a 14-7 first quarter lead, but Charlevoix jumped in front, 23-22, at halftime.

The Rayders started pulling away late in the third quarter and finally built the margin to 10 points as the game ended, 53-43.

Klooster scored 21 points in the game to win the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference scoring title. Sherri Selissen, who won the title last year, added 13 points. Cindy Okerlund had 14 points for Petoskey.

For the district tournament, Mrs. Felter has called up two players from the JV team, Lisa Sandahl and Lisa Pischner. The JV team ended the year with a victory over Petoskey, 35-25.

Melinda Klooster wins scoring title

Melinda Klooster, a sophomore center on Charlevoix's girls basketball team, has won the Michigan-Huron Shores conference scoring title.

Klooster finished with 305 points in 14 conference games for an average of 21.7. It was her inside scoring punch that helped the Rayders post a fine 12-2 conference record, which was good for a first place tie with St. Ignace.

Twice this year Klooster scored 31 points in a game. One 31 point outburst was against Rogers City when she almost outscored the entire Rogers City team. Charlevoix won that game 64-32. She also scored 31 in a 81-50 rout of Grayling. Cheryl Pence holds the school record for most points in a game with 38.

Only once during the season was the opposition able to hold Klooster under 11 points, and that was against Grayling when she tallied eight points in a 35-32 win.

Including non-conference games, Klooster finished the regular season with 397 points in 19 games for a 20.8 average.

Sherri Selissen finished the conference season with 161 points for an 11.5 average.

Grapplers debut Thursday

The Charlevoix Rayder wrestling team will open its 1978-79 season Thursday at Petoskey

Only 17 boys are out for wrestling this year, a far cry from last season when 59 boys tried out

Although the team will be "lean" in numbers, Coach Norm Probert says the quality is there The Rayders will be led by seniors Dennis Whitley and Dave Golovich, junior Mark Drenth and sophomores Don Mol and Scott Golovich - all lettermen.

Probert said some weight divisions will be manned freshmen and non-letter winners, since the team "lacks manpower." He said Gregg Whitley, Joe Borths, Mickey Belfy, Ken Wojan, Jeff Landon, Bill Trost, Kevin Whitley and Lester Umlor have looked good in practice.

Probert, who is starting his ninth year as coach of the grapplers, expects Petoskey to be the power in this year's Michigan-Huron Shores Conference race. He said Rogers City will also challenge for the top spot.

The Rayders were hurt by graduation, and the unexpected loss of Andy Keller and Lee DeMitchell (One was injured and one moved).

After their opener on Thursday, the Rayders will host the fifth annual Frosh-Soph wrestling tournament here on Saturday with squads from 21 northern Michigan schools scheduled to enter the first tourney of the current season, according to Coach Norm Probert. The event will open at 10:30 a.m. and continue throughout the day and evening.

Entered in the tournament, open only to the younger wrestlers, are Oscoda, Alpena, Petoskey, Gaylord, Grayling, Coleman, Kalkaska, Elk Rapids, Boyne City, Mancelona, Glen Lake, Traverse City, St. Ignace, Manistique, Manistee Catholic, Benzie Central, Onaway, Cadillac, Shelby, Comstock Park, Pine River and the host team, Charlevoix.

Oscoda is the defending champ.

The tournament will feature two ex-wrestlers from Charlevoix, Ron Bindi and Terry Drew, who are now coaches at Coleman and Boyne City high schools, respectively.

A coaches clinic will be held in conjunction with the tournament. According to Probert, anyone who is interested in helping out at the tournament should contact the school.

On Dec. 16, Charlevoix will host its holiday invitational. In addition, the Rayders will host the Class C District in February - and the middle school invitational in March. Counting all four tournaments, over 1,000 boys will wrestle here this year.

Besides two former Charlevoix grapplers coming here as coaches, two will also come here as referees, John Ozga and Gordon Skeel.

The tournament is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. A family ticket which is good for all day will cost $2.50.

Mark Russell and Jeff Drenth

Drenth, Russell named all-state

Jeff Drenth and Mark Russell, Charlevoix's top two cross country runners this fall, have been named to the Class C All-State Cross Country team.

The announcement was made in Lansing recently at the Michigan Intercollegiate Track Coaches Association clinic. Earlier in the year, Drenth and Russell were chosen to the all-conference and all-region squads.

All-state runners are selected by a formula which combines the times of team runners with those of individual runners. Drenth finished seventh in team times and ninth in compiled times while Russell was 12th in team times and 15th in compiled times.

The two seniors led the cross country team to an 8-0 dual meet record and five first place finishes in eight invitationals the Rayders participated in. The Rayders won the Michigan-Huron shores Conference and the Class C regional. They took fifth in the Class C final.

Boys basketball season gets underway Tuesday

The Charlevoix Rayder boys basketball team will open the 1978-79 season Tuesday at Gaylord.

Charlevoix will host the Cheboygan Chiefs on its home floor later in the week.

Coach Dave Moyer will be opening the season with only two regulars from last season, Pat Schmidt, 6-0 senior and one of the top scorers in the league last season, and Bob Plumm, 6-3 senior. Both are forwards.

Lettermen will include three other seniors, Kevin Kratt, 5-10, and Gilbert Noirot, 5-11, both guards, and Todd Williams, 6-1 forward.

Other players will come from J-V ranks. The list includes juniors Scott Morgan, 5-11 guard; Gerard Doan, 6-2, and Ken Otmanowski, 6-5, centers; John Grooters and Jeff Peters, both 6-1 forwards.

Coach Moyer said the team's strong point is quickness. He added, however, that they are an inexperienced outfit.

As for the strength in the Michigan-Huron Shores League, Moyer lists Gaylard, Cheboygan, Petoskey and Boyne City, though not necessarily in that order.

FREEDOM OF WORSHIP IS ONE OF YOUR BASIC RIGHTS

In any free society, there must be two distinct but not conflicting sets of laws inherent in the Constitution by which it is governed. The first must clearly define what the people may not do, and the second should just as plainly record what they must not be prevented from doing by any agency of government. This second list must include among other things the right to assemble peaceably, to express their opinions without fear orally or in print, and to worship God according to the dictates of each individual conscience. The surest way to retain these rights is to exercise them. Attend the Church of your own choice; and give thanks to God for being allowed to do so, in your own particular way.

Meet Charlevoix

...Jim Mitchell

By PEG OHLE

Jim Mitchell is an enthusiastic gymnast. He has been working in the field since he was a young teenager and most recently has been teaching gymnastic techniques in the Charlevoix Community Education program. Now he is starting a private gymnastics club in Charlevoix. This week he tells the Courier about this little-known form of exercises.

COURIER: Gymnastics seem to be becoming more popular. Why?

MITCHELL: The popularity seems to be a product of the space age. We now do less work and have less physical exercise and more free time. Gymnastic skills are the most graceful of all and can be applied to other sports. They help with posture, body awareness, and mind and body control. Gymnastics can help everyone from pre-schoolers to adults.

COURIER: How many students have you had in the Community Education program?

MITCHELL: About 170, including pre-schoolers, age groups, teenagers, and adults.

COURIER: Why are you starting a private gymnastics school?

MITCHELL: Because of the lack of facilities in the public school system, and also because in a private club there can be whole family involvement.

COURIER: Tell us about your gymnastics school.

MITCHELL: It will be called the Charlevoix School of Gymnastics, and classes will be held at the Assembly of God Church Annex at 203 East Upright Street. We will get our equipment from the Wolverine Summer Camps, and the Cathedral Room of the church will house all the Olympic Events equipment. Classes will start Dec. 4. We will be able to handle a maximum of 214 students. The cost will be $1.50 an hour, and the length of the classes will vary according to the age group. For instance, pre-schoolers, three to five years old, will have 30 or 45 minute classes; children five to 12 will have 60 minute classes; and adults will have 90 minute classes. In addition, all age-group students will receive open workout passes which will allow them to attend open workouts on a rotating schedule. The gym will be open for them on Friday evenings and Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

COURIER: When will the classes be held?

MITCHELL: Six days a week, so students will have some say about when they want to attend. The pre-school classes will have a maximum of six students, the age-group classes will have a maximum of nine students, and the adult classes will have a maximum of ten students. All classes will receive instruction on first aid, safety, terminology, and equipment.

COURIER: How long will the class terms be?

MITCHELL: Three months. The winter term will run from December through February, the spring term from March through May, the summer term from June through August, and the fall term from September through November. We plan on offering discount rates for the spring term.

COURIER: How can people register for the classes?

MITCHELL: There's a registration booth at the Church Annex, where they can register from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., or they may call me at 547-2505.

COURIER: You're going to have a gymnastics demonstration soon, aren't you?

MITCHELL: Yes, on Dec. 9 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the high school gym. There will be about 200 gymnastic students performing, along with skilled gymnasts. It will be held in cooperation with the Community Education Department. Right now, I would like to thank Ray Fortin of Community Ed for all the help he has given me and the gymnastic program.

COURIER: For the unitiated, tell us something about gymnastic events.

MITCHELL: There are four Olympic events: vaulting horse, uneven parallel bars, balance beams, and floor exercises. Men and boys compete on parallel bars, still rings, pommel horses, vaulting horses, floor exercises, etc. Those not involved think gymnastics are rather feminine. That's not so. Gymnastics take much body control, strength, and endurance. A good gymnast can play football, basketball, baseball, or any other sport.

COURIER: Why are gymnastics good for girls?

MITCHELL: It's a graceful sport where girls can express their feelings. Gymnastics help with body posture and body awareness. Dance movements are often incorporated.

COURIER: What would a one-hour class consist of?

MITCHELL: About 15 minutes of warmup and stretching to build up the muscles, then 45 minutes of instruction on the bars, beam, floor, and vault. If there's more time, they can work by themselves.

COURIER: Why aren't gymnastics more of a high school sport?

MITCHELL: The Michigan Athletic Association has put such restrictions on the use of gyms that not enough time is available to gymnasts to make it productive. However, most A and B schools do have gymnastic programs.

COURIER: What are the age limits on gymnastics?

MITCHELL: People can learn gymnastics at any age. Body condition and frame of mind determine how long it takes.

COURIER: What are your qualifications to teach gymnastics?

MITCHELL: I went to John F. Kennedy High School in suburban Detroit, which was then considered the gymnastics capital of Michigan. We would get crowds as big as football crowds out for gymnastics tournaments. Kennedy was high school state gymnastic champion for four years, and I earned bronze, silver, and gold medals in state competition. I remember working six or seven days a week until my fingers bled. After high school I went to Northern Michigan University on a gymnastics scholarship and competed for the two years I was there. I was an NCAA small college qualifier on the horizontal bar. After college I worked with Diana Mason in Petoskey setting up her gymnastics program, then went to the Lansing Gymnastics center. After that I traveled around the country meeting gymnastic coaches. I'm trying to get some girls' gymnastics scholarships, one for girls who can't afford college and one for outstanding gymnasts. Later I taught at the Wolverine Summer Camps. I'm a member of the Michigan Association for Gymnastics, the United States Gymnastics Federation, and the United States Gymnastics Safety Association

'Hospital family' to sell cookbook

By FRAN MARTIN

Good things to eat are a part of the holiday season.

That is why those who have compiled "Rx Tender Lovin' Cookin'", a cookbook jam-packed with recipes, have chosen this time to launch the sale of the book that includes some 450 recipes plus helpful hints.

The cookbook has been compiled by the "hospital family", i.e., those people directly associated with the hospital, doctors, doctor's wives, the nursing and supporting staffs and the Women's Guild of the Charlevoix Area Hospital. In the book will be found sections for appetizers and Hors d'ouevres, soups, salads, entrees, casseroles, vegetables, breads and desserts including cookies, cakes and pies. There is also a section of helpful hints always appreciated by a cook.

The sale of the book will be launched at a Salad and Casserole Luncheon and Bazaar to be held at the American Legion Post Home at 106 E. Garfield Ave. on Wednesday, Dec. 6. Serving will begin at 11 a.m. and continue until 1:30 p.m.

Funds realized from the sale of the luncheon and the sale of "Rx T.L.C." will go to the "Hospital Family's" pledge to the Charlevoix Area Hospital's Expansion and Renovation Project.

Mrs. Audrey Egler, general chairman of the cookbook committee, said: "We have quite a commitment to meet in our pledge to the construction program. That is why we have devoted the time and effort to collect and compile the 450 recipes into what we feel is an excellent collection of recipes contributed by some of the community's best cooks."

Serving with Ms. Egler on the cookbook committee are Ms. Madelyn Heise, Esther Carey, Carolyn Snizik, Shelly Warner, Roberta Scholey, Sandy Pitcher, Marguerite Ikens and Cecy Richardson.

Following the luncheon and bazaar, the cookbook will be on sale at the Showcase.

MS. AUDREY EGLER (left), chairman of the cookbook committee, shows the completed edition of "Rx Tender Lovin' Cookin' " to Jill Stewart of Charlevoix. The cookbook which features 450 recipes contributed by members of the Charlevoix Area Hospital "family", will go on sale at the Salad and Casserole Luncheon and Bazaar to be held at the American Legion post home Dec 6 (Photo by Fran Martin)

Campers expected to give state parks cold shoulder

Winter campers are expected to give state-run campgrounds the cold shoulder and use Michigan's private parks in record numbers again this season, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Luxuries such as heated shower and toilet buildings, plus open park stores and game rooms were the attractions that lured winter campers away from state parks and to private campgrounds," stated Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager.

"Most private parks responding to an Auto Club survey reported an average 16 percent more business last winter compared to the previous season," Ratke said, "while state park campgrounds open last winter registered a 24 percent drop in campers over the same period."

This season, winter campers in Michigan can select from 109 private and 56 state parks.

State park campgrounds offer only at-site electricity and water from central wells. Only a limited number of campsites and park roads are kept plowed.

"Most of the new business at private campgrounds last winter was cross-country skiers and snowmobilers," Ratke said. "This fall, many private park owners are making an effort to coax those customers back."

Thirty-three of the winterized private facilities on Auto Club's 1978-79 guide list adjacent groomed snowmobile or cross-country ski trails in state and national forests and two sell and service snowmobiles.

"Six parks have instituted guided snowmobile safaris on weekends and one near Copper Harbor in the Upper Peninsula sponsors snowmobile obstacle course races with cash prizes for best times," Ratke noted.

Cross-country skiers can rent equipment at five parks and enter an 11-mile-long race or participate in family oriented course and programs at two others. Skiers at a private park near Gaylord can choose between in-park downhill or cross-country programs.

Private parks on Auto Club's guide charge an average $5.40 nightly for sites with electricity, which are available at 103 campgrounds listed. Prices range from $1 to $10. State parks listed charge $4 per night for a site with electricity and $2 for a primitive site. In addition, campers must purchase a $5 annual or $1 daily use permit.

While shower buildings at state parks are closed, heated shower buildings are open at 81 private parks and game rooms are available at 41. There are 26 parks with at-site sewage and 66 with disposal stations. Forty-nine parks keep stores open all year.

"Campers who want to avoid the hassle of pulling trailers north on slippery roads can store them at 79 parks or rent trailers at 11," Ratke said.

Regional commission to co-host grant seminar

The Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission will co-host a seminar for community officials interested in applying for grants under the Small Cities Discretionary Program, a special category of the Community Development Block Grant Program.

Staff from the Detroit area office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development will explain grant guidelines, answer questions, and lend assistance.

The seminar will be held on Wednesday Dec. 6, 1978 at the Kings Table, in Houghton Lake, beginning at 10 a.m.

While there will be no registration fees, persons planning to attend are asked to pre-register by calling Susan Culbertson at (517) 732-3551 so that accomodations may be arranged.

The commission is the region's official comprehensive planning agency, created ten years ago as a joint effort of the 10 counties of Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Leelanau, Manistee, Missaukee and Wexford.

Chaired by Roy Huwes, county commissioner of Manistee, it is composed of representatives of the ten county governing bodies, the ten county planning commissions, and delegates from the urban areas of the region.

Anyone with questions may call Bill Bechtel at the commission offices in Traverse City (616) 946-5922.

All final cut-offs will be the responsibility of one office.

At the time cut-offs are made, the Landlord is to be responsible for final reading before new Renter moves in.

BOARD OF APPEALS

The Board of Appeals convened with Councilmen Porter, Timms, Plumm, Wood, Whitley, and Muma present. Absent: None.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the request presented by William Marme to split his property on Carpenter Street into two lots. Mayor Supernaw stated that he had received a letter from one property owner in the area objecting to the proposed split.

Moved by Alderman Muma and supported by Alderman Plumm to allow William G. Marme to split his property on Carpenter Street into two separate lots provided the deed is reviewed by the City Attorney prior to filing. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Porter, Timms, Plumm, Wood, Whitley, and Muma. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Muma that William Marme be granted a 5' variance of the front yard requirement and an 8' variance of the back yard requirement at his property on Carpenter Street to allow construction of a new house. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Porter, Timms, Plumm, Wood, Whitley, and Muma. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The Board of Appeals resumed the Public Hearing begun on November 6, 1978 regarding the request presented by Jack Begrow, on behalf of Clark Matthews, to rezone Mr. Matthew's property, Lots 8 through 12 inclusive of Newman's Addition to the City, from Marine Commercial to R-4. Mr. Matthews presented a drawing of a four unit multiple dwelling complex that he will construct on the site if the rezoning is approved. Several adjoining property owners, and other members of the General Public present, voiced their objections to the zoning change with the main areas of concern being the need for the City to maintain the remaining areas on Round Lake available for Marine use and the fear that the Board of Appeals would set a precedent by granting the zoning change that would lead to further multiple unit dwellings on the harbor. Other members of the General Public present felt that there is a dislike of spot zoning and Condominium units in general within the City. Tom Ouke, a member of the City Planning Commission, suggested the issue be put on the ballot.

Mayor Supernaw called a five minute recess of the Board.

Following the recess, roll call was again take with all Board of Appeals Members present.

The Board agreed to table any further action regarding the request for rezoning of the Matthews' property in order to allow the petitioners to apply for the necessary variances to construct their project under the existing zoning with the $75.00 filing fee to be waived.

The Board of Appeals adjourned.

City Clerk

Wedding

Bonnie Drost and Dennis Dominic married in quiet ceremony

Bonnie L. Drost of Charlevoix became the bride of Dennis Dominic of Petoskey in a quiet ceremony in the chapel of the Assembly of God church Sat. (Nov. 18) afternoon.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Donald Schorsch in the presence of 30 family members.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Drost, 213 W. Lincoln, Charlevoix.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Robert Dominic and the late Mr. Dominic of 911 Franklin, Petoskey. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of candlelight beige velvet. Of Spanish design, the gown featured a panel of lace from neckline to hem. The same lace and velvet trimmed the chapel length candlelight veil that fell from a seedpearl tiara. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and baby breath.

Mrs. Paul Bradley, sister of the bride served as her only attendant. She wore a pale lavendar mid-calf length dress with a full skirt and a sash that tied at the waist. She wore sprigs of baby breath in her hair and carried a long stem yellow rose.

Best man was Robert Dominic, Jr., brother of the groom, of Alpena.

A dinner reception followed at the Holiday Inn in Petoskey.

The bridegroom is employed at the Kroger store in Petoskey and the bride at the Charlevoix County State Bank.

The couple will reside at 506 W Hurlbut in Charlevoix.

Milliken aide says DNR will cooperate with the Indians on policing area

By TOM DAMMANN

The last days of November witnessed the tentative start of a cooperative effort by the Indian commercial fishermen and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to live together in peace until the thorney Constitutional question of Indian claims to treaty guaranteed unregulated fishing rights is settled by federal courts.

On Nov. 30 the Conservation Committee of the Bay Mills Indian Tribe fined three tribal members $100 for fishing in waters of Lake Michigan closed to Indian commercial fishing by a tribal agreement with Gov. William G. Milliken.

The agreement was engineered Sept. 25 by leaders of the Bay Mills Tribe, the Sault Ste. Marie Tribe of Chippewas and Governor Milliken's attorneys and conservation aides.

Ostensibly, the purpose was to reduce the possibility of confrontation between Indian fishermen and sportsmen who annually fish very heavily for lake trout during the autumn off the northeast shores of Lake Michigan. Simultaneously, Indians from the two Upper Peninsula tribes come down to fish for the same fish with gill nets which have been banned by the DNR.

The Indians claim that their rights to unregulated fishing were reserved in the 1836 Treaty of Washington in which their ancestors ceded to the Federal government a large part of what became the State of Michigan in 1837.

The sportsmen and DNR counter that Indian gill netting is seriously depleting the lake trout population which has been making a comeback in the past 10 years, thanks to a mamouth replanting program executed by the federal and state governments and in part financed by revenues from a special trout stamp sold with Michigan fishing licenses.

Two years ago the Michigan Supreme Court ruled that the Michigan Indian Treaty Rights are still valid. Since then the state has devoted its efforts to defending itself in a suit filed by the Federal Government in behalf of the two tribes seeking to enjoin the state from enforcing its fishing regulations against the Indians.

The suit is currently being tried before Federal District Court Judge Noel P. Fox in Grand Rapids.

Meanwhile, the DNR has assumed a monitoring stance, occasionally citing Indians for minor infractions of marine safety regulations, while awaiting a final federal court ruling, which admittedly may take years

In the interim, it is hoped that the Governor's Agreement will serve as a modus vivendi.

"But the Indians have given up a vast expanse of water and it would require more trained personnel than they have to enforce the agreement:" Kathryn Tierney, Bay Mills Tribal Attorney explained in a telephone interview "It was our understanding that the state would help us police the area. But it has appeared that the Governor, the Attorney General and the DNR are not of one voice, and we've had no help until recently."

Ms Tierney said this put the tribal authorities in a bad light with their members and that many felt they could fish with impunity, and in fact, had strongly urged the lifting of the ban.

According to Daniel Green, attorney for the Sault Ste. Marie Tribe, that tribe actually did threaten to lift the ban.

"The DNR didn't respond to our request so I asked the U.S Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) to monitor the alleged illegal fishing," Arthur Le Blanc, Bay Mills Tribal Chairman revealed, in a telephone interview

It was a BIA officer deputized by the Bay Mills Tribe who cited the three men after encountering them off Elk Rapids. The BIA officer testified at the tribal hearing Thursday

In a telephone conversation, Friday, Governor Milliken's environmental aide, Jonathan Cain acknowledged that there have been some complex interdepartmental problems, but that the DNR will now cooperate with the Indians. He said that a total of 13 affidavits were sent to the two tribes Nov. 16 and that two DNR officers will go to Sault Ste. Marie Dec. 11 and 12 to testify at special tribal hearings

"We welcome this as the first chance the Indians have had to work out a way of existence with the DNR," Ms. Tierney said

Money available to develop, protect and preserve county's shorelands

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

Money is available to develop, protect, and preserve Charlevoix County's shorelands and recreational areas.

That was the message representatives of Charlevoix and Emmet County local governments heard at a meeting in Petoskey Tuesday (Nov. 28) called by the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission.

David Warner, the Traverse City based planner with the regional group, Tim Erwin of the Department of Natural Resources, and Lewis Steinbrecher of Northeast Michigan Council of Governments (NEMCOG), discussed grants available for "Coastal Management" as the workshop meeting was entitled.

The three men explained that the program administered by the DNR's Land Resources Programs Division, and assisted by the two regional agencies, is aimed at helping local units of government -- cities, counties, townships - manage their coastal land resources.

The main areas of concern, they explained, were to protect environmentally sensitive areas, develop recreational and access sites to the lakes, and develop recreational and access sites to the lakes, and develop marinas and ports where appropriate.

The federal grant, which the DNR oversees, amounted to $1,580,000 for the fiscal year 1978-79. Some $233,680 of that is for low-cost construction projects. Another $661,527, is designated for local projects. The balance of the $1.5 million is distributed between administration, technical studies and state statute administration.

The $332,307 ear-marked for "State Statute Administration" was explained as money to be used to assist states in applying laws and regulations already on the books for the protection of such valuable natural resources as wet lands, sand dunes, submerged lands, according to Erwin.

Local projects which have received funds under the Coastal Management Program include Charlevoix County's Beaver Island Lighthouse Restoration Project which was carried out this past summer. The Charlevoix School system, the Michigan History Division, interested citizens and the funds from the Coastal Management Program were used in concert.

Types of projects range from a grant to the city of Sault Ste. Marie to conduct a shoreline study and industrial feasibility study; funds for the City of Escanaba to preserve a public beach threatened by erosion, and funds to Harrison Township to develop a public park along Lake St. Clair.

The workshop covered all the details of grant proposal qualifications, but Warner and his colleagues emphasized that it is their duty to be available to local officials to work out potential projects under this and other programs.

GYM POLICY EXPLAINED

The person who called "Hotline" about the girls' volleyball team being discriminated against is misinformed and has never contacted the school to find the proper answer to concerns mentioned in the article.

The following are the facts:

1. The girls basketball has had priority for use of the high school gym since school started Sept. 6th, and will continue to have that priority all through tournament play.

2. Boys' basketball teams (freshman, junior varsity and varsity) started practice on Nov. 13th to prepare for the first contest on Dec. 5th. This allows our boys' teams three weeks of practice prior to the first game.

3. The first scheduled freshman boys' basketball game was cancelled due to lack of practice time for that particular team.

4. The wrestling team also started practice on Nov. 13th, but is limited to practice in the high school study hall because of lack of gym space.

5. The girls' volleyball team has been conditioning but will not be in actual practice (nets, etc.) until the week of Dec. 4th, when the elementary school gym becomes available. A full practice schedule for volleyball will not start until members of the girls' basketball team have had an opportunity to try out for the volleyball team. SPECIAL NOTE: The first scheduled girls' volleyball game is not until Jan. 6, 1979. Ample practice time will be available prior to Jan. 6th.

6. The middle school gym has been in use since September by the middle school girls' basketball teams.

7. The elementary school gym has been utilized since early fall by an after school gymnastics program and will be until Dec. 1st.

In conclusion, I feel that Athletic Director Dale Rurge, the coaching staff of Charlevoix Public Schools, and City Recreation Director Ike Boss have worked very cooperatively in gaining maximum use from our school gym.

Fourteen anti-nuclear protesters to be arraigned for trespassing

Fourteen anti-nuclear power protesters, charged with trespassing on Consumers Power Company property at the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant Saturday, are to be arraigned Tuesday morning in the 90th District Court in Charlevoix before Judge David Fershee.

The protesters - some wearing buttons proclaiming "It's better to be active today than radioactive tomorrow" -- were arrested by Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater after refusing to leave Big Rock Point.

Consumers Power officials had repeatedly asked the protesters to leave, after the protesters had crossed a chain link barrier at the plant's entrance on US-31 and started walking down the access road leading to the power plant

When the 14 protesters refused to leave Lasater was called. After identifying himself, Lasater arrested the protesters. They were taken to the sheriff's department, booked, and then released on personal recognizance bonds.

"They seemed to be very happy that the sheriff had arrested them," Lasater said. "And that's a first for us.

"We knew they wanted to be arrested beforehand. So we were prepared for it. There were no surprises. They were

A CONSUMERS POWER official warns protestors that they are trespassing and if they do not leave they will be arrested. The protesters, carrying a styrofoam monkey wrench to "dismantle" the plant with, listen, but decide to stay on Consumers property and proceed with the march. The sheriff and state police are summoned and the protesters are taken to the sheriff's department and booked.

Yes, there is a Santa Claus in Boyne Falls

By SARA GAY DAMMAN

In Boyne Falls there lives a man who is almost Santa Claus.

Lewis Upton, 69, makes wooden toys which are sturdy and attractive and which he sells for little more than cost.

Four and seven-car wooden train sets which stretch out over several feet, are marked for less than $10.00 a set. Bath tub-toy sized paddle wheel boats, which work, sell for $2.50. Tractors, airplanes, trucks, child-sized-chairs and tables, and sundry other toys are priced equally low.

Upton is a long and lanky man who retired in 1973 from Consumers Power Company in Boyne City.

He had been working with wood for years, and upon retirement decided to take wood work up as a serious hobby.

By 7:30 every morning Upton has donned his coveralls and is in his wood shop, next to his house, producing toys and other wooden objects, which he either sells for next to nothing or gives away.

"When I retired I promised myself that I'd have a hobby that would support itself," he explains.

Upton does not want to make a profit, nor does he want to be pressured to do any more than he wants.

Opening a drawer in a jewelry chest, each drawer meticulously lined in plush red felt, he explains, "I spent about 30 hours on this."

The price tag is $30.

But lest last minute Christmas shoppers deluge Upton with orders, he warned:

"The only deadline I work for is the Methodist Church Bazaar in October.

"If someone wants something and I have it, good. Otherwise, if people tell me what they want for next Christmas by this January, I can probably fill their request."

Upton uses his small profits to make more wooden toys which he gives to the church.

"I give them about $400 to $500 in toys each year."

He smiles shyly, "We have to support our church. We have a congregation of 28 members. It is a little church but we are still hanging on."

Why does Upton work so diligently on a hobby?

"If I say I'm not going to work today and just sit here in my easy chair, I'm on needles and pins.

"Besides, I've got to get out of my wife's way," he laughs. "She's Village Treasurer as well as Church Treasurer."

He seems to find his popularity amusing.

"Recently some people from Florida stopped by. They ended up spending $200. That takes a lot of toys at my prices. Before they left they were stuffing toys in every part of their car."

But, by early December there were few items left for sale on Upton's small display table.

As he and a visitor were talking the phone rang. His wife Gladys came around the corner. "Are there any 18 inch doll cribs left?"

"There's one," he pointed to one sitting by the table.

"A lady from Walloon Lake wants it," Mrs. Upton took the crib into the house.

"We have to hide things people want," Upton explained.

"Yesterday I finished four cribs," he said as he went to work drilling holes for dowels in a child's chair. "Now they are all gone."

But this hard working retiree refuses to be hurried.

"I make what I feel like making. If people give me enough time I'll accept their orders.

"You must emphasize that. This is my hobby. I refuse to work night and day."

He may avoid pressure, but he does turn out a lot of toys. Upton guesses that this year he has made 75 jewelry chests, 36 sets of trains (both four and seven cars each), 50 to 60 doll cribs in three different sizes, 50 to 60 high chairs, and uncounted trucks, tractors, airplanes, paddle boats, not to mention bird feeders ("I had thought I'd covered northern Michigan with those, but orders keep coming") and special orders such as Nativity Scene "barns" as he calls them.

He said that after Christmas he will produce en mass 3,000 wheels for trucks or other parts of toys, which he will assemble later.

"Yes, I get bored with that," he admitted. "And I hate sanding," he said with vehemence, as he nodded toward a curtained off section of his workshop where everything was covered with fine saw dust.

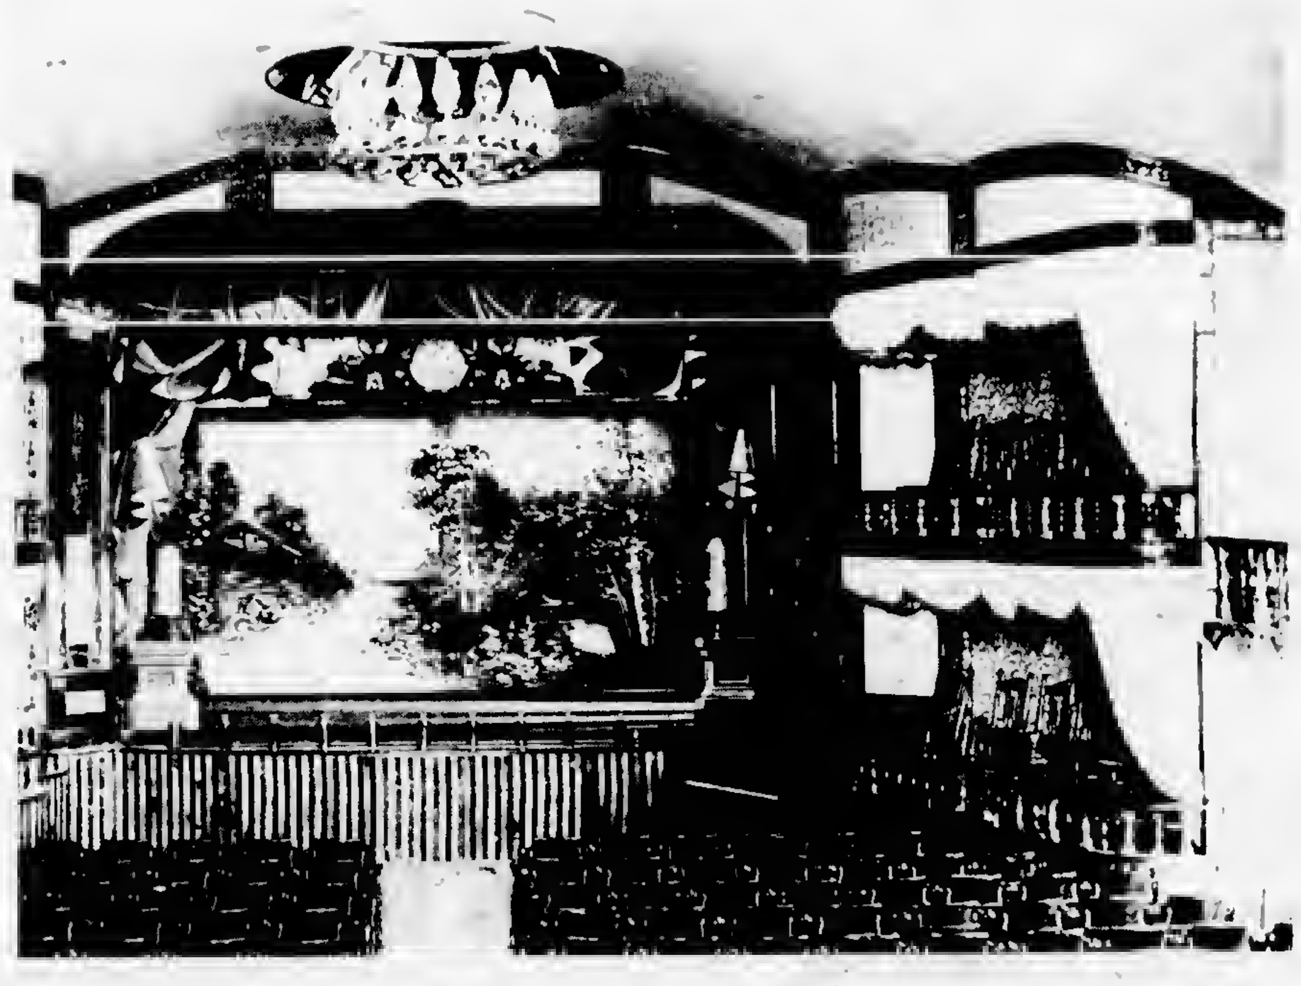
And he says he has his frustrations.

Holding a long pine board, the wood worker pointed to numerous knots. "The quality of wood is going down. Good wood is becoming scarce. Look, I've got $100 worth of knots. I'm going to have to start using the knots."

"But I don't know what else I could do that would give me as much satisfaction," he added.

"Satisfaction, that is what it is all about, after all," the toy maker repeated with his perpetual sparkling smile as he helped this visitor carry off a collection of trains, boats and doll's cribs.

Lewis Upton



THIS IS THE INTERIOR of the Lewis Grand Opera House, which Hampton recalls from his early days in Charlevoix. It was located on Bridge Street at the channel.

Hampton recalls the 1900's in Charlevoix

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of articles taken from Will E. Hamptons "Memories of Charlevoix the Beautiful Six Decades Ago", written in 1955 when Hampton was an octogenarian. In this installment, he is writing about the 1900's.)

On the west side of Bridge Street, starting from the river, came the Lewis "Grand" Opera House, with two store places on the ground floor, occupied by various firms at different times, and for several years by a saloon next to the river by Harry Measlor. The Jewelry store of C.F. Bellinger, a one-story building as a meat market, one I do not recall, then in the brick building on the corner, the dry goods store of Mason and Berdan, two maiden ladies, Lottie Mason and Effa Berdan.

On the corner in the next block, the hardware store of L.B. Bartholomew; the block was solid to the alley, one being a drug store run by, at the time, a party whose name I do not recall, but always called the "Ivy" drug store, then Frank Wood's barber shop, with baths in connection. A framed building next, owned by G.W. Crouter and occupied later by a hardware store for a time. I am not sure as to the owner of the building across the alley, where the Levinson store was for so many years, but Horace Harsha (?) owned and had his real estate office where the Charlevoix State Savings Bank now is, and a lady had a variety store just north of the Harsha property, or south, am not certain.

Also do not recall what was between and up to the County Bank on the corner. Fred Smith was cashier, and Archie Buttars, at one time Lieutenant Governor, was principal stockholder, with John Nichols. On the corner of the next block, where the drug store now is, was a boarding house, and from there to the following corner, where there was a small hotel, the buildings were occupied by various persons at different times, but there was a millinery in between, and Harrison Bedford, who was connected with the Carpenter & Bartholomew general store, had a shoe store after he left that organization, where he ran the shoe department. I am not certain as to just what businesses were in the block between Mason and Antrim, but one was a furniture store owned by S.M. See, father of Charles and Lou See.

When the roller skating craze hit the land, there was a big rink on the corner of Bridge and Belvedere that ran for several years.

The Charlevoix Lumber Co. was in business, with a mill, at the same location as at present, the principal owners being the Nichols family and relatives. Some pine came in, but it was mostly maple and beech, and hemlock. In winter they used to ice the roads, with the result that enormous loads of logs could be hauled by one team, and I recall that the load of all loads was stopped on Bridge Street one winter day while it was being photographed. Doubtless a picture is still in existence in some home.

Next to lumbering, fishing was a prominent source of revenue in the early days of my residence. When the season was at its height, it was not uncommon to see a tug come in with its decks filled with whitefish, or trout, to the gunwales. Price was about six cents per pound. John McNeil on the north side, and Geick C. Geiken on the south side of the lake, were the largest producers of the finny gold. The Booth Packing Company moved their headquarters from Petoskey to Charlevoix soon after I came to town and Olaf Mordrum became a valued resident of the city.

The opening of the upper cut to permit lake boats to extend their routes to East Jordan and Boyne City created a steady stream of shipping, and business for a half dozen tugs, as practically all of the carriers were schooners, most of them three-masters. It was a stirring sight, when a stiff southwester was blowing, to see two or three tugs racing out and into the whitecaps to intercept the incoming vessels off Fisherman's Island and the South Point, as the first one alongside got the tow. And when adverse winds blew for several days, it was a frequent sight to see a half dozen or more schooners tied up at local wharfs, often five alongside. Pictures of this scene I have seen the past year. Among tugs I can recall were the Martin, Capt. Tim Smith; the Taylor, Capt. Taylor; the Parmelee; Avery, Capt. "Port" Partridge; Wheeler, Capt. Roaver (sp?) The Parmelee was a fishing tug, but did towing, as did the Geiken, a fishing tug normally.

Need a X-Mas tree?

There's a shortage of Christmas trees this year but not at the Texaco Station where Big Brothers-Big Sisters Charlevoix County will be selling Christmas trees. Hours of the sale will be from 5 to 8 p.m. weekdays, 10 to 6 p.m. Saturdays and 12 noon to 6 p.m. Sundays. The sale will continue until all of the trees are sold.

The trees will be mostly scotch pine and spruce and are in excellent condition. The group is asking $7, $8 and $9 donations for the trees.

CHIP still has openings for workshop on stress

Dealing with the "Stresses of Life" is the subject of Charlevoix's CHIP Counseling Center's workshop, which has openings for Dec. 9 from 9:30 to 4 p.m.

The stress workshop is part of CHIP's continuing program of "preventative mental health."

Open to anyone in the area, these workshops are led by the CHIP Center's staff counselors. The workshops take a positive approach toward coping with problems shared by most people.

One reason stress was chosen as the focus for the Nov. 9th workshop was because the forthcoming Holiday Season is often a time of stress for many people.

CHIP Center Director Oren Schroeder observed that seasonal stress is common.

"As with a lot of stress, seasonal stress is self-induced. We feel pressure to put out a large amount of money for gifts. It is a time when some people experience loneliness because they cannot be with their families."

Participants in the all day workshop will learn to predict times of probable stress, identify types of stress and analyze methods for handling stress.

Participants will be able to see the ways they are currently handling stress and learn new and more effective methods.

Those interested in attending the Stress Workshop are asked to call the CHIP Counseling Center before this Thursday Dec. 7. Limited to 30 people, the workshop fee is $15.00.

Anti-nuclear protesters with Big Rock in background.

Group got what they wanted

The anti-nuclear power protesters, who peacefully demonstrated at the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant Saturday afternoon, got what they wanted: Attention.

Even before 14 protesters were arrested for trespassing on Consumers Power Company property, enough news had been generated, and printed, to make their mission a success.

In a crusade like this, the media plays an important factor, whether or not it even favors the cause. All the media has to do is publicize the event, make people aware of it, and it has performed a function. A function which is mighty important to a group, like the anti-nuclear power protesters, who needs to get a message out and make people aware of what their doing.

There's a good chance that people in this area are more curious about nuclear power, especially at Big Rock Point, since Saturday's protest. With articles about the protest in various papers staring you in the face, it's hard not to notice. And you'll probably hear more from the anti-nuclear protesters in the future, too.

They say this is just the beginning. And even Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater might agree.

"I got the impression that this was just practice," he said after the demonstration.

Regardless, study up on nuclear power – if you haven't already - and draw your own conclusions.

Heated debate shaping up

It is ironic that one of the most heated debates in recent medical history is shaping up on the heels of one of mankind's most astounding medical victories: Eradication of dreaded smallpox.

For the past 10 years, the World Health Organization (WHO) has enlisted the help of 700 advisers from 55 countries and almost 200,000 national health officers and volunteers to help wipe out the ugly little virus which has made its habitat in man's body since the dawn of time.

WHO's scientists worked doggedly, keeping detailed records on the outbreak of the disease, isolating victims, vaccinating anyone who might have been exposed, and methodically wiping out little pockets of the disease the world over.

Smallpox is probably the only disease that will ever be able to be controlled in this manner since the virus infects only man and cannot live outside of the human body.

In 1967 when the campaign started, smallpox was relatively common throughout most of Africa, South America, India and the islands of the South Pacific. In five years, smallpox had been eradicated on the American Continent and much of Africa had been cleaned up. In 1975, only India, Ethopia and Somalia remained trouble spots.

Then on Oct. 26, 1977, a young man by the name of Ali Maalin of Merka, Somalia, was diagnosed as a smallpox victim. WHO moved in and went through the ritual exorcism rites, including immunization of everyone who had come in contact with the young Somalian cook.

Then WHO's scientists stood back and held their breath. Days passed, Then weeks. Then months. No new cases of smallpox have been reported anywhere in the world.

WHO has even offered a reward of $1,000 to anyone reporting a bonafide case of smallpox but there have been no takers. If the reward goes unclaimed by Oct. 26, 1980, the only smallpox left in the world will be those virus in cold storage in government vaults in the United States and several other countries.

Dr. William Barkley, editor of the American Medical Association journal, proposes that all of the remaining smallpox virus in the world be gathered together and burned, eliminating it once and for all from the face of the globe.

"We have a unique opportunity," Barkley says. "We can burn a ravaging disease out of existence. I believe we should do just that."

But conservationists, believe it or not, have sprung to the defense of the lowly smallpox virus, just us they have to the snail-darter and the whooping crane. And their arguments make a great deal of sense, meaning the Great Debate ahead should be fairly interesting.

Dr. Barnard Dixon, editor of the British magazine New Scientist, calls Barkley's proposal "murderous" and criticized conservationists for remaining silent on eradication of the smallpox virus while championing the cause of more cuddly creatures.

Dr. Thomas Lovejoy of the World Wildlife Fund, fears the world may come to regret destruction of the smallpox virus.

"What if a new pox disease comes along and it turns out we need to study the smallpox virus to find a way to combat the new pox?" he asked.

Barkley also fears that if WHO and all the friendly nations destroy their stockpiles of smallpox virus, remaining specimens, possibly in unfriendly hands, "constitute an absolute awesome biological weapon which could give some small, backward nation incredible killing power."

He added that such a possibility increases after 1980 - the year the world will stop vaccinating itself against smallpox.

Arguments for and against destruction of the smallpox virus will be interesting to follow in the months ahead.

Home where the buffalo roam

Give me a home where the buffalo roam, where the deer and the antelope play and ... I'll show you my living room.

Sometimes, when I hallucinate, I recall what this house looked like when we saw the "model home." The carpet was celery green, the sofa was tan, there were glass tables dotting the room, shimmering. A tall tree grew in the corner, a copy of Forbes was on the coffee table, and a ceramic cat snoozed by the fireplace.

I looked around our living room last week. The carpet was a 9 x 12 kitty litter shag, the sofa looked like bucket seats, every table was laden with books, jackets, socks, the planter held a terminal piece of greenery and five flip tops, and bodies in various forms were draped over every available chair.

"This place is a dump!" I announced.

"It's not a dump," said one of the kids. "It looks lived in."

"You call this living? I'm ashamed to have anyone drop in. An insurance man came by the other night and looked at a rocker in front of the TV set and said, 'Oh, I see you're a collector of antiques. I saw one like this at an auction a few weeks ago. They wanted $800 for it. That should make you feel good. It was made in 1850. How old is yours?" I told him two months."

"You exaggerate," said my daughter. "I don't think this room looks so bad."

"Then how come the dog comes IN to bury bones? Let all within the sound of my voice hear me well. Beginning today, there are going to be some new ground rules:

"First, feet must remain on the floor at all times.

"All books and personal items must be taken to the bedroom and deposited on the desk.

"No food or beverages or bare feet allowed. (I saw this once at Disneyland.)

"No rearranging furniture. The management likes it this way.

"FAA regulations state that all luggage must fit under a seat and that the aisles must be cleared at all times."

For the last couple of days the living room has had all the personality of a recovery room ... no candy wrappers, no empty cans, no notebooks, sweaters or shoes in the middle of the floor. In fact, no people.

Then I realized everyone was gathered in one of the bedrooms. I opened the door and it looked like a spring tornado.

I closed it softly. It was like spraying the house for cockroaches. Unless you do the whole house, you might as well forget it.

Yes, a birth quota

In the news:

We often hear people say that government controls too much of our life with its rules and regulations.

Maybe so. But not nearly to the extent of most other countries.

China, for example, is imposing birth quotas. That's right! Each couple is allowed two children. No more.

In this case, the Chinese government has good reason to impose on the rights of its people: By the year 2000 China is expected to have 1.5 billion people. The Chinese government is worried that it will not be economically able to support such a population.

There are predictions that if the quota of two children per couple is not adhered to, the government may impose more stringent regulations, like one child per couple or, possibly, they may ban childbirth altogether.

Consider ourselves fortunate.

The search to find a replacement for Clifton Wharton, the departed president of Michigan State University, continues.

The school's board of trustees had reportedly sought Dr. John D. Wilson, the present provost at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. Wilson has Spartan ties.

But Wilson rejected a chance to be interviewed for the position saying he did not want to uproot his family.

It has been almost a year since Wharton left MSU for New York. And still the board has not found a permanent successor.

Edgar Harden has been acting as interim president and has been receiving rave reviews, which may be the reason the board is taking so long. But Warden, 71, wants out.

"The fact that the Catholic Church can get two popes in 60 days is kind of illuminating," he cracked recently.

At least he still has a sense of humor.

Maybe Bob Clock can't get excited about the snow, but, personally, I can't wait for it to get deep enough to ski on.

I've had ski fever since the first flakes started falling.

Oh, there are drawbacks, like nasty roads and rising heat bills, but you expect that if you live here.

The Retail Merchants Association has been busy decorating Christmas trees that will be put on lamp posts throughout town. Sunday afternoon a handful of the merchants met at the Market Mall and trimmed the trees and strung the lights.

There has been one objection, though. The trees may be too big. The trees are roughly four to five feet tall, and some people believe they are too big to hang on lamp posts.

Oh, well. Enjoy the holiday season.

A note from Ralph on smoking

A note from my friend Ralph asks: "In your frequently exhibited concern for the underdog, can you spare a thought for that currently most subterranean of canines, the cigaret smoker?

"Not defense or support, and certainly not approval, but, quo-ad hoc, a compassionate squeeze of the shoulder or a sympathetic shake of the noggin."

(I looked it up. "Quo-ad hoc" is Latin for "as much as this." I'll give Ralph as much as this: I quit smoking cigarets when the sugeon-general was still an intern-private, but I still enjoy an occasional cigar. So I'll let Ralph blow smoke in my face if he'll quit using words that make me feel dumb.)

Ralph continues: "It is admitted that there is little to be said for an anti-social being who burns holes in things, heaps up ashtrays, exudes a poisonous miasma of smoke and fumes, and sets a bad example for the young.

"An increasing majority of the population, lay and official, decries his behavior and seeks to label him non grata. And understandably so. In airplanes, restaurants, theatres and doctors' waiting rooms he is being confined beyond the pale."

(Not many people know that persons on the other side of a fence are beyond the pale. A pale is a picket, as in a picket fence. Persons who are non grata are often put beyond the picket as punishment for speaking Latin to people who were never altar boys.)

Back to Ralph: "The smoker is his own worst enemy. He has, or courts, heart disease, emphysema, bad breath and yellowed fingers. He fritters away a fortune on his vice. There is no explanation or excuse for his continuing to offend others and debilitate himself.

"Except one: Solace.

"When the blues in the night and the threats of the day impinge upon his soul, a cigaret offers a modicum of escape and comfort. The wounded soldier, the man before the firing squad, the confused, the jittery and the solitary, find temporary euphoria in that paper tube of ignited vegetable matter.

"But who would wish to be as they? Not even the addict admires his weakness. He will preach to the young that it is not smart to start smoking, but dumb, dirty and deleterious."

(If something is deleterious, it is injurious to health. For instance, it would be deleterious for Ralph if he fell while reaching for a big word and landed on a fence, suffering a pale up his nose.)

Ralph continues: "The cigaret smoker is a pariah, a nuisance and a problem. All the more reason to pass on to him a pained grin, an emphatic wink and an empty ashtray.

"If in today's enlightened world we can find understanding and extenuation for the rapist, the murderer, the dope user, the prostitute, the corrupt public servant and the punk rocker, surely we can allow a smidgin of commiseration to the poor soul who is victimizing himself with tars, nicotine and public odium."

(My first guess was that an odium is an arena that smells bad from wrestlers sweating and people smoking. Wrong. The dictionary says an odium is an "intense hatred or dislike for something." Quo-ad hoc: You might as well have an odium for the deleteriousness of sitting on a pale, especially in a Mexican restaurant where the potatoes are non grata.)

But I do commiserate with Ralph's problem, and I suggest we should open our hearts as we shut our ears when he sings:

Tobacco is a filthy weed.
I like it.
It stains your teeth and spoils your feed.
I like it.
It clogs your lungs and fogs your bean,
It rasps your nerves and makes you mean,
It's the worst darn stuff I've ever seen.
I like it.

A history lesson

This is the time to cultivate a friendship with someone who has subscribed to one of the popular book clubs. Chesapeake will be some time reaching paperback publication and so too, "The Last Convertible," which isn't due out in soft cover until February. But beg or buy, try to work "The Last Convertible" by Anton Myrer into your reading schedule.

It's been a long time since a book has waved a flag of relevance into my face. But passing time reading in the car last week, immersing my imagination in the gaiety and subsequent tragedy which belonged to the World War II generation, my parent's vintage, I was struck by the mini-reflections yesterday lends today, ours for the perception.

It was a week spent with a college friend who had weathered the Cuban crisis our freshman year and come, on a student visa during the worst of it. Memories of all-night vigils in chapel and straining our ears for news of her family and friends over the short-wave radio came flooding back. And even as I lolled in the pool with Ana, basking in the warm sun of Miami Beach, like a miracle thinking back on those days of the Cuban "refugee," she pointed out still another poignant reflection of other time.

Lounging at the poolside with his wife was an elderly Greek doctor, both branded with numbers on the left arm from a Nazi concentration camp. How little we know of war, having miraculously escaped the jaws of Vietnam. And, thank God, how much less do our children know. It was a Thanksgiving in which our family bowed our heads among new friends and old from Cuba, Belgium and Peru, all the while grateful that our experience with war has been vicarious. But it was also a week spent in the shadow of the senseless mass-suicide of Guyana. Perhaps war is relevant only in so far as it hits home.'

The convertible alluded to in the title is a '38 Packard Super Eight – the Empress. It is the symbol of everything that was reckless and at the same time naively innocent about the pre war days of Harvard University Life. It is the symbol of a certain group of young men who dubbed themselves the "Fusiliers" and bound themselves to loyalty and flamboyance all at once. It is the Cinderella's chariot, the status symbol, the legacy passed from one to another throughout the story, each member of the Fusiliers reaching [illegible] in his own way.

The war. There's that word again. The war that ripped apart the very fabric of that stimulate existence and flung the reality of fox holes and SS artillery and torpedo attacks into the unprepared faces of each of the Fusiliers. War became relevant for them. War hit home.

It's hard to isolate characters in this book – who is most important, who is secondary – it destroys the continuity of story line somehow. I can say, however, that one Fusilier is the narrator of the story. George, the mainstay, the stable, the conscience of the group has been awarded the task of unfolding the intricacies therein to his future son-in-law. What he reveals in the course of the novel, is a character study in itself of nearly every member of the group and their women as well. The interaction of character and plot done in narrative form makes for an unusual effect. But the over-riding feeling that we ought to learn from history wins over all. The learning experiences of life are personal in the end. War is personal. Anton Myrer made history personal for me

Enjoy snowmobiling

It [illegible] winter sports with family and friends and gift giving. Snowmobiling is one of those increasingly popular sports. Whether there is a new snowmobile on your Santa list or you're the old timer at the sport, operate your machine with respect and caution. The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that more than 19,000 people require hospital emergency room treatment last year associated with snowmobiles.

Some of the major accident patterns involve collisions with fixed or moving objects, especially when driving on or beside public roads. This pattern reflects the majority of snowmobile accidents. [illegible] hard to hear other vehicles, and braking suddenly on snow or ice covered road is dangerous.

Excessive speed, unfamiliarity with the machine, and riding on unfamiliar terrain or near bodies of water. Keeping control of the machine, and having adequate braking capability for the speed, is essential. People can increase the hazards by deliberately "jumping" or doing other stunts.

Driving while intoxicated, after dark, or too close together. Whether driving automobiles or driving snowmobiles, reckless and intoxicated driving is very dangerous. Lighting is often inadequate on snowmobiles. Tail-gating also can be [illegible]

Some accidents have been caused by product failure [illegible] brakes that fail or skis that fall off. Many accidents also [illegible]. Since they are capable of high speed, snowmobiles tempt people to race and try [illegible] other stunts. Snowmobiles can roll over easily when turning corners and go out of control at high speeds. Cold weather can be dangerous too – if you have an accident and don't get help quickly, you can get frostbite or even freeze to death.

Snowmobiles can be fun as well as life saving transportation aide in emergency situations - but like other forms of transportation they are only as good as the person behind the wheel

Bottle bill answers

Now that the "Bottle Bill", passed by voters in 1976, has taken effect, perhaps you would like to know answers to often-asked questions regarding the process of buying and returning beer and soft drink containers for a refund.

In 1976, before the bill was passed, 20 percent of all beverage containers were returnable. Now, as a result of the new law, 100 percent of beer and soft drink containers will require deposits. Containers for wine, liquor and dairy products will remain non-returnable. The deposits for the returnable containers will vary, but 10 cents a container will probably be standard. Special uniform beer bottles that may be used by more than one company will most likely require less of a deposit.

Soft drink and beer companies may raise their prices because they say that the extra space required for the storage of the empties and added equipment and workers could force them to increase their prices more than a dime a bottle. So you may find you are paying a steep price for beer and wine now – even after you are handed your refund when you return your empties to the store.

Now to the question of soft drink machines. The new law will affect you in the same way you were affected before non-returnable bottles became prevalent in the machines. The price of the deposit will be figured into the price for the machine cans. If you drink the beverage on the premises, you will be returned your deposit money by that establishment. If you take the can or bottle with you, you will have to save the container if you want a refund.

Establishments that sell beer and soft drinks in bottles and cans have asked that the public cooperate with them during the initial months of the law's implementation to make this little inconvenience easy for everyone. Here are some ways you can help the merchants who will be burdened most by the bottle bill:

–Take the empties back for your refund as soon as possible. Don't let them pile up!

–Rinse them out for sanitation purposes.

–Bring them back either in their original cartons or in bags. Please don't crush the empty cans. Crushed cans are difficult to handle and transport.

–Fines will range from $100 to $1,000 for those manufactures distributors and retailers who fail to comply with the new law.

Community shows care for disabled

Dear local people:

Anyone who reads the paper or is aware of human interest situations knows of the abuses and slow community acceptance of disabled people. There have been numerous articles this year about neighborhoods angrily waving petitions against residential facilities for the retarded. And there have been some shocking and disgusting details brought to light concerning the abuse of rights of the handicapped. The media has exposed many cruel and some poignant circumstances.

We feel we are in a unique position to reveal exciting heart-warming information about some handicapped folks in your town. We manage a Community Mental Health residential training facility in Charlevoix which is home to 6 mentally impaired adults. In 3½ years we have seen 4 of our residents achieve complete independent status...something not one of them thought was possible for him her. The others are happy, well-adjusted individuals whose world has become more challenging and stimulating. They all work or attend school and make a worthwhile contribution to their local environment.

We offer much credit and respect to this community which has been supportive, caring, concerned and loving. Without this, there would be fewer success stories. Congratulations! And Merry Christmas!

Sincerely,
Kathy and Pat Hynes

CARE helps the poverty stricken

Editor:

At this holiday season, we want to thank members of the American press for their excellent coverage of CARE programs which help destitute people throughout the world. Your cooperation in publishing the message of CARE's work is invaluable in maintaining much needed support from the American people. Their support enables CARE to continue helping millions of people lift themselves out of poverty in 36 developing countries in Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Middle East.

In helping these people become self-supporting, food is the basic need. In this year's Holiday Food Crusade CARE must raise $6,500,000 to help provide nourishing food for 25 million people, mostly children. Since CARE has always put the needs of children in the forefront of its programming, we are particularly pleased that the United Nations has designated 1979 the International Year of the Child.

As nutritious food improves families' health, CARE teaches them how to expand their agricultural production, develop income-generating projects, and to build water systems, schools, health centers and roads. Disaster aid and medical training programs are also vital components of CARE's work.

Public support in the form of cash and contributions in kind are supplemented by U.S. Food-for-Peace commodities, host government contributions and donations of labor, land and available materials from the people being helped. This resulted in CARE providing almost $10 in aid for each dollar contributed by the public last year.

We will be grateful for any message you can run during this holiday season reminding your readers of the urgent need overseas and the impact of CARE programs.

Again, our heartfelt appreciation for your past support. Our staff members across the country and around the world join me in sending you - and your staff our warmest season's greetings and best wishes for the New Year.

Sincerely
Frank L. Groffer

...Gayle Kaczynski

By [illegible]

Gayle Kaczynski is a counselor at the Charlevoix High School. This week she tells the Courier about some of her diversified duties and how she became a counselor.

COURIER: What does a counselor do?

KACZYNSKI: I see myself as a helping person. I act as liason between faculty and student and administration and student. My main interest is helping students be happy with themselves. If they are, they can be fairly successful students.

COURIER: How do you try to attain this goal?

KACZYNSKI: Through group counseling, one-to-one counseling, career counseling, high school academic counseling, and college counseling.

COURIER: What do you talk about in your counseling sessions?

KACZYNSKI: Some of the things we talk about in group counseling are running away, drugs, social problems, and self concept, among others. In one-to-one counseling we cover more personal situations. Some students don't feel comfortable in a group. This way it's confidential. Although I don't have [illegible] still arranging high school [illegible] we try to put students into [illegible] that fit their needs and offer a challenge. College counseling consists [of] finding the right school based on cost, the possibility of getting in, courses offered, etc. The real problem for students is knowing what they want to do. That's where career counseling comes in. We give tests to determine a student's strengths and weaknesses. We have people in various lines of work come to talk to the students, and we go to some places of businesses to see how they operate. Attorney Joe Hayes has talked with us, as well as Rick Duerson of WVOY, Mike Burnett of the Char-Em Intermediate School District; Kathy Boss of the Charlevoix Area Hospital; Accountant Sam Supernaw; Roger Nesburg, auto mechanic at Village Car Care; and Steve Smith, construction worker and demolition expert. Later on we will have a social worker, pharmacist, small gas engine mechanic, veterinarian, sign painter, state police trooper, cosmotologist, park ranger, artist, banker, real estate surveyor, medical lab technician, and others. Last week we went to Frank's Florists to learn about horticulture.

COUIER: What kinds of questions do [illegible] ask about career jobs?

KACZYNSKI: [illegible] How much money do you make? What school did you go to? and How did you decide on this work? decide on this work

COURIER: What else do you do in the way of career counseling?

KACZYNSKI: For one thing, Denny Aenis of the Char-Em Intermediate District will work with the students on employability skills such as interviewing and filling out applications. This will take place in January. We'll also have someone from the Michigan Employment Security Commission talk about Civil Service jobs and how to get them. For the first time, we will have an Occupational Awareness night, in cooperation with the Intermediate School District and the Petoskey High School. This will take place April 10 at the Petoskey High School.

COURIER: Do you think small town students are handicapped because they can't learn about big city jobs?

KACZYNSKI: There may be some drawbacks, but they seem unimportant. Studies show that most small town students settle in small towns.

COURIER: What percentage of your graduates go on to college?

KACZYNSKI: About half. The profile of our class of 19[illegible] showed that 30 percent planned on a four year college education, 14 percent on a two year college education, 12 percent already had jobs, 10 percent had jobs but were seeking different ones, and 14 percent were looking for jobs. Thirty percent of those with non-college plans were considering further education later on.

COURIER: Can those who want jobs find them?

KACZYNSKI: Not always. Sometimes the job market is flooded. Those with skills have the best opportunities.

COURIER: Do you teach any classes?

KACZYNSKI: Only in the Adult Education program. I teach macrame. In the past I have taught oil painting and introduction to art.

COURIER: Where did you grow up?

KACZYNSKI: In Dearborn, and graduated from Divine Child High School there. Then I went to Eastern Michigan University and majored in art. I taught art for two years at Whitmore Lake and saw a lot of kids with problems who needed help. So I went back to graduate school at Eastern and worked at a drug center [illegible]. The school decided that I really wanted to do counseling work. I would mention that I share the counseling duties with Chuck [illegible]. We divide the students alphabetically, but if one would rather talk to me instead of Chuck, or vice versa, that's all right.

COURIER: What do you do when you're not working?

KACZYNSKI: I'm secretary-treasurer of Big Brothers–Big Sisters, a member of the Charlevoix Youth Advisory Board, senior class advisor, and student body advisor.

COURIER: How long have you been in Charlevoix?

KACZYNSKI: Four years. I took last year off to have a baby.

COURIER: Any hobbies?

KACZYNSKI: Cross-country skiing, horseback riding, and oil painting. That's about all I have time for. We used to live on a farm and raised horses and goats, but that became too much for us. We've moved to town.

COURIER: What does your husband do?

KACZYNSKI: Dan is with the Charlevoix Public Schools, too.

COURIER: How old is the baby?

KACZYNSKI: Christina is almost a year old.

Rayders win district title

The Charlevoix Rayders girls basketball team has advanced to the Class C regional at Grayling.

The Rayders won the Onaway district with a 58-48 victory over backyard rival Boyne City. It is believed Charlevoix will play Kalkaska Wednesday evening at Grayling in regional play.

Charlevoix used a big fourth quarter to defeat Boyne City. The Ramblers trailed by just two points, 36-34, after three quarters. But the Rayders exploded for 22 points in the final eight minutes to wrap up the game and bring home the district trophy.

Coach Toni Felter credited the win to "team play" and "fan support." The Rayders once again had over 12 assists.

But the night was not without its scares. Forward Sherri Selissen sat out most of the fourth quarter after injuring her knee. She was taken to the hospital afterwards for X-Rays. The X-rays revealed no damage and Selissen should be able to play Wednesday night.

It was Selissen who picked the Rayders up after Boyne City had taken a three point lead mid-way during the third quarter. She repeatedly hit on jump shots from the corner. And after she exited from the game, Lisa Flower came in and helped Melinda Klooster control the boards.

Klooster finished as the game's top scorer with 24 points. Selissen added 16. For Boyne City, Beckey Aimesbury tallied 18 points. Center Dawn Tims, usually Boyne's top scorer, was held to four points before fouling out in the final quarter.

Charlevoix got to the championship game of the district by beating East Jordan, 80-42, earlier in the week.

The Rayders jumped to a 15 point lead at halftime, 38-23, and there was never much doubt thereafter.

Klooster matched her career high with 31 points while Mel Kerridge added 21. Both Klooster and Kerridge are sophomores.

Boyne City had beaten Rogers City, 51-46, earlier in the district after Rogers City had eliminated host Onaway, 57-41.

CHARLEVOIX – Klooster 10 4-8 24, Selissen 8 0-1 16, Kerridge 3 3-6 9, Lehman 2 1-2 5, Noirot 1 0-2 2, Flower 0 0-1 0, Fiedler 1 0-0 2. Totals 25 8-20 58.

BOYNE CITY – Tims 1 2-4 4, Scott 1 0-0 2, Grunow 3 1-3 7, Sarasin 4 0-0 8, Lentz 3 1-2 7, Aimesbury 9 0-2 18, Bricker 1 0-0 2. Totals 22 4-11 48.

Alger in record book

The Ferris State College football season may be history, but, thanks to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, the book isn't closed yet. The NAIA has singled out the Bulldogs' Dan Delamarter and Bob Alger among the nation's "big play" specialists.

Alger, a junior from Charlevoix, was credted with a 1978 "long gainer." In Alger's case, his 100-yard pass interception for a touchdown against Dayton was the nation's longest return nnd stands as a national record. Though Alger was two yards into the end zone when he nabbed the Dayton pass, end zone yardage is not counted in the record book. So, 100 yards is the most anyone ever has..or ever will...get on an interception return.

Alger, a Bulldog co-captain, is one of only two players in the NAIA to return an interception the length of the football field this past season. The other was Langston College's (Okla.) Joe Johnson.

Delemarter kicked a 52 yard field goal against Wayne State on Sept. 30.

Area gymnasts to give demonstration at high school

The Charlevoix School of Gymnastics, conducted by Jim Mitchell, will present a demonstration of the skills accomplished by his students during the first 10 weeks training period.

A group of more than 100 students ranging in age from pre-schoolers to early teens, both boys' and girls', will be participating in the demonstration to be presented at the Charlevoix High school gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 9.

Equipment used in the demonstration will be on loan from the Wolverine Gymnastics Camp.

The present class of students who will present Saturday's demonstration have been attending classes under the Continuing Education program sponsored by the Charlevoix High School.

Mitchell, who has been conducting the classes, is himself a former state champion gymnast who has been seen associated with the gymnastics program while attending Northern Michigan University for two years and with the Wolverine Camp. He now resides in Charlevoix.

Saturday's event is open to the public. Persons interested in the program or enrolling their children are issued a special invitation to attend the event.

government to protect and preserve shorelines and develop public recreational facilities were also presented.

The Michigan Land Trust Fund Program, for example, is a source to which townships may turn to help acquire land to develop public beaches and boat launches. Land Trust Funds can be used to buy land for access to the Great Lakes or connecting waters, to buy land for access to the Great Lakes or connecting waters, to buy land to preserve or enhance fragile areas or protect endangered species; or to buy land to provide hunting or fishing opportunities.

Another source of money for similar environmental - protective - or recreational projects is a Land and Water Conservation Fund of the U.S. Department of Interior, administered by the DNR.

The Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission, an arm of the U.S. Department of Interior, administered money to assist local government in developing projects.

The participant in Tuesday's meeting were told that the three men will help local government officials sort out the bureaucratic maze and design their grant applications so they have the best chance at getting some of these funds.

Warner said that beginning January 1979 local governmental bodies will receive notice of grant opportunities. However, a quick survey showed that very few of Tuesday's participants had received similar notices last year. So, interested individuals and officials were urged to call or write David Warner at the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission, 2334 Aero Park Court, Traverse City (616-946-5922).

Applications for grants must be completed between January and May of 1979. Warner said he would meet with any group interested in pursuing these potential sources of funds.

Among the Charlevoix County officials attending Tuesday's meeting were Harman Rasch, East Jordan City Manager, Tim Clifton, Boyne City Manager, and John Hess, Charlevoix County Planner.

Hess said he found the meeting valuable and was preparing a newsletter to help explain the Coastal Management Program to all county townships with waterfronts.

Hess added that he, too, is available to meet with local planners to work on developing projects eligible to receive these and other grants.

Arrested at the plant were; Thomas R. Vanhamman, 20, Grand Rapids; Michael J. Prydi, 19, Birmingham; John L. Navin, 19, Traverse City; Katherine E. Tracy, 23, Lansing; George Kframis, 20, Dearborn; Charles W. Will, 31, Williamson; Teresa A. Hubbard, 22, Harbor Springs; William A. Prenzler, 20, East Lansing; Pamela K. Hoover, 19, Grand Rapids.

Trespassing is a misdemeanor in Michigan and is punishable by a maximum sentence of 90 days in jail, a $100 fine, or both. It is believed Consumers Power will press the charge.

Besides carrying anti-nuclear power signs, the protesters also brought along a bright orange styrofoam monkey wrench to "dismantle" the power plant.

The protesters members of the group called NoMAD (Northern Michigan Alternative Development) - said they are concerned about the possibility of radioactive leaks, the dangers of plutonium (a byproduct of generating nuclear power), and the unsolved problem of burying the radioactive waste.

Last month Consumers Power revealed that about 25 gallons of demineralized water had leaked into Lake Michigan between July 26 and Aug. 19. Company officials said the leak did not create a health hazard to the employees or the public.

Just last week, the Union of Concerned Scientists released a study conducted by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission which said Big Rock and Palisades - Consumers two nuclear power plants in Michigan - were among "the 10 least safe" in the country.

The study was especially critical of the boiling water reactors at Big Rock.

Consumer Power officials said little significance should be attached to the study.

"The Union of Concerned Scientists is putting its own interpretation on the material," said Robert Wischmeyer, a public information specialist for Consumers Power in Jackson.

The Union of Concerned Scientists is opposed to nuclear power.

Prior to the arrests, nearly 50 people had gathered at Elzinga Park for an anti-nuclear power rally. The group huddled on the beach and discussed nuclear power for over an hour before marching to Big Rock Point about a half mile away. Once at Big Rock, 14 members of the group decided to cross the chain link barrier and proceed towards the plant.

Before his arrest, Barnett told Consumer Power officials, "This is just the beginning, gentlemen. We will keep coming back."

Afterwards, Barnett said he had no regrets about the group's actions.

"We made a personal statement today," he said. "We stuck to our principles."

City manager attends 1978 Congress of Cities

ST. LOUIS — City Manager Norman M. Galloway attended the 1978 Congress of Cities, a meeting focused this year on people's attitudes about living in cities and about the effectiveness of their local governments.

Nearly 1,300 mayors, council members, commissioners, and other city officials from all parts of the country were in St. Louis for the five-day annual meeting of the National League of Cities, the nation's largest municipal organization. The meeting concluded Nov. 29.

President Carter, who launched his national urban policy on March 27 at the White House, addressed the opening general session on Nov. 27 to report on the progress his proposals have made in eight months and to outline his plans for the unfinished urban policy agenda.

Another national perspective, developed from the views of everyday people, was presented at the opening session by public opinion analyst George Gallup. The Gallup organization conducted extensive special surveys on people's attitudes about their communities and local governments and the results of those polls were used in developing the theme of this year's meeting, "Cities Are People."

Many of the special workshops and program tracks attended by the delegates were structured around the information from the surveys. A number of the sessions also explored the ingredients that set off this year's tax cutting fever and how those factors compared to people's desires for public [illegible]

NLC President Tom Moody, mayor of Columbus, Ohio, reported about the progress made on urban policy during the past year and what priorities were being established by the NLC Board of Directors for 1979.

The final day of the Congress of Cities was reserved for the election of new officers for 1979 and adoption of revisions to NLC's National Municipal Policy.

Helen Millon works on rehabililating a volunteer patient

Rehabilitation clinic held

Rehabilitating the whole patient, concern for his her dignity, emotions, and psyche, as well as physical self, were themes in a day-long seminar given some 88 registered nurses, LPNs, aides, and orderlies from hospitals and medical care facilities this past Thursday in Charlevoix.

Helen Millen, R.N., who serves as a consultant to the Kenny Michigan Rehabilitation Foundation, was the speaker at the seminar, sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Hospital and held at the First State Bank of Charlevoix. The program was made available through Michigan United Way.

Millen, also on the teaching faculty at Wayne State University, combines expertise in the techniques of physical rehabilitation with a deep concern for humane treatment of patients.

Her lectures emphasized a combination of technical training and concern for "the whole patient."

"Our goal in rehabilitation is to try to return the patient to the top level of his ability, physically and emotionally," she explained.

She urged her audience to become involved with the "whole patient." She spoke to them of the "quality of life."

She also showed the workshop participants several devises used to assist patients recovering from such medical problems as stroke.

The 88 RNs, nursing students and staff from area hospitals, nursing schools and medical care facilities were treated to a day of intense discussion of medical subject matter lightened by Ms. Millen's glib humor.

The key to Ms. Millen's message was that a positive approach to patients and rehabilitation is basic and that when a well trained nurse takes a positive approach the patient's chances of recovering his physical abilities will be increased dramatically.

Wedding

Martinez - Seiler

Jacqulyn Martinez of Santa Monica, Ca. and Paul Seiler of Mt. Clemens were married Saturday evening at the Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix. Both the bride and the groom were residing in Charlevoix prior to the wedding.

The bride wore a candlelight gown for the ceremony and carried a purple orchard. She also had baby's breath in her hair.

Maid of honor was Susan Anderson while bridesmaids were Laurie Martinez and Theresa Seiler. They wore chiffon dresses and carried roses and carnations.

Best man was Dick Fleming while groomsmen were Robert Martinez and George Seiler. Fleming also sang at the ceremony.

The couple plan on living in Santa Monica.

Kane - Johnson

Susan Marie Kane of Charlevoix and Rodney Johnson of Cleveland were married Friday evening at St. Mary's Church.

Over 200 guests attended the double ring ceremony that was officiated by Rev. R. Dale Magoon.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Dorothy VanLoo and William Kane of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson of Berkley.

Mrs. Vincent Brewster played traditional music and Nancy Masnado sang.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, chose a gown of polyester and re-embroidered lace for her wedding. Fashioned along Victorian lines, it featured a wedding ring collar and crystal pleated trim at the bodice and hemline. She wore a matching picture hat and carried a hurricane lamp clustered in fall tones of mums and coral roses

Penny A. Kane served as her sister's maid of honor and bridesmaids were Kathie McDonough of Ann Arbor, Jenny Johnson and Mr. Richard Harris of Berkley, sisters of the bridegroom, Judy Swanson and Teri Siegler of Norway. They wore identical Victorian gowns fashioned with white blouses trimmed with forest green velvet and forest green skirts. They carried hurricane lamps nestled in clusters of mums in fall tones.

Maryah Brown, wearing a forest green gown, was the flower girl and Joshua Dean Martin was ringbearer.

W. Thomas Johnson of Berkley assisted his brother as best man. Another brother, Chris Johnson, also of Berkley, Michael Kane, brother of the bride, David Fariss and Ray Arthur, both of Berkley and Craig Belling of Milwaukee seated the guests.

Mrs. VanLoo selected a gown styled with a light brown bodice and winter white chiffon skirt for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Johnson, mother of the groom, wore a gown of beige qiana with matching overlay.

A reception, hosted by the bride's mother and catered by the Weathervane Inn, followed at the American Legion post home.

After a Carribean cruise, the couple will be at home in Cleveland until December 3.

The bride a former student at Michigan Technological University, is presently attending Cleveland State University. The bridegroom, a graduate of Michigan Technological University, is an engineer with the Republic Steel Corp.

The annual income questionnaires being sent this year to previously exempt elderly beneficiaries and to eligible children will enable us to be certain these individuals receive the maximum possible pension in 1979" VA pension officials said.

Local Jaycees organization formed

The Charlevoix chapter of the JayCees, a young men's service organization, has been formed in Charlevoix under the sponsorship of the Petoskey JayCees

Dan Alder has been elected president of the group which presently has a membership of 24 men in the 18 to 35 year age group.

Other officers are Michael Greeley, Vice President Internal Affairs, Dan Miller, Vice President External Affairs and Albert Lord, secretary-treasurer

Dr. H.R. Custer was the guest speaker at the organizational meeting of the JayCees held at the Weathervane Inn. He presented a film on C.P.R. and spoke on that and other lifesaving techniques. The JayCees, searching for a community project, decided on a Blood Pressure program after hearing Dr Custer. The JayCees will confine their Blood Pressure program to the breadwinners of families who are most often neglected in similar clinics. This will be done by making arrangements to visit businesses and industries and conduct the clinics at the site. JayCees will be trained to take blood pressures before conducting the clinics. A spokesman for the JayCees said, in relating the plans, that "It is the breadwinner who diesn't get to blood pressure clinics so it is our plan to take the clinic to him at the site of his business or employment. We feel that this will be a well accepted community project that will help many people".

JayCees is a service organization dedicated to the interests of the community in which its members reside Miller, vice president of External Affairs explained. There are three areas of involvement for members; namely, Individual Development where members work toward their personal and family lives; Community Development where they work to make their communities a better place for everyone to live and Management Development where they learn to work in harmony with their employers and employees.

Anyone interested in the organization is invited to call any of the officers for more information.

Plan now to shop for perfect X-Mas tree

Between December 1st and December 24th, over 105-million people will make an annual pilgrimage to shop for the "perfect" Christmas Tree.

Although only 35-million people will actually buy trees, it is estimated that more than 70-million — mostly children — will accompany Dad or Mom on the tree spree.

Selecting a Christmas tree that is just right requires a bit more shopping around than might be expected. Prices vary widely from vendor to vendor and many are willing to bargain for a price, especially as the Day nears.

Before venturing to discover a "perfect" tree, you might want to consider the space the tree is going to occupy.

Tips on buying a X-Mas tree

DON'T BUY IF:

- A bent needle breaks.
- Needles fall to the ground when the stump is tapped.
- The stump is not moist and sticky.

TREE IS HEALTHY IF:

- The needles are pliable.
- Needles are firmly attached to the branches.
- Branches are free of foreign matter such as vines, moss.
- Tree is free of barren branches.
- Butt is smoothly cut.

On Beaver Island

A Christmas to remember

By JAMES S. POOLER

There is always one Christmas you remember best. This one was when we were marooned on Beaver Island.

The snow came in great gushes early that fall and filled Lake Michigan with slush ice. The mail boat, afraid of losing a propeller, stopped coming over from Charlevoix by early December, and we were cut off from the mainland. The daring fish tugs hauled out their cast hooks and nets, and soon on all the big horizon around the Island there wasn't even the smoke of a freighter.

You could look across 30 miles of water to the mainland, across water that looked like ice cream that didn't quite freeze. Sometimes the lake steamed from the cold and you couldn't see across. More often it snowed. It was a lonely feeling standing on the shore when you could see the mainland as only a dirty fingernail laid low on the farthest edge of the water. You couldn't go there and no one could come out to you.

Around you a few islands stood darkly in the water – Garden, Hog and Hat – and far to the west was High Island where King Benjamin sent dissenting Israelites from his House of David. Isolated more than we by winter, they made it even more lonely out in the middle of Lake Michigan.

The old fishermen would come down too, and look at the lake from which they drew their living. Weatherwise, they would squint at slush and sky, and fall into warm arguments on whether the lake would freeze all the way across that winter. "She's going to be a cold winter", went one school of thought. "The lake'll be friz solid by the tenth of January," said another. "This is going to be one of them winters when she just snows and snows and never gets down to a real biting spell," went the other. There was reason for the argument.

Frankie Left and his horse Queenie...she was a wonderful creature who all summer long did nothing but grow fat in pasture. But when winter came and upper Lake Michigan froze solid, Queenie was the horse that grew into the legend they still tell on Beaver Island. She wasn't just a horse...Queenie had strange gifts such as the endurance of a wolf, and wisdom that went beyond human understanding.

Queenie was the Island's lifeline to the mainland when the Lake froze over. She'd travel 30 miles across the frozen lake to Charlevoix where Frankie would pick up the mail and the most needed supplies and then lope back to the Island.

When a blinding snowstorm closed down around them, Frankie just threw up the reins and Queenie took her head, which certainly was a clever one. She traveled all day and all night in a storm in which they couldn't see 10 feet ahead of them, until Frankie was sure they would both freeze out there on top of Lake Michigan. When she came up on the Island it was on the far side and when the storm lifted they knew why!

The wind had torn loose a great sheet of ice and with her magic sense Queenie had circled the open water for over 30 hours. That fact is true whatever the legends that have made her a combination of Pegasus and Bucephalis.

The sudden assault of winter that year had brought a tragedy to the youngsters of the Island. Mr. Lafferty's shipment of Christmas toys hadn't come across from the mainland before the mail boat had stopped running. No matter how much you stood on the shore and wished for terrible cold weather, the old fishermen would tell you that the Lake couldn't possibly freeze over before Christmas. Even that wonderful creature, Queenie, couldn't bring over toys.

Beaver Island Christmas

Mr. Lafferty had the only store on the Island. That's a great rolling Irish name "Lafferty" – in keeping with all the other rolling Irish names on the Beavers. But if you ever go to the Island and name on the side of the store isn't too weatherbeaten, look at it closely and you'll see that the first of the family to come to the Island was a Frenchman named "LaFerte." But its "Lafferty" now to everyone on the Island, even to the man who owns the name!!

Mr. Lafferty spread out the few toys left over from the Christmas before and pieced out the display with a lot of those tiny nickle dolls with thin wire arms that broke off at the first fitting, and it was all he had to offer. A few unwanted knick-knacks and the whole kit and caboodle of them wouldn't make a decent showing under a modern kid's Christmas tree. But it was enough to set off the talking, the building up and suspense children always create for christmas.

You passed the store windows daily on the way to school, and watched the disappearance of the bigger toys from the display. You wondered "who?" I guess Christmas is always pretty much the same among the kids, the older ones carefully building up the old legend again for the younger ones and coming to half believing themselves. And always the rampant skeptic whose work had to be undone.

In our case it was Denny O'Toole who lived with an aunt who didn't believe in Santa Claus, and he was hit with snow balls and well ostracised on the playground. He was a small kid and by two weeks before Christmas had coming to standing around the fringe when they were telling the first graders about Santa Claus and he didn't look so wise as he had..at least he kept his mouth shut.

But there was no way of escaping Lafferty's show window on the way to school. Two weeks before Christmas it was bare, the canny kids noticed, too, that the old fishermen were talking around that the year of the big wind in Ireland Santa Claus hadn't made it, and it didn't sound good, even to the little ones, conditioned with the idea that with all the tearing around he had to do Santa Claus could miss the small dot of an island out in Lake Michigan.

What good's faith, though if you haven't got it when you need it most. He might miss the Beavers – but he never had. So we went right on ahead, planning, confiding loudly what we expected. But none of the older folks were offering much encouragement. They would come down, too, and look across the steaming lake to the mainland, far away, and say it was too bad the lake never froze over before Christmas. We knew we'd eat well. The kitchens were going overtime and the Island was full of turkeys.

They had strange ways of sorting their turkeys on the Beavers...when spring came the turkeys would come out of the farms on the single road that led down the Island, and wander to the thick forest for nesting. When fall came and the leaves tumbled, the turkeys would come home, browsing along the single road. Whatever turned into your farm was yours. maybe 20 had taken off from your farm and only six came back, you'd reckon 'pneumonia', must have got 'em. At the next farm where only two started out 60 might come home...you just had to figure that his turkeys had nested oftener. There was plenty of sharing on the Island and by letting the turkeys decide, it saved wear and tear on the mind...and arguments.

The turkeys were sized for families, bread was out to dry for dressing, cookie cutters were traded around among the women to get the variety of animals possible, the jars in the pantries began to brim over and the best specimens in the cookie menagerie were taken out for special frosting treatment for the tree. These fine odors of Christmas drifted out on the road, where you sniffed them coming and going. On the Saturday after school was out the kids took the family axe and headed for the woods to cut their own trees. If a kid was too small to drag his home, there always were six kids from another family to give him a hand... but it didn't turn out to be as much as fun as we'd expected.

The word got around that about all we'd get that year was a beautifully trimmed tree and a lot to eat. There couldn't possibly be much

Christmas dinners keep holiday traditions alive

At Christmas dinner 1935, Dad carved the turkey as smells of pumpkin pie wafted from the old Tappan stove. When the last of the pie was gone, the family gathered to hear the first holiday radio broadcast of that exciting young singer, Bing Crosby.

At holiday dinner this year, the tantalizing aromas wafting from the kitchen may still come from a Tappan, but chances are it's a microwave. The sounds of the late Bing will again provide a perfect finale to the gathering, but they'll emanate from a stereo or TV set.

This will mark the 43rd year Americans have celebrated Christmas with Crosby's music. A special tribute, "Bing Crosby — The Christmas Years," will air on December 6 on CBS-TV to mark the beginning of the festive season. Fittingly, the program is cosponsored by yet another American tradition, The Tappan Company, manufacturers of kitchen appliances that have helped cook Christmas dinners for nearly a century.

Many things have changed since 1935, when the cook not only had to roast the turkey, she had to clean, pluck, dress and perhaps even butcher it! Today, the holiday chef can buy a frozen, oven-ready bird and just thaw, stuff and pop it in the oven! If that oven is a microwave, a ten-pound turkey will be ready in an hour and a half, rather than in the six hours required in 1935.

Cleaning up is also quicker, thanks to dishwashers, garbage disposers, and trash compactors. Well-designed cabinets with space for everything also make it easier to get out of the kitchen fast.

Holiday dinners have certainly changed since Bing's first program in 1935. But even so, this meal still signals for many that an "old fashioned" Christmas has begun.

Baby's first Christmas

The joys of Christmas are somehow more special when there is someone new to share them with. The lights are brighter, the tree more shimmering, as family and friends gather to help make this first Christmas a very happy time for Baby and a memorable one for parents.

With more than 50 years of experience providing for babies needs, Gerber child care experts offer these suggestions for Baby's first Christmas.

- Simplify shopping. Use catalogs and shop by phone, whenever possible. If you do take Baby shopping, choose a time when the stores are least crowded. Should you decide to have a sitter, have a good supply of Gerber baby foods on hand. The sitter can easily prepare a nutritious and satisfying meal for Baby. Shopping will be more enjoyable if you know Baby is well fed.
- Proud relatives will want to give Baby the perfect gift and may consult you for suggestions. Smartly styled garments, carry-all bags, vinyl bibs, electric feeding dishes and other baby need items with the familiar Gerber trademark make welcome gifts. Babies love to unwrap brightly colored packages containing practical gifts. There is something to meet everyone's budget.
- Plan a flexible Christmas Day. Remember, with all of the excitement, babies need more rest. If grandparents live nearby, invite them over for package opening. Then take time out as a family to relax before gathering later for Christmas dinner.

Baby's first Christmas will always be a very special time to recall. With a little planning and a lot of love, Christmas will be wonderful for Baby and you.

Family gift:

Christmas vacation

You've earned it . . . you deserve it and it makes a very fine Christmas present — family vacation. There's good logic behind a family vacation as a Christmas present.

It's something everyone can enjoy, there's no worry about exchanging it for the right size and it's very much in style.

On the more serious side, chances are the children are on vacation from school, the older ones might be home from college and the entire family is together — an opportune time to vacation.

If you don't want to be on the road for the holiday itself there is always the week between Christmas and New Years.

The vacation should be viewed as a gift thought from the family to the family and that means that everyone should play a role in the plannings as well as the financing.

under the tree. So we picked out the best we could, trying to measure a tree in the woods against the size of a room, and progressively got gloomier. In the early dusk, we came dragging our trees home, looking again over the slushy lake, and the empty store window, not shouting much.

And we passed Denny O'Toole, who hadn't gone to cut a tree because his Aunt didn't believe in such nonsense, and we wondered if maybe he didn't have the right idea after all. You wouldn't be half so miserable with no tree at all as with one all dressed up and nothing but empty floor under it. We sewed popcorn into strings, got out the fancy cookies and the boxes of bulbs and dressed up the green trees in their finery and Christmas came mighty close then...and dread. There wasn't a small kid on the Island that night who didn't go down on his knees, even in the coldest bedrooms and pray hard.

The day before Christmas came and there were as many kids as seagulls perched on the shore. It was snowing and the lake still was slush ice. We hated to give up and some of us even went up to Frankie Left's barn and there was Queenie in her stable. The big kids told the little kids it sure looked like a tough night for Santa Claus in a snowstorm like we were having – he could never find the Island.

Christmas Eve came and the last loitering youngsters left the beach. That's the night you always had corned whitefish for dinner, and broke into the Christmas cookies. That's the night when old stories were told again, and at our house Denny Boyle talked so long of the Potato Famine, of the old days, how tough things were then, that all the kids knew he was conditioning us for the disappointments of Christmas morning. That's the night, too, when everybody trooped off to midnight Mass, leaving one of the family home to see that the candles didn't set the tree afire. We went down the long road past the homes where the yellow candles shone out and made the cold stingier. Down through the woods the light of the lantern began to take hold and turn everyone's shadow, even the small kids who stuck closest to the lantern, into giants on the snow. The old magic began to take hold again, and those small ones looked up into the snowy night and listened for they knew that Santa Claus always came mysteriously while they were at midnight Mass.

Then we came somberly back, lanterns, long shadows and quiet people in the hush of the snowstorm, and we no sooner passed the first home then there was a shout that began to spring up like a string of firecrackers going off behind us. It was a shout that they must have heard on the mainland. The kids whose homes were farther ahead started running.

I don't think there ever was a Christmas like that one for the kids on Beaver Island, for the kids whoi had hung on to faith against all reason. They'd never found as much under the tree...no ordinary toys but these were things made by the hand and the heart. These were the things that grown-up children had remembered fondly from their own childhood, recreated.

The fishermen had made boats and tugs and schooners and Freddie Martin got one with a clockwork spring engine. They had made steam rollers using the wooden corks from their nets for the big wheels. There were toboggans polished like mirrors and home hewn ball bats and the finest baseballs you ever saw would out of fishing twine. There were rag dolls made with the art mothers remembered from their own rag doll days. There is no knowing how many old sweaters were ripped, dyed and knitted into new mittens, bonnets and sweater. Fur coats re-emerged as a half-dozen new muffs and there's no remembering all the toys. They contrived with tin cans for the small ones – tin cans with waxed strings that howled deliciously when they were pulled. And tin cans with their sides half cut so that they were rocking cradles just the right size for those nickel dolls. Every one was a toy some parent had prized long-ago, and made with double pleasure. They all had been time-tried and wrought with affection that one was in something cherished. They couldn't miss.

I think Dennis O'Toole got more than any kid on the Island, and was deeply shaken in his skepticism. Everybody told him that Dennis O'Toole got more than any kid on the Island, and was deeply shaken in his skepticism. Everybody told him that Santa Claus had left something on their tree for him, and he went around collecting baseballs, bats, toboggans and boats. He was pretty mad at his aont and I'm afraid that he was well along in high school when he lost his faith in Santa Claus.

That's why it seems strange today to hear people moaning about not being able to get electric trains and walking dolls, of the blight of the war on the young. You don't buy Christmas. You make it with your hands and your heart.

Holiday Hints

GIFTS FROM YOUR OWN KITCHEN ARE SPECIAL

If you want to add a delightfully personal touch to your holiday gift giving this year, take some time-out from the tinsel and trimmings and stir up a batch of home-made dessert toppings.

Fruitcake, cookies and other delicacies prepared in the home are a holiday tradition, and there's no better way to share this custom than to present some fresh-from-the-kitchen gifts to those special people on your list.

Select attractive containers, so your handiwork can be fully appreciated, label them carefully and be sure to include a copy of the recipe with each gift.

Dessert toppings always come in handy, and Rum Chocolate Sauce and Tipsy Fruit add a colorful flair during the festive holiday season. Keep in mind that once begun, the tipsy fruit should never end. Every time you remove some fruit and syrup, be sure to replace it. Any canned fruit substituted for part of the dried fruits will do nicely.

While you're making your holiday plans, be sure to keep this recipe for Bacardi Rum Eggnog handy. Whether you're having a formal sit-down gathering or a 'spur-of-the-moment' get-together, it's a tasteful and traditional way to welcome your guests in the true holiday spirit.

RUM CHOCOLATE SAUCE

4 squares (1 ounce each) unsweetened chocolate
2 cups granulated sugar
1 can (14 1/2 ounces) evaporated milk
Dash salt
1/4 cup Bacardi light rum

In top of double boiler, melt chocolate over hot water. Add sugar and blend well. Stir in milk and salt. Cover and cook over boiling water until very hot. Beat until smooth. Blend in rum. Cool and store in covered jar in refrigerator.

Spoon into 1/2 pint jars and suggest as serving sauce over ice cream, crepes, toasted pound cake and angel food cake. Serve cold or reheated to warm. Makes about 3 cups.

TIPSY FRUIT

3 cups drained mixed canned fruits (mandarin oranges, pineapple chunks, sliced peaches, sliced pears)
1 package (8 ounces) dried mixed fruits
1/2 cup whole seedless green grapes
1/4 cup blanched whole almonds
2 cups superfine sugar
1 1/2 cups Bacardi light rum

Layer fruits and nuts into 2-quart glass container. Sprinkle sugar over all. Gradually add rum and move fruit gently to dissolve sugar. Be sure that rum covers fruit. (If necessary, increase amount of rum.) Cover container and let stand at room temperature at least 1 week.

Spoon into pint jars to give as gifts and suggest as serving for pound cake and ice cream or crepes. Makes about 2 quarts.

BACARDI RUM EGGNOG

1 quart of eggnog mix (as supplied by your dairy)
6 ounces Bacardi dark rum
6 ounces Bacardi Anejo rum
1 cup whipped heavy cream

Pour eggnog mix into punch bowl. Pour in Bacardi dark rum, Bacardi Anejo rum and stir. Fold in 1 cup whipped heavy cream. Chill in refrigerator. Stir. Top individual servings with nutmeg. Festive and delicious. Serves 12

Holly, ivy symbolic of holiday

For a green Christmas, consider holly and ivy. Holly is regarded by some to bring luck to men while ivy does the same for women. Holly represents the home, ivy the inn (for that Yule cup).

Holly is also close to Christmas symbolism with its white flowers, red ber- [illegible] Ivy can also depict the frailty of human nature clinging to heavenly strength.

And if you get a kiss under the mistletoe, remember that the Druids in Britain believed that the parasite brought great blessings. If the kiss is from someone you like, perhaps the superstition is true.

A pet for X-Mas? Choose carefully

A puppy is a Christmas gift that can bring joy, a headache, or heartache, depending on the family involved — and the dog. Today's lovable little ball of fur can turn into tomorrow's household delight if the buyer knows what he is doing.

There is the dog's disposition to be considered. All thoroughbreds have predictable characteristics. Some breeds are more likely than others to take intense dislike to the mailman; others are almost sure to dig in the garden; some breeds are howlers; a few varieties are difficult if not impossible to housebreak.

In a cross-breed, the dog owner cannot be so certain of characteristics. Often the sire is of unknown origin.

As the number of different breeds in the ancestry increases, so does the inability to predict what the dog will be like in disposition, size, and adaptability.

Most Christmas puppies will be bought for children, many of whom may not be old enough to know how to treat a dog.

One breeder refuses to sell to families with very young children because he says that the puppy has to take too much mauling. "If the dog snaps to defend himself, it's always the dog that gets the blame."

The local animal shelter can often help choose the right pet. An educated guess as to what the dog will be in a few months can keep the giver from selecting the wrong type of dog.

The welcome gift becomes a cause of heartbreak when a family finds that it has to give up a now-beloved pet that they cannot keep. The watchword is - give carefully when it comes to pets.

Homestyle pumpkin pie dessert a snap to prepare

One thing is certain about the holidays—there is never enough time for everything. Between shopping for holiday presents (or making them), planning and cooking festive menus, plus entertaining guests, you can "short-out" in short order.

Dream come true

Although baking is a favorite holiday chore, there comes that moment when you're ready to get the cookie and the pastry dough out of your hair forever. Your fervent wish is that someone will come to your rescue with a perfect holiday pumpkin pie.

Well, someone has. However, it's often only available in your supermarket for three months of the year; so now is the time to stock up for the season.

It's a traditional pumpkin pie prepared by Morton Frozen Foods. Morton makes their pie the way you would at home, using pumpkin as the principal ingredient Many others make a pumpkin custard type pie with water as the main ingredient.

Time to do more

With the time you'll save using Morton's frozen traditional pumpkin pie, you can concentrate on whipping up some scented cream to accent this family favorite. And, as a final touch, brew some spirited coffee to serve with it. That will put everyone in a holiday mood.

Since this dessert and coffee buffet can be assembled in minutes, you're free to enjoy more precious time with family and guests.

That's what holidays are all about.

FOR A HOMESTYLE HOLIDAY dessert party, rely on Morton Frozen Foods' delicious traditional pumpkin pie, scented whipped cream and spirited coffee.

SCENTED WHIPPED CREAM

- 1 tsp. vanilla extract
- ⅓ cup confectioners sugar
- 1 pint heavy cream
- Nutmeg, to taste

HAPPY HOLIDAYS COFFEE

- Strong black coffee
- Curacao
- Orange rind, optional

Brew strong coffee by your preferred method Place 2 measuring teaspoons granulated sugar in bottom of each coffee cup Add about 2 tablespoons curacao and fill cup with hot coffee. Garnish with grated orange rind or whipped cream, if desired

Vol. 34 No. 50 [illegible]

THE sixth grade band at the Charlevoix Middle School performed in concert Monday night. Among the performers were Heidi Sell and Mary Camilleri (inset).

No parking on city streets from 2-6 a.m.

Effective immediately, there will be no parking allowed on city streets or in public parking lots between 2 a.m. and 6 a.m., City Manager Norm Gaffney announced.

Gaffney said enforcement of the city's snow parking ordinance will make it easier for work crews to plow the streets and it will make it "safer and easier to drive in our city."

Violators will be ticketed, he said.

In past years, the city – attempting to save on overtime pay – waited until 7 a.m. to start plowing. But, Gaffney said, "a better job can be accomplished, and a much safer condition be offered our citizens, if at the time reports show a heavy forecast, and night officers find an accumulation of one inch or more, the Department of Public Works foreman be called, and plows proceed to go out.

"In my opinion, the cost of allowing the snow to build up, and then plowing will cost more than the overtime," Gaffney said.

City officials have been looking for places to dump snow, too.

-Also, Gaffney said, it is illegal to operate a snowmobile on city property.

"Complaints have been received as to damage already being done at the city golf course and other properties by snowmobiles," Gaffney said. "This damage has tremendous affect on the greens of the course and is expensive to repair."

Violators will be apprehended.

The city manager has also received several phone calls from citizens asking that he make an appeal to city residents that sidewalks be shoveled in the winter.

"The last few callers complained of problems experienced by small school children who are forced to walk on the streets," Gaffney said. "The major problem seems to be that snow is shoveled from the driveway on the sidewalk making it difficult to walk."

Gaffney added that one of the callers explained that her child was injured last year and thought the assistance of the news media might save an injury or a life.

"So, lets all decide to be cognizant of the child on his way to school, senior citizens and the pedestrian," Gaffney said. "We are hopeful all citizens will attempt to keep their sidewalk passable."

Ma Bell granted easement

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night approved easement rights over school property, payment of debt retirement obligations, presented a certificate to the business manager and heard reports from three faculty members.

Michigan Bell representatives, who earlier had requested an easement from Robinson Street to Carpenter Avenue along the west boundary of the property, now requested an easement along Carpenter Avenue outside the fence at the football field and track. The easement was granted. The request was approved by a vote of 5-1 with one member absent. Max Novak cast the nay vote.

Payments of $8,784 to the City National Bank, Trust Division, Detroit, on the obligation of the bonds dated April 1, 1959, (high school) and $25,109 to the National Bank of Detroit, Trust Division for obligation on bonds dated July 1, 1968, (Elementary School) were approved. The payments are due Jan. 1, 1979.

Max Novak, president of the board, presented a certificate to Vincent R. Olach, business manager, who has been named a Registered School Business Official by the Association of School Business Officials of the U.S. and Canada. To earn the title, a business manager must have a degree from a recognized university or college, serve for a minimum of three years as a business official in a school district and meet other criteria relating to the position. Olach's specialties are financial planning and budgeting.

The Building and Site Committee reported on the status of the renovation program at the middle school and suggested that the principal's office be re-located. However, no decision was made and the matter tabled until more information is available.

Gary Stutzman, who heads the music department, reported on the marching band's fall activities and on other phases of the program and recommended revising the music program at the middle school. Proposed schedule changes at the middle school may remedy the situation.

Dale Burge, athletic director, reported on the fall sports and outlined upcoming sports programs in the school.

Charles Bentley, counselor at the high school, reported on curriculum plans underway and said he was having trouble finding people in the various departments to chair committees. Either science or language arts will likely be the subject studied in 1979.

The next meeting of the board has been scheduled for Jan. 15.

Hospital bazaar 'a success'

"A stunning success."

That was how the Charlevoix Area Hospital employees' Salad Luncheon and Bazaar was described by hospital executive secretary Diane Novotny.

The hospital employees raised another $1,150.00 at last Wednesday's luncheon and bazaar at the American Legion Hall. All the funds will be added to the hospital's Expansion and Renovation Project Fund Drive.

The employees at the Charlevoix Area Hospital have now raised $47,882 for the hospital project.

The major fund raising campaign was conducted last summer, when the minimum goal of $750,000 was attained.

However, fund raising is continuing throughout the hospital's service area – Charlevoix and Antrim Counties – because many people were not contacted during the summer's campaign and several area corporations postponed their giving decisions until late this year or early in January 1979.

The 135 hospital employees kicked off the formal drive last summer with a pledge of $40,000, an amount which then amazed professional fund raisers because of its unprecedented generosity.

Hospital officials continue to be "amazed" as Administrator Richard Krueger said, by the loyalty and dedication of the employees at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The $1,150 raised at the luncheon came from the sale of lunch tickets, all the food for which was made and donated by employees; from the sale of items at the bazaar, all of which were made and donated by hospital and employees; the raffle of an afghan made and donated by Operating Room Supervisor R.N. Audrey Egler (won by Edith Harris of Charlevoix); the creation and donation of a three foot tall Raggedy Ann doll by Barb Gebott of the admitting office (won by Al Breeze); and Mrs. Gebott's familiar Raggedy Andy doll (won by Virginia Jarvis).

In addition, the employees have put together a 300 page cookbook, "Rx Tender, Lovin' Cookin'," the sale of which has netted $800 to date. Additional copies of the cookbook are still being assembled by employee volunteers working evenings to collate the pages, "a tedious and time consuming job," according to Krueger, who himself has given three nights to the project.

The cookbook was inspired by the regular potluck lunches hospital employees hold – reputedly gourmet feasts. It will be for sale in the Showcase gift shop at the hospital.

Among the more exotic recipes in the book are Nurse Anesthetist Joan Strawbridge's "Zetti" (a beef and egg noodle dish); RN Josie Young's "Kartoffelsalat (a marinated potato salad); and Dr. Tai-Hee Kang's "Bulgogi", a Korean dish cooked on the table-side hibachi.

Ms. Novotny pointed out that in addition to the time hospital employees gave to putting together the cookbook the food and items for sale at the bazaar, employes either took a day off, or gave up a day of vacation or personal leave, to work at the bazaar.

Asked why the hospital employees give so much of their hospital, Ms. Novotny observed:

"Everyone loves this little hospital. It has a personable atmosphere. We like working together.

"Everyone here has worked hard over the years to see it improve to where it is today.

"They are proud of what we have achieved as far as the quality of medical care here.

"Now we are working hard for the day when we will have more room in which to work," Ms. Novotny concluded.

High school concert Monday

The Charlevoix High School Music Department will present its annual Christmas gift to the community in the form of a concert to be held at the high school gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

Appearing in the concert will be the Charlevoix High School Symphony and Concert Bands under the direction of Gary Stutzman and the High School Choir of 31 voices directed by Steven Stargardt.

Music by the Symphony Band will include such familiar selections as the "Christmas Concert March" by Curnon; Leroy Anderson's "Christmas Festival"; "Sleigh Ride", also by Anderson; Irving Berlin's "White Christmas"; "Trilogy of European Carols", Cobine, concluding with a concert march, "Questar", Eric Osterling.

The Concert Band has selected as its gifts "Sing of Christmas" by Ralph Herman; "Grat Songs of Christmas", Robert Lowden; "Jingle Bell Rhapsody" and "The Christmas Suite", both by Harold Walters.

The High School Choir, directed and accompanied by Mr. Stargardt, will present "What Is the Little Baby's Name" by Gaither; traditional carols, "Do You Hear What I Hear" and "Carol of the Bells" and, in a lighter vein, "If Christmas Isn't Love..."

The concert will be presented without charge. However, a free will offering will be accepted.

Santa arrives Saturday at 1 p.m.

Santa Claus will be arriving in Charlevoix Saturday at 1 p.m. And for the first time Santa will be bringing Mrs. Claus to Charlevoix with him.

The North Pole residents will be without Rudolph and the other reindeer, however. Instead, Santa and Mrs. Claus will be coming to town aboard a Charlevoix Fire Department truck.

They will be passing out candy and nuts to children at 1 p.m. by Clutton and Bridge.

Afterwards, at 1:30 p.m., a matinee will be held at the Cinema III. Children will be able to see Gregory Peck star in "The Yearling" (Yes, moms and dads, it's rated G). Three cartoons will also be shown. The price of admission? Just a can or package of food. The matinee is sponsored by the Lions Club.

But the holiday fun doesn't end there.

On Sunday afternoon, the 2nd annual Christmas Bazaar and Family Fun Day will be held at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

The four hour bazaar starts at 1 p.m. It is sponsored by the Parents Advisory Council.

All sorts of games will be played and snacks will be available. There will be a bake sale and a book sale, too.

Among those planning to attend is - you guessed it - Santa Claus. He'll be present so children can have their picture taken with him.

Proceeds from the bazaar will be used to purchase additional bleachers for the gym.

Brinker named city comptroller

City Manager Norm Gaffney announced that James M. Brinker has been appointed city treasurer comptroller.

Brinker will start his duties in Charlevoix on Jan. 3.

"The new City Charter of Charlevoix and administrative code necessitates various changes in our system of government," Gaffney said. "The appointment of a city treasurer who will act as a comptroller is one of the changes so provided."

Brinker has been city treasurer in Flushing for eight years.

He is active in youth work, civic organizations and senior citizens activities. He enjoys gardening, camping and skiing.

Brinker plans to move to Charlevoix in the near future.

The Charlevoix Common Council approved Brinker's appointment last week, however, it was not released until Brinker formally accepted the position.

City officials received several applications for the position. But several of the applicants salary demands were higher than officials expected. It was not immediately known what Brinker's salary will be.

Environmental committee meets

[illegible] Weathervane [illegible] Medusa [illegible]

The committee continues to act as a watchdog for the community and toward this end will meet periodically to review problems and progress.

Copies of correspondence from the Austin Powder Co. and C. L. Howlett regarding noise reduction were read. Accordingly, the committee [illegible] suggested method of [illegible] blasting [illegible] and techniques to reduce [illegible] Alan Howlett stated that the [illegible] would be eliminated once the conversion is completed.

However the committee was distressed that apparently no action has been taken on the fencing project, and even though Medusa has agreed to limited protection, by state statute the entire quarry area must be fenced with at least a four foot fence, the committee said. The committee intends to follow-up on this with Charlevoix Township officials.

Further follow-up was also discussed on the implementation of the District No. 3 Health Department involvement of policing certain functions of the cement manufacturing process. The committee said continues to welcome input from the community regarding the operation, and encourages anyone with observations or problems to advise them accordingly at: Committee for the Preservation of the Environment P.O. Let's Look

by Jim Thomas

Not too many years ago, the only kind of residential unit anybody could own was a house or a trailer. Now one of the biggest new things on the real estate market is condominiums. They have a lot of appeal to many people, especially those who have few or no children and aren't particularly interested in taking care of a lot of property or worrying about the boiler breaking down. The development owners take care of upkeep. Condominiums are also an investment as is all real estate. So, condominium owners can have all the benefits of home ownership the convenience of apartment living, with much of the responsibility alternated.

Our staff at THOMAS REAL ESTATE, 100 Pine River Lane, 547-4494 would like to wish you and your family a Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year. May 1979 bring you and yours health, happiness and prosperity as well as peace across all corners of the globe. We look forward to serving all your real estate needs for many years to come. Hours: Daily 9-5, evenings, and Sun. by appointment.

Do not forget service fee expenses when figuring the cost of a condominium.

Employees of Charlevoix County will celebrate the holidays with a "Christmas Around the World" party on Dec. 21.

Charlevoix promoting cross country skiing

By [illegible]

[illegible]

Jacqui Merta of the Chamber of Commerce said that last winter her directors began talking about cross country skiing in the area and how to develop the Charlevoix Winter Cup cross country ski races in February.

In recent years Charlevoix has benefitted from the growth of winter sports activities. Motels, restaurants and merchants have enjoyed increasing success with winter business, stimulated by the popularity of downhill skiing at nearby resorts.

The Chamber of Commerce has been quietly promoting cross country skiing at such areas as the Jordan Valley, Bells Bay und the Springbrook Pathway near Thunder Mountain. But without shops in town from which to rent skis and lacking professional coordination of the races, the effort remained low key.

Now two shops, the Bahnhof and Silent Sports North have joined Bit of Finland renting cross country skis and paraphenalia.

And with the opening of Windmill Farms 500 acres with 13 ½ miles of groomed trails, it is hoped cross country skiing will draw winter visitors on its own right.

According to Ms. Merta and Nellie Hiehle of Silent Sports North, manager of Windmill Farm, area motels and restaurants have cross country ski packages in conjunction with Windmill Farm.

Charlevoix County has uncounted miles of cross country skiing potential, with a variety of skiing conditions. While Windmill Farm will have [illegible]

The Jordan River trails which begin with the nearly ten miles of Warner Creek Pathway are marked and groomed where necessary, according to DNR spokesmen.

Paula Holmes, former outdoor editor, who skied the Warner Creek Pathway last year, described it as varied scenery, with some especially beautiful spots, "through a pine forest with natural arches over the trail and a little further on past a beaver dam and across a marsh."

Young State Park between Charlevoix and Boyne City and the Boyne City Road, has four miles of groomed trails across the campground's road from the winter camping area.

All the cross country skiing areas are closed to snowmobiles, to protect the trails and provide the serenity that cross country skiers seek.

As Nellie Hiehle skied around the red trail (graded "easy"), skirting the circumference of Windmill Farm, she talked about some of the plans for the winter.

The ski trails, she said, are an extension of the hiking trails developed by owners Stewart and Susan Boal of Winnetka, Ill.

To groom the trails for cross country skiing a "track setter" will be pulled behind a snowmobile, leaving a path for the skis plus "sculptured" compacted sides for poling, Ms. Hiehle explained.

"There will be, however, places on [illegible]

Ms. Hiehle, a native of Alkmaar, The Netherlands (20 miles north of Amsterdam) is very much at home on the ski trails, although as a child in Holland she was more interested in ice skating.

"We used to skate over the canals from city to city. I still have the first prize I ever won, from second grade, when I beat my boyfriend," she laughs.

Sports are a way of life in Dutch schools. Ms. Hiehle is an accomplished gymnast, swimmer, skater, and equestrienne, as well as downhill and cross country skier. She is a Certified cross country ski instructor.

She moved to Flint with her family when she was 16, continuing her sports activities while gaining an MA from the University of Michigan in mathematics.

That experience she is putting to use as a consultant to the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District as a consultant.

Ms. Hiehle came to Charlevoix last spring as a result of conversations between William Kenifeck, Tom Short, owner of Silent Sports in Flint, and Ms. Hiehle.

Short was a crewmember on Kenifeck's one ton racing yacht CHEAP SHOT.

"While drifting along, during a race, they talked about cross country skiing," she reports.

As a result of that and ensuing discussions, a branch of Silent Sports was opening in Charlevoix and the [illegible]

Charges for skiing at Windmill Farm will be [illegible] per day for adults, [illegible] for children under 12. Season passes are $15 for a family and $10 per person. Lessons will be available at $6 for two hours with groups limited to 10.

The ski area will be opened from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week. "And we are getting miners lamps (worn on your heads) for night skiing," Ms. Hiehle added.

Ms. Hiehle is also helping the fledgling Charlevoix Area Cross Country Ski Club plan its activities, which will include skiing trips to trails throughout Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

A range of clinics and race training events are being discussed, as well. A race training track will be developed at Windmill Farm.

The highlight of Charlevoix's cross country skiing season is the annual Winter Cup Festival, on February 16, 17, and 18.

Jacqui Merta reports that she has received at least a dozen inquires for the races, including a request from one down state cross country ski club for 50 applications.

The races will be at Windmill Farm. They will range from a 1 Kilometer race (for children under 11) to 10 and 25 Klm races, with several different divisions.

They will be named from among the following candidates: Larry Edwards of Dapper Dick's Deli, Dick Kenney of Carson Lumber Co., Jim Miller of Staley Hardware, Richard Pajtas of Puintner & Pajtas, attorneys and Jack Urban of Crown Drug Center.

THE "THOMAS FRIANT" was one of the many steamers that brought not only people, but goods and supplies to Charlevoix before the days of the railroad. Here she is shown entering Charlevoix Harbor in 1887.

Before the railroad came to Charlevoix

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of articles taken from Will E. Hampton's "Memories of Charlevoix the Beautiful Six Decades Ago", written in 1955 when Hampton was an octogenarian. In this installment, he is writing about the days before the railroad came to Charlevoix.

Before the railroad came, all goods and supplies had to come by boat, and the main line in early days was the Northern Transit Co. with boats built to pass through the Welland Canal, and that ran from Chicago to Ogdensburg on Lake Ontario.

They were wood burners, and Fox Rose & Butters did quite a business furnishing the four foot cuts, which were loaded from their dock near the mouth of the river. The Eastern Transit Co. had two steamers larger than those of the Northern line, one of them being the Idaho, on which was a fifteen year old boy. I once made a trip to Chicago. Name of the other I do not recall. The Champlian burned off Fisherman's Island, and a sister of Mrs. Harrison Bedford was lost in the disaster. Later the hull was towed to a ship-builders, cut in two, and rebuilt and named the City of Charlevoix, and put on the route from Chicago to Mackinac Island.

There was another incident of a steamer being beached in broad daylight just south of the piers, that caused considerable talk. It was something that was hard to explain, as there was no sea running to prevent entering between the piers without difficulty. The general concensus of opinion seemed to be that the Captain and first mate were visiting with two ladies in the Captain's cabin and did not hear the whistle for the port when blown. No damage was done to the steamer, the City of Petoskey, but she was beached until her companion boat of the Northern Michigan Transportation Co. could arrive and with help of local tugs, pull her off the sandy shore.

The two resorts, the Chicago Club, and the Belvedere Club, were running in 1890, both being more generally patronized by people from Chicago in one respect and Kalamazoo on the south side. It was long before the time of the automobile, and people came by boat from Chicago, or train to Petoskey and steamer from there. It was a quiet, lovely atmosphere on both resorts, with the summer citizens mixing with permanent residents in a friendly fashion.

When the railroad came, and the Pere Marquette R.R. Co. built the Inn on the north side, on the shore of Pine Lake, the old manner seemed to change and a more "sporty" class of summer resorters began to be seen on the streets.

Speaking of the railroad, the road had stopped at Traverse City for a couple of years before starting to extend the rails further north. Naturally everyone in town was anxious for the trains to be seen in Charlevoix. Agents of the railroad came to talk with leaders of Charlevoix about a "bonus" to bring the rails through our town. It was a cinch that the road would eventually have to cross the upper cut on its way to Petoskey, but in anxiety to ensure its coming our way, the city voted bonds in the amount of $50,000 to "build a bridge" across the upper cut. The road came, and the bridge is still there.

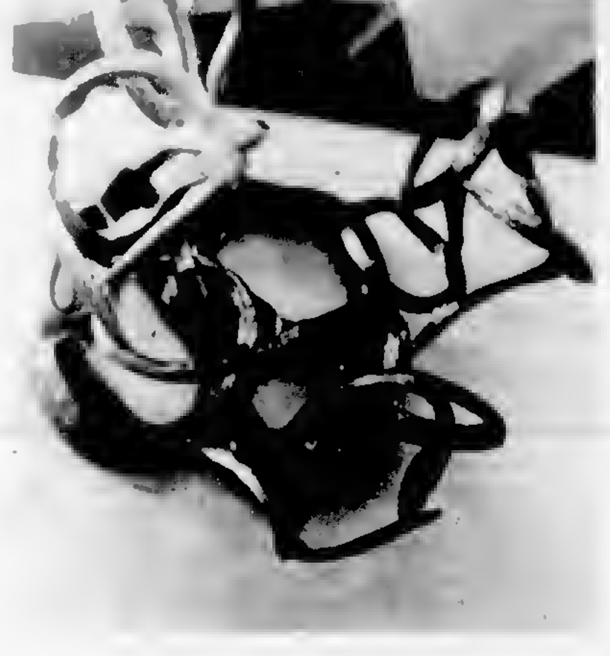
Joseph sculpture on exhibit



Inspired by the ornate wooden carvings on temple doors in India, William Joseph has created a new sand cast aluminum sculpture that is on display in the Charlevoix Public Library.

The sculpture was done by Joseph, who summers in Charlevoix, after he returned home from India recently.

Joseph presented the sculpture to the local art committee in memory of his late sister, Florence "Sissi" Joseph Longini.

"I'm honored to be in the Charlevoix Library with the Nathan Cumming's artifacts," Joseph said.

"I'm thrilled," said Edith Gilbert of the committee. "We have such an excellent art program in our schools. We have so many artists in the area, and this is important because we have no art museum and this allows the children to see original pieces of art. Here, they can see art instead of having to look at slides and photographs all the time."

Besides Joseph's sculpture, the school has three other art pieces on display at various buildings.

Joseph has a bacehlor of arts degree from Harvard. He also did his graduate study at Harvard under Marcel Breuer and Walter Gropius. He studied for eight years at Black Mountain College in North Carolina under Josef and Anni Albers and Lyonel Feininger.

Joseph has exhibited his work at several museums including the Saginaw Art Museum, the Detroit Institute of Fine Arts, the Cincinnati Museum and the Taft Museum also in Cincinnati. During the winter, Joseph resides in Cincinnati.

"My interest is 100 percent with fine arts; sculpture and wall hangings exclusively," Joseph said. "I do no commercial art work of any kind whatsoever.

"My main interest is in creating aluminum sculpture that is cast in a commercial foundry in Sidney, Ohio; according to my specifications and foundry patterns," he said. "I make my own foundry patterns; creating the shapes and forms from my own imagination out of wax and styrofoam."

Golda Meir will be missed

The world may never again see the likes of Golda Meir, the feisty little lady who rose from the ghettoes of Europe to the pinnacles of political power in a world dominated by men – and Golda Meir.

Mrs. Meir was 80 and had a good, long, active life, so there are no regrets. It would be unfair to wish the suffering, the medication, and IV's to continue a minute longer than they did.

Still it is a shame that she couldn't have hung on a few more weeks – perhaps days – to see the formal signing of a peace agreement between Israel, the nation she helped found, and Egypt, traditionally Israel's most formidable foe.

If the peace talks fail at this point, it is because Golda isn't there to make a wry face at the punchy negotiators and tell them to knuckle down; if they succeed, it will be because Golda is up there somewhere pulling the strings.

Golda Meir was born in Kiev, Russia, May 3, 1898, and immigrated to Milwaukee, Wisc., with her parents and two sisters in 1906. The family bought a small home with a grocery store in front to make a living. Golda attended Fourth Street Elementary School and at the age of 10 she organized her first political party: The American Young Sisters Society, a group devoted to providing free textbooks to all children.

As a young woman, Mrs. Meir became a schoolteacher and was intensely interested in Zionism, Socialism and politics generally. When she met her husband-to-be, Morris Myerson in Denver, she told him she would marry him if he went to Palestine with her. He agreed reluctantly and they arrived in the Middle East in 1921.

But things didn't work out financially for the Myersons, even though she took in washing to help make ends meet.

Mrs. Meir finally got a job as secretary of the Women's Labor Council, which involved a great deal of travel to spread the word about Palestine to Jewish women. She and "gentle Morris" saw less and less of each other and eventually they separated.

Her big break in world politics came in 1946 when she took over for Moshe Sharett as No. 2 leader of the Jewish Agency which ran Jewish Palestine. A decade later she was appointed by Prime Minister David Ben-Guiron to replace Sharett as foreign minister.

"She's the only man in my cabinet," Ben-Gurion said later in reply to criticism of women serving in the inner-sanctums of government.

It was Ben-Gurion who made her Hebraicize her name from Myerson to Meir.

As foreign minister, Mrs. Meir organized an Israeli peace corps which sent representatives to the emerging nations in Africa. She also toured the world as representative of the Israeli government and her dry wit became legend in capitals around the globe.

She retired briefly in 1965, but a split in the coalition government forced her back into politics. Four years later she became interim prime minister upon the death of Levi Eshkol and later prime minister.

She was at the helm when Israel fought its two-year war with Egypt and later was deeply involved in diplomatic maneuvering to achieve peace in the Middle East.

But she was never without opposition. One of her foes once said: "She comes clumping along with that sad, suffering face drawn with pain from her varicose veins and God knows what-all. You rush to help her to your seat. She thanks you kindly. And the next thing you know, you're dead."

In 1974, after yet another war, Mrs. Meir retired, this time for good. Her health was failing, but for the remainder of her life she served as a wise counsel to the Israeli government and a Jewish grandmother to the world.

Despite her years, she will be sorely missed as a mover and shaker on the international scene.

Perrier water? Be serious

Heaven knows I am without humor. I appreciate a good joke as well as the next person.

When the Pet Rock came out, I was the first to buy mine a leash and exercise it daily.

I loved the Sand Breeding kit that contained a male and female vial of sand to grow my own beach.

And no one got a bigger honk out of the newest crazy, "Weed Seed" for people with brown thumbs who are sick of providing plants with sun, water, sweet talk, and soft music, than I did.

But the other night when a hostess handed me a goblet and said, "Try this. It's Perrier water. You'll love it," I decided we have gone too far with gimmicks.

"Be serious," I said. "What is this really? It tastes like water."

"It is water. It's imported from France."

"What's the joke?"

"No joke. People from all over are drinking it before dinner with just a twist of lemon or lime in it."

"How much does it cost?"

"Eighty-nine cents a pint."

"You're kidding."

I looked around and every person in the room was sipping this clear, tasteless, liquid like it was a rare, vintage wine. I felt like we were all doing a remake of the "The Emperor's New Clothes."

A woman in disco pants and a silk overblouse said, "Could I have a refill?"

"Absolutely," said the host and disappeared with her glass.

"What year is this?" she asked, belting down a glass.

"June, 1963."

"I don't know about you," she said, "but I find it quite robust, very complex, but never pretentious."

I eased over to where my husband was standing. "Can you believe we're all standing around drinking imported water?"

"Yes, and I think Jack has had too much. He's beginning to sing in French."

"Frankly, I find it reminiscent of old world ambiance."

"Will you knock it off? We're not talking about vineyards of France, we're talking about water!"

I ran to the sink and emptied it out and filled my glass from the faucet. A shot of fluoride helped. Anything!

The story behind the wrinkle

Fruits of various types have been dried throughout the world for many centuries. Egyptians discovered the principles of sun drying when they noted that mature grapes left hanging on the vine lost their moisture, but gained a new sweet flavor.

Raisins were used by the Israelites to pay their taxes to King David. And today raisins are one of the most popular ingredients during the holiday season. They add a tangy flavor and chewy texture to many holiday baked goods. If raisins are one of your favorite ingredients for holiday cooking you will find them rising in cost. Unpredicted September rains in California's Central Valley destroyed much of this years raisin crop. To help you get the most for your money here are some storing and handling hints.

STORAGE HINTS

–Controlled, cool storage in the best way to keep raisins. Heat and air can cause them to dry out and humid conditions can cause the sugar in the fruit to crystallize. So, once the package has been opened, the raisins should be placed in an air-tight container and refrigerated. Raisins will retain their flavor, color and nutritive value up to two years when stored in the refrigerator.

–Raisins can also be stored in the freezer for even longer periods of time. They thaw quickly at room temperature.

–If raisins have formed sugar crystals or become dry due to improper storage, rinsing them with hot water will dissolve the crystals and restore moisture.

HANDLING TIPS

–For easy chopping, toss 1 cup of raisins with 1 teaspoon salad oil and chop with a sharp knife. Raisins also chop will in a food processor. Chopped raisins impart a full flavor to baked goods.

–If a recipe calls for ground raisins, use an oil-coated blender or meat grinder.

To plump raisins, cover the amount needed with very hot water and soak for 2-5 minutes; drain. Longer soaking results in flavor and nutrient loss. A new flavor dimension can be added by plumping raisins in fruit juices or other beverages and refrigerating overnight. Reserve juices for other uses.

–For better distribution in a cake batter, stir ¾ of the amount needed into the batter. Pour the batter into cake pans, then sprinkle the remaining raisins on top.

Chalk up a victory for the little guys

Chalk one up for the little guys. Allstate has changed its mind. John Rennels' insurance won't be cancelled after all.

Rennels' problems were described here last month. He's the longtime Allstate customer who moved from the suburbs into a rented house on the northwest side of Detroit. He had no trouble buying an Allstate policy on his furniture when he moved into his new home. But a week later, Allstate sent him a form letter canceling the policy.

Rennels suspected redlining, and he was angry. He began asking questions that weren't answered by the form letter. Allstate eventually explained that its hired investigator had looked at the outside of Rennels' new home and decided it was worth $16,000. Allstate said it didn't insure property worth less than $20,000.

It was pointed out that Rennels was insuring his furniture, not the house, and that for all the Allstate investigator knew, Rennels could own antique furniture worth $100,000. Allstate said it didn't make any difference how much Rennels' property is worth, Allstate won't insure it if it's inside a building worth less than $20,000.

For the ordinary Detroiter trying to buy insurance, that would have been the end of discussions with Allstate. But Rennels is extra stubborn. He kept pressing Allstate to reconsider, and I wrote about the case. If you would suggest that the publicity prompted Allstate to give Rennels more attention than it usually gives to canceled customers, I wouldn't argue with you.

Rennels argued that his $16,000 home would be worth much more than $20,000 if it were located north of Eight Mile Road. Allstate conceded this point but denied that is discriminates against Detroit residents. There is such a difference in home values because people will pay a lot of money not to live in "older urban areas," Allstate said.

"By 'older urban areas' they mean integrated neighborhoods," Rennels claimed. "And to my way of thinking, Allstate is willing to capitalize on these racial biases by setting up guidelines that makes homes uninsurable in Detroit while the same home in the suburbs is insurable."

Allstate rejected this argument, but it did agree to make a second inspection of Rennels' home. And guess what? It was determined that the house is worth $20,000 after all. Allstate canceled the cancellation.

"I thanked them for the reconsideration and said I hoped that my views, rather than my lot size, were factors in their corporate decision," Rennels said.

He thanked me for my help. I wish I could help myself.

When I lived in Lapeer, it cost me $684 a year to insure 2 cars. I never owned a garage. The car sat outside, in the driveway or on the street, every night. I drove to work every day.

Now that I live in Detroit, the cars are garaged behind locked gates, with a 24-hour guard. I walk or take the bus to work. And the same insurance costs me $1,114. That's a $430 increase.

Redlining? Not according to Jack Butterick, executive vice-president of the Independent Insurance Agents of Michigan. He'd rather call it "geographical classification".

"You were a whole heck of a lot better risk in Lapeer than you are in beautiful downtown Detroit," Butterick told me, "not necessarily because of you, but because of what you are exposed to...The crime rate in the Detroit metropolitan area is unfortunate and regrettably horrendous...Once you leave that fortress of a garage...you become immediately susceptible to a total theft or strip of parts on your vehicle like no place else in the state.

How should I answer Butterick's logic and statistics? I could make the usual argument that insurance companies should give more weight to individuals and less weight to geography. But I'd rather tell him what happened in Lapeer during a recent dark night.

Someone broke into several cars in my old neighborhood. One of the cars belonged to my insurance agent. Life can be beautiful.

When is the age of reasoning?

Time Passages
Al Stewart
Arista Records Inc. 1978
Time Passages
It was late in December the sky turned to snow
All round the day was going down slow night like a river
beginning to flow
I felt the beat of my mind go drifting into time passages
yes [illegible] in the fading light
Time passages
Buy me a ticket on the last train home
tonight.

Well, I'm not the kind to live in the past the years run too short and the days too fast
The things you lean on the things that don't last
Well it's just now and then that my line gets cast into these time passages there's something back there that you left behind
oh time passages
Buy me a ticket on the last train home
tonight

Hear the echoes and feel yourself starting to turn don't know why you should feel that there's something to learn
It's just a game that you play.

Well the picture is changing now you're part of a crowd they're laughing at something the [illegible] a [illegible]
a girl [illegible] towards you you were used to know you reach out your hand but you're all alone in those time passages
I know you're in there you're just out of sight
oh time passages
Buy me a ticket on the last train home
tonight

When does it first hit you — that compulsion of having to sum up who you are to date with all the inherent strengths and weaknesses, and then, that forcing yourself to look back with pride or regret at the lot of it. When do we send for the forms so that we can make up that income tax statement, that New Year's resolution of the mature conscience?

I watch our children grow. They are largely concerned with the additive and experimental aspects of life. No totaling up there. I have a few elderly friends who are concerned with the reflective and reminiscent aspects. So I have decided that calculating your worth, then improving upon it, comes somewhere in between. When you're young, there's no time for reflection and when you're old, there's too much. As for myself, I guess that I'm midway, and Al Stewart is singing my song.

But when did it first hit me? Was it 10 or 16 or 21 or just recently? No wonder churches have such a hard time deciding on an "age of reason," that arbitrary age at which one can be held accountable for ones thoughts, words and deeds. If I'm any example, the age [illegible] their levels are a series of crises or plateaus which we can expect to reach and pass through on that grand journey through life.

But I think Al Stewart did a better job of summing up our dilemma. Maybe I'd just rather sing, then plow my way through life. There's no real age at which we can say "Now you are old enough to understand that your past has implications for your present and future, my dear." I suspect that we come to realizations past, present and future when we arrive at some hypothetical milestone. It all depends on how sheltered our lives were. There are lonely pensive children who have been forced to accept responsibility too soon. But by the same token, there are selfish, thoughtless adults who still don't practice responsibility at all.

Al Stewart, in "Time Passages" combines two themes: dealing with aloneness and the desire to go back to a time in our lives when we were non-reflective, not of age. Unfortunately, there is no ticket to anywhere that will make feeling alone easier or responsibility disappear. But I guess it doesn't hurt to sing about it. It didn't hurt Al Stewart. This is his first big hit since "The Year of the Cat" in 1976.

Letters to Santa

Dear Santa Claus,

How's the North Pole? How are you and Mrs Claus? I bet your workshop is busy. Are the elves busy?

Well I hope you have a Merry Christmas.

I would like a T.V. game, carpeting in my room and a whole wall of cork board, some cat posters, some horse posters, and a race car set that's easier to set up than the last one you got me. And I'd like some crosscountry skis, and downhill skis.

I would like you to get my mom some skis too. And some boots. And get Gary some skis and some boots.

And I want the whole world to have a Merry Christmas.

Sincerely,
Lori Cole

Dear Santa Claus,

How are your elves? I hope they are doing fine. How is the business? By the way how many toys do you make a year? It better be a lot of toys. Because there are thousands and thousands of kids that want toys. But I want Battle Cruiser, new nails, paint and wood. I have a friend named Curt and he needs a new bike and a set of crayons. He also needs a pad of paper. And I think the world needs sunshine and happiness.

Yours truly,
Matt Dixon

Dear Santa Claus,

How is it in the North Pole?

This year I would like you to bring: love to my family, joy to my friends, and peace, love, and joy to the world. I would like you to bring my sister her two front teeth.

Please bring my mom a new dress and my dad a new belt.

Try to bring me: A pair of roller skates, a twenty dollar bill, an organ or a piano, a pair of skis, a Hollie Hobbie oven, a sewing machine, a big teddy bear, 3 Barbie dolls and a Barbie doll clothes, and a train set.

Yours truly,
Cheryl Drewanz

Dear Santa,

How are you and Mrs. Santa? Is the North Pole coldest this time of season? I bet it is. I would give all my life to the world if I had to. I would like to get my mom an all food grinder. What I mean is it will grind bread, carrots, apples, and meat I can't think of anything to get my dad so I hope by the end of this month (November) and about the tenth of next month I will have thought of something. I almost forgot his birthday is the 16th of December and I just can't think of any thing to get him either. So I hope you will help me find something for him for his birthday and Christmas. But most of all give my love to the world because I can't go across the world.

Yours truly,
Mindy Hand

Dear Santa,

Me and my family would like a humidifier. You know those things that make you wet, well only moist because we have a big house and alot of dust collects and we get dry.

Your elves are going to be busy this year!

Anyway I would like a new skateboard and a new sled. See you Christmas. I hope all those poor people get food and peace.

Love,
Charlie Austin

Dear Santa Claus,

How are you in the North Pole? I am fine here. My mom, and dad, and my sister and my baby brother are ok too. I hope there are a lot of kids that are good so they can get a lot of toys.

I am going to go to Florida for Christmas.

Well, now I will tell you what I want you to bring me, A pair of boots that you can ride a horse in.

I want you to bring me a different thing a pair of cross country skis, and boots.

I want you to bring love to my family and cheefulness to my friends. Last of all to the world bring happiness to everyone.

Sincerely,
Maria Parsons

Dear Santa Claus,

How is the weather down there or should I say up there?

In the last few years I didn't really think you were true, but last year there was a toy under the tree that was for me. And my whole family said that they didn't wrap it, and I believed them, some how. But then when I opened it. It was a puppy, and I named her Lizzy, and she was a Basset hound.

Sincerely yours,
Christian LaCroix

Dear Santa Calus,

How are you and How is the North Pole. I would like you to bring me some skis. I also want you to bring happiness to my family. I would also like you to make my friends all they want for Christmas. Make them remember the real meaning of Christmas. I would like you to bring the world peace. How can anybody enjoy Christmas if they're fighting. Bring love to all the world for maybe they'll stop fighting for long enough to enjoy Christmas.

Sincerely,
Kris Washburn

Dear Santa Claus,

How is it at the North Pole. My brother told my mom to leave the fire going till 3:00 to see you come down the chimney. Santa I bet you are getting candy canes and toys ready. It's getting cold up here. For Christmas I want a white horse, and a new desk so I can work on it, and white drawing paper so I can draw, a set of markers for the pictures I draw, and one of those big Grease records. And I want you to bring for my brother an Ace Trealy record, and for my other brother a Micranot set for Mike. And for my mom a mother's ring, and for my dad a new hunting gun. And for Lori a hermet crab. Ho ho ho and Merry Christmas.

Yours truly,
Michelle Louiselle

Dear Santa,

How are you? I hope you're fine. Is it cold up there? Did you see any igloos?

By the way, I want for Christmas a nerf football, a Monopoly game, a safe tip to my aunts house, and an alarm clock too.

For my friends I want them to get good things that they want.

For the world I want them to have what they want to have for Christmas. And to have a happy Christmas too.

I want even the poorest people have the best Christmas yet.

Sincerely,
Bryan Swanson

Meet Charlevoix

...George Sarasin

George Sarasin

George Sarasin is one of the many old-timers in Charlevoix who has seen the city change through the years. This week he tells the Courier about some of those changes.

COURIER: Were you born in Charlevoix?

SARASIN: No, in Elk Rapids but my mother [illegible] came from Charlevoix.

COURIER: When did you move here?

SARASIN: In 1929 to work for the Argo Milling Co. There were about 18 of us working there at the time, but I'm the only one left. I worked there 13 years.

COURIER: Where was the Argo plant, and what did they mill?

SARASIN: It was located on the channel where the Weathervane Inn is now. They milled flour and hauled it to customers all over northern Michigan. The wheat was shipped here by boat. They also had a mill in Central Lake, where they made pancake flour, pastry flour, corn meal, things like that.

COURIER: What did you do at Argo?

SARASIN: I had a flour route of 11 stores and three bake shops in Traverse City. [illegible]

COURIER: How long [illegible]

SARASIN: It went out of business during World War II.

COURIER: What did you do then?

SARASIN: I went to work for Charlie Heise delivering coal and ice. Ice was big business then. The Beach Hotel used one and a half tons every day in the summer, and we had 80 customers at the Belvedere Club. It would take from morning until noon to finish the deliveries there. Each customer would put a card in the window showing how much ice they wanted.

COURIER: Where did the ice come from?

SARASIN: From Lake Charlevoix. We cut it in the winter and stored it in ice houses packed with sawdust. Some of the hotels owned their own ice houses, and so did Booth Fisheries. Everyone worked about eight weeks in the winter to cut the ice. They used power saws, maybe with a Model A motor to cut the ice, then put it on wagons or sleighs to haul it to the ice house. Charlie Heise had a big ice house [illegible]

COURIER: [illegible]

SARASIN: [illegible] The hard coal came from Pennsylvania and soft coal from West Virginia and Kentucky. In the early days we used horses and wagons to deliver it in the winter because the horses could get through the snow better than trucks. The streets weren't plowed much then. Some people bought their coal in the summer because it was cheaper. In those days it sold for about $8 or $9 a ton delivered. The schools would use about four carloads a winter and the hospital about a carload and a half.

COURIER: What else did you do?

SARASIN: I worked for Charlie for 17 years, then went to work at American Mold and retired from there 10 years ago.

COURIER: What changes have you seen in the last few years?

SARASIN: Well, like I was saying about the ice. We used to put it in our drinks and think nothing about it. The Health Department sure wouldn't let us [illegible] building up new homes everywhere. I used to know everyone in town but not any more. In the old days everyone was friendlier too. We would have card parties, and when we were home we'd listen to the radio, read a magazine or pop corn for entertainment.

COURIER: We understand you and Mrs. Sarasin are about to celebrate your fiftieth wedding anniversary.

SARASIN: Yes, Ila and I were married in 1928 in Ellsworth. Her name was Ila Webster.

COURIER: Tell us about your children.

SARASIN: We have three boys, William, Clayton, Sr., and Robert. They all live in Charlevoix. We also have eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

COURIER: [illegible]

SARASIN: [illegible]

COURIER: How does it feel to be married 50 years?

SARASIN: Well, I always say the first 50 are the hardest. We've had good times and bad times, sometimes we didn't have much, but we've always been content.

Sarasins to celebrate 50th anniversary

An open house honoring Mr. and Mrs. George Sarasin on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary will be held at the couple's home at 200 Sheridan St. Sunday.

The couple will greet relatives and friends between 2 and 5 p.m.

Hosting the event will be their sons and daughters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Sarasin, Mr. and Mrs.

Clayton M. Sarasin and Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Sarasin, all of Charlevoix. Also attending will be their eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

The Sarasins, the former Ila Webster, were married at Ellsworth on Dec. 17, 1928. Their attendants at the ceremony were Mrs. Sarasin's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Archie (Metta) Blach.

The couple will greet relatives and friends between 2 and 5 p.m.

The Sarasins have always resided here. Sarsin was employed as a driver for the Argo Milling Company and later for the Charlevoix Coal & Ice, delivering coal and wood during the winter months and ice during the summer. From 1959 through 1969 he was employed at American Mold & Engineering Corp. They are members of the Community Church of God.

Sarasin was born in Elk Rapids Sept. 21, 1903. He is an avid outdoorsman and a fisherman. Mrs. Sarasin was born March 20, 1909, in the Inwood district of Norwood township.

Raydersel iminated in tourney, finish season with a 19-4 record

[illegible] Rayderettes.

The Rayderettes lost to Alcona [illegible] in the regional [illegible] at Grayling.

Unlike any game this season the Rayders trailed from start to finish. Alcona jumped out to an 8-0 lead before Charlevoix could score.

"We had some early jitters," explained Coach Toni Felter. "We turned the ball over trying to break their press and they cashed in on the opportunities."

Although disheartened about the loss, Mrs. Felter said she could accept it because "Alcona has a good basketball team."

"They're fast and big," she added. "They're the best team we played this year.

"I have a lot of respect for them."

To complicate matters, Charlevoix did not have a very good night against the talented Tigerettes.

"We shot 21 percent from the floor. We just couldn't find the range. And that pretty much tells the tale," the coach summarized.

Melinda Klooster led the Charlevoix [illegible] with 10 points. The sophomore [illegible] field goals and was [illegible] from the charity stripe.

Throughout the game Charlevoix could never seriously cut into the Tigerettes lead. Alcona led by 10 points at half, [illegible], and by [illegible] points after three quarters of play, [illegible].

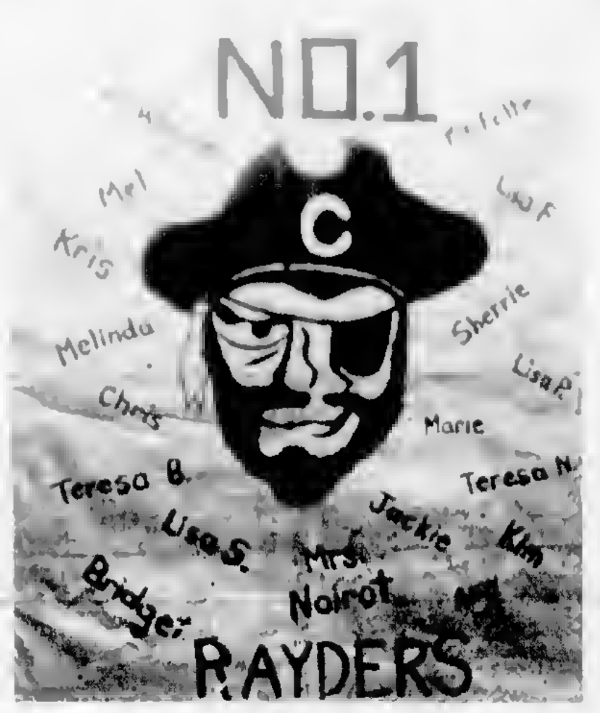
The Rayders had advanced to the finals by beating Kalkaska 43-40 on Wednesday night.

The Rayders led by just one point, 25-24, at the start of the fourth quarter. Kalkaska tied the game with four minutes remaining, but Charlevoix moved back ahead to claim the win.

Klooster was the only Rayder to score in double figures as she tallied 21 points.

Charlevoix finished the season with a 19-4 record. The Rayders tied with St. Ignace for the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference title and won the Onaway district to qualify for the Grayling regional.

"I'm really proud of the kids," Mrs. Felter said. "I can't say enough about them. This season was more than I anticipated."



Wrestlers finish seventh, invitational Saturday

The Charlevoix Rayder wrestling team placed seventh at the Cadillac Invitational Saturday.

The Rayders were led by senior co-captains Dave Golovich and Dennis Whitley. Golovich took a first place in the 132 pound class and Whitley finished second at 191. Other medal winners for the Rayders were: Scott Golovich, third place at 155; Ken Wojan, third place in the heavyweight division; and Bill Trost, fourth place at 126.

Not placing, but competing in the tournament – won by Mason County Central – were Gerard Wimmer, Micky Belfy, Joe Borths, Don Mol, Gregg Whitley, Kevin Whitley and Dave Britton.

Mason County had seven wrestlers win their respective weight classes, including Bob Cameron, who won the Most Valuable Wrestler award, and Dave Gilbert, who won a trophy for most pins in the least amount of time (three pins in 3:29.)

Kalkaska finished a distant second in the eight team field.

Charlevoix Coach Norm Probert was pleased with the good showing of Dave Golovich. Probert said Golovich competed in the toughest weight division in the tournament.

"There were four state qualifiers in that class," he said.

Dennis Whitley lost a close match, 10-9. Whitley's opponent was given three warnings for stalling during the match.

The Rayders will travel to Sault Ste. Marie Tuesday Dec. 12 then return home Saturday Dec. 16 for the 6th annual Charlevoix Holiday Invitational Wrestling Tournament. Charlevoix will be host to 17 schools throughout the Northland with Petoskey and Kalkaska two of the top teams to watch. Grayling and Glen Lake are considered dark horses.

The holiday tournament is sponsored by the Charlevoix City Police, with Chief Jack Mol and the Charlevoix Wrestling Club. Admission is $1 for adults and $.50 for students. The tickets are good for all day. Preliminaries start at 10:30 a.m. on five mats with the Finals scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

Over 200 boys will compete.

In action last week, the Rayder matmen lost to Gaylord, 43-30.

Don Mol, Dave Golovich, Gregg Whitley, Dennis Whitley and Ken Wojan all posted wins for Charlevoix. All were pins with the exception of Mol who won on forfeit.

Cinnamon all-league

Junior John Cinnamon, a Charlevoix High School graduate, has been named to the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association (MIAA) All-League football team.

Cinnamon, a center for Kalamazoo College, was one of five Kalamazoo Hornets to be named to the first team. Kalamazoo finished with a 6-2 record, which was good for third place in the MIAA.

Cinnamon is the son of Mrs. Sandra J. Cinnamon.

JV's even record

[illegible] JV basketball team evened its record [illegible] Friday night by [illegible] Cheboygan [illegible].

The Rayders were led by [illegible] who tossed in 19 points. Mick Beaudoin added 17 points and Mike Loper 11 to the winning cause.

The JV's lost their opening game of the year to Gaylord, 69-65.

Loper had 18 points and Beaudoin and Buchanan had 14 each in that contest. Gaylord, on the other hand, got a 33 point performance from Joe Scott.

Cagers in a hole early, lose two conference games

After the two games the Charlevoix Rayder boys basketball team finds itself in a hole.

The Rayders dropped two Michigan-Huron Shores Conference games last week to start the season. The Rayders were bumped by Gaylord, 57-55, and blitzed by Cheboygan, 90-67.

The Gaylord clash was nip-and-tuck from start to finish. The Blue Devils led after each quarter, but the margin was never more than four points.

The Rayders hurt their own chances by connecting on only three of eight free throw attempts. Gaylord, meanwhile, hit on 11 of 22 free throws. Although no Rayder fouled out, three players were whistled down with four fouls.

The Rayders had good scoring balance against Gaylord as five players hit double figures. Pat Schmidt led the way with 13 points followed by Bob Plumm with 12 and Kevin Krall, Gilbert Noirot and Tim Hoffman with 10 each.

For Gaylord, Jeff Scott had 20 points and Steve Glasser added 14. Scott hit on six of seven free throws.

Against Cheboygan, the pre-season favorite to win the conference, Charlevoix was again plagued by foul trouble. Three Rayders fouled out, including Schmidt, who was held in check by Cheboygan and limited to just eight points.

The Chiefs started fast, [illegible] dumping a full court press on the Rayders and making the fast team play the Chiefs' fast breaking style of game. Cheboygan moved out to a 22-18 first quarter lead and then expanded it to 45-30 at the half.

Charlevoix had three players in double figures. Krall was the leading scorer with 14 points followed by Hoffman and Plumm with 12 each.

For Cheboygan, Perry Lalla, the leading scorer in the conference last season, and Mark Snorek each tossed in 24 points.

Frosh win opener

The Charlevoix freshman basketball team has a clean slate after one game.

The frosh beat Cheboygan Thursday night, 52-35.

Dave Buday had 18 points and Andy Schafer added 10 in the Charlevoix win. The Rayders led 12-8 after the first quarter, 25-19 at halftime and 35-25 after three quarters.

The Rayders will be back in action Monday against Grayling.

Change in code

Dick Mayhew, county building inspector, reports that some important changes have been made in the State Building Code.

Among the changes are the inclusion of definitions of energy conservation, barrier free design, building envelopes (floor, walls and ceiling), and physically limited persons.

Barrier-free design is now required in all public facilities as well as facilities used by the public. Also, in large rental units, one of 25 units must be of barrier free design.

FAITH SEES NO DECLINE IN THE INCIOENCE OF MARRIAGE

The picture of a radiant bride on the society page of your newspaper has always been a lovely sight to behold; but in this age of the so-called "new morality" when all our cultural traditions would seem to have been swept away, it has an even greater significance. It symbolizes our assurance that there is still hope for our civilization. The self-appointed prophets would have us believe that marriage is on the way out, as they point triumphantly to the latest divorce statistics. However, as you will learn through the Bible and the Church of your choice, marriage and the family unit have been with us since the very dawn of the human race, and the antics of a small but vocal minority are not likely to succeed in abolishing these sacred institutions that form the very foundation of our society.

No society has ever survived after its family life deteriorated

Scenic Trails Council to conduct Fall Roundup

The Boy Scout Scenic Trails Council would like to show area youths that scouting is not kid's stuff.

From now to the year's end, Scenic Trails Council is conducting their annual Fall Round-up, a directed effort to recruit boys into the scouting program.

The scouting movement is more than campouts and field trips. It is a program where youths become aware of their civic responsibilities and learn about the world from respected adult leaders.

"Scouting is more educational than recreational," scout executive Joe Groszek said, "and parents find that the fun activities of scouting all have a basis in character development, citizenship training, and mental and physical fitness."

Due to the Boy Scout's non-profit status, the movement depends on concerned citizens and businesses for support. This year, area McDonald's Restaurants have heeded the call and are providing the scouts with recruiting incentives in the form of free hamburgers and quota awards. To date, over 250 boys have joined the Scenic Trails Council.

Boys interested in scouting should contact Scenic Trails Council, 2308 U.S. 31, North, Traverse City, 49684.

Mt. McSauba almost ready

According to Mayor Sam Supernaw, if Charlevoix has sufficient snowfall this weekend Mt. McSauba will be open for skiing.

The ski hill has been closed since spring for repair. Workers are installing new lights and improving the rope tows. The hill has already been regroomed.

Supernaw said the lights should be in operation within the next couple days.

Also, an observation tower has been erected at the top of the hill, however, that has not been completed. Supernaw said the tower is "framed in" at present.

"A lot of people have donated time, equipment and material on this project," Supernaw said.

"I think it's a real assest to our winter sports progrnm," added City Manager Norm Gaffney "A lot of people deserve credit."

Although the hours of operation at Mt. McSauba are still tentative, Gaffney said rates will increase slightly this year

The proposed seasonal rates are $60 for a family, $40 for a couple, $30 for an adult, $20 for a student and $15 for children. The proposed daily rates are $3 for adults in the day and $2 at night, $1.50 for students in the day and $1 at night and $1 for children in the day and 75 cents at night

Floral shop wins contest

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce has named the winners in the annual Christmas decorating contest sponsored annually by the chamber, Jacquie Merta, executive director, announced.

The Charlevoix Floral Company in the Market Mall was the overall winner and will receive the traveling troiphy offered by the chamber and presently held by Bogg's Bakery.

For the first time entries were divided into four catagories Mrs. Merta explained. The first and second place winners in the various catagories follow: Soft goods: Captain's Kids at the Captain's Corner complex and Hamilton's-Golden Shoes; hard goods: Carson Lumber Co. and Bartlett's Decorator Center; Service division: Michigan Officeways and First State Bank; gifts: The Apple Tree and Barb's Hallmark Harbor at the Captain's Corner complex.

Lieberman's was judged the most whimsical in a special catagory.

Judges for the contest were Tori Alger and Irene Cohen.

Sixty-two local businesses were entered in the contest Mrs. Merta said.

SANTA AND MRS. CLAUS came to Charlevoix Saturday and they were greeted by throngs of children.

ICE IN LOT

I have been using the city parking lot off of Mason Street to do my shopping, but I am becoming increasing afraid to do so because of the solid ice condition of this lot. The city has been doing a good job on keeping the streets in good condition. Could they please throw some salt and sand on this parking lot before there is an accident or someone falls and hurts themselves badly? Thanks.

DAMAGED PAINT

This is a message to the people who pelted my car with eggs about 6:00 a.m. on Dec. 15th, 1978, while it was parked in my driveway. This resulted in damage to the paint job. If this should happen again and I catch whoever is doing this, they will leave my property feet first.

RINK NOT READY

I am calling to remind whoever is in charge of recreation here in Charlevoix, that the hockey rink is not being prepared the way they promised it would last year. There are a lot of folks that are waiting to use it and practice on it. Don't disappoint us.

NO TOWELS OR MIRRORS

Why aren't there any paper towels or mirrors in the boy's washrooms at the high school? You use the facilities and then find you can't comb your hair or dry your hands. How come?

Variances approved for townhouses

The Charlevoix Common Council – acting as the Board of Appeals – approved two variances Monday night that will allow for construction of a townhouse development on Belvedere Avenue along Round Lake.

The four unit development is proposed to be built on property owned by Clark Matthews. The townhouses will be located between the Wharf Condominium and the Bellinger Marine Service.

Matthews has five lots along the lake. Each lot has a width of 40 feet. Matthews is proposing to put a townhouse on four of the lots. But the hitch is there will only be two buildings. Matthews is proposing to build two units (to be combined) side-by-side on lots 9 and 10 and then to do the same thing on lots 11 and 12. To do so, Matthews needed a variance for zero sideyards, which he got last night.

He also needed a variance for density since each unit is proposed to use 32.9 percent of a lot. The city ordinance stipulates a 30 percent maximum.

Matthews architect, Jack Begrow, said each unit will have about 3,100 square feet of living space, which includes the basement. The three bedroom units will be two and a half stories in height and will have a walkout basement. Begrow said the townhouses will have a brick exterior. He added that 17 parking spaces will be provided even though the ordinance indicates that only 10 are needed.

A tennis court is proposed for the fifth lot.

According to the city ordinance, Matthews has six months to take out a building permit to start construction.

Last month Matthews proposed a similar use for the property, but he asked that it be rezoned from marine commercial to residential. Council balked and asked Matthews to refile his petition for the multiple units, but to leave the zoning marine commercial and instead ask for the sideyard and density variances.

In the spring, Matthews had tried to get permission to build eight multiple units on the site. But the proposal was rejected.

In other action, council:

Learned that Councilman Ivan Whitley will ask for a leave of absence.

"My business is too pressing and my health is suffering," Whitley told council members.

A decision is expected at the next council meeting.

Kaiser promoted, Broneck plant manager at Medusa

Elbert W. Kaiser, Medusa Cement Company's plant manager in Charlevoix, has been promoted to vice-president of manufacturing.

The appointment was announced jointly by W.G. (Jack) Irmscher, Medusa's president, and Daniel E. Somes, vice-president of operations, at Medusa's Christmas party Thursday night.

"We have multiplied his problems by seven," joked Irmscher. Medusa has seven cement plants – all east of the Mississippi River – and Kaiser, in his new capacity, will oversee manufacturing operations at the seven plants.

Replacing Kaiser as the Medusa plant manager in Charlevoix will be Charles J. Broneck. Broneck has been the National Cement Company's plant manager in Ragland, Ala. for the past three years.

Broneck, who was first contacted about the position here this fall, has already started work at Medusa's Charlevoix plant.

"So far the transition has been quite easy, since it's the same type of job I had with the National Cement Company," Broneck said. "And, too, I have Elbert here to help me."

Kaiser will stay in Charlevoix until the $50 million plant expansion and conversion is successfully completed. According to Irmscher, the project is about one-third completed now. Medusa is converting from a wet to a dry process in making cement. The expansion and conversion is expected to double production and improve the quality of the cement. When completed, the Charlevoix plant will produce one-third of all Medusa's cement.

Kaiser came to Charlevoix in June of 1972 following 22 years with the Peerless Division of the American Cement Corporation. A 1950 graduate of the University of Michigan in chemical engineering, Kaiser joined the Peerless Division the same year as a research chemist. After a series of promotions in the Peerless Technical Department, he was assigned chief chemist of the Port Huron plant. In 1959, he was appointed assistant plant manager at the Port Huron and in 1965 was elevated to plant manager.

During the building of Peerless' $40 million Detroit plant in the late 60's, Kaiser acted as project engineer working from the American Cement Corporation's Technical Center in California.

Pointing to Kaiser's experience in all phases of cement manufacturing over the past 28 years, Irmscher singled out his success in Charlevoix.

"Kaiser and his Charlevoix staff have consistently achieved the company's best productivity record," he said.

Irmscher did add that Kaiser is taking a giant step forward with the company.

"El Kaiser is moving from a manufacturing responsibility for 750,000 tons at Charlevoix to overseeing capacity exceeding 4 million tons at plants in Dixon, Ill.; Toledo, Ohio; Wampum, Pa.; York, Pa.; Clinchfield, Ga.; Manitowoc, Wis.; and Charlevoix.

Kaiser has been quite active in the community. He presently serves on the board of directors of the Northwest Michigan Industrial Association and the Charlevoix Area Hospital. And as a member and past officer of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and Charlevoix Lions Club, he has joined Dave Phillips and others in some notable community events not the least being Charlevoix's Bicentennial Cherry Pie project, which gained favorable international publicity and a world record still standing in the Guinness Book of Records.

Kaiser and his wife, Bev, have three children: Linda, Bill and Paul.

Broneck has had several years experience in the cement industry. Prior to becoming plant manager in Ragland, he worked seven years for the Bahama Cement Company and three years with Maule Industries, which also manufactures cement.

A native of Blue Island, Ill., Broneck is a graduate of Indiana University.

Broneck and his wife, Jean, have three children: Cheryl, 6; Kathy, 3; and Debbie, 7 months.

Flood of electronic games juices up the toy market

[illegible] will be zapping their [illegible] playing blackjack under the [illegible] Christmas trees this year.

It's all part of a microelectronic revolution that is transforming toyland. The technology spawned by the computer and applied to such mass-produced items as calculators and digital watches is appearing in games and toys that test the users' skill and logic. Flashing lights, sound effects, even the sound of human voices make some of the playthings seem almost surrealistic, reports the National Geographic Society.

Game Sounds Taps

One game simulates a missile attack on a city. The defender tries to shoot down the enemy missiles with his own weapons. If the computer wins, it sounds taps; if the player is victorious, he is rewarded with a beeping sound.

After each play of a pocket football game, a scoreboard reads out the downs and yards to go, a digital clock times each quarter, a whistle blows after each play, and another display shows the position of the ball on the field. A person scoring a touchdown is rewarded with a rousing "charge" tune.

The blackjack game is harsh on losers. It sounds a loud Bronx cheer when it strips a player of his chips.

The toys aren't limited to older children and adults. The small fry can learn to add and subtract on a calculator that plays "The Stars and Stripes Forever" for a correct answer; a funeral march greets a goof.

The color-coded track ties on a small [illegible] railroad can be laid out to play [illegible] of songs as a toy engine passes over them. And in a spelling game, a voice gives a child a word, then lets the young student know if it has been correctly spelled.

"The heart of many of these new toys is a single-chip microcomputer," explained Bill MacMullen, chief executive of Concept 2000, a toy company deeply involved in electronics.

"What happens is that the chip companies – Texas Instruments, Rockwell, Fairchild and others – supply the microprocessor and the toy people take the logic developed in that chip and apply it to a product."

Cars Follow Voices

The accessibility of computer technology has made possible toys that were only dreamed of a few years ago. MacMullen, for instance, envisions a road race without a track in which the players guide the cors with their voices.

James H. Muller of Texas Instruments thinks that someday games will not only respond to the human voice, but will talk back as well, giving instructions and advice. Some of the toys might even come with tiny video screens that display scenes pertinent to the game.

Richard Dalesslo, an executive with Parker Brothers, speculated that the electronic game craze is just beginning. "Word games, educational toys, strategy, board, and action games – we'll see electronics permeate them all. As early as 1980, we expect electronic games and toys to be a $500 million business," he said.

Real Estate

Taking [illegible] the new tax law makes for great savings in selling your old house and moving to a new city. Until 1970 it was possible to deduct only direct moving expenses: cost of the van, packing and transporting you and your family with meals and lodging included. Now it is possible to deduct three additional kinds of business-related moving expenses: costs related to the sale of the old house and the purchase of the new; travel expenses for pre-move house-hunting trips; and temporary living costs for up to thirty days before moving into the new house.

A "jimmy resistant" deadbolt that can't be pried open should be on all outside doors.

Kinesiology can remedy early childhood problems

TOUCHING ACUPRESSURE POINTS is an integral part of kinesiology as Dr. Diane Saks demonstrates on Bernie Holmes. A combination of acupressure and other treatments can stop childhood bedwetting.

[illegible]

Two Gaylord [illegible], however, are changing cranky kids and frustrated parents back into happy families through the relatively new science of kinesiology.

Kinesiology has come to the forefront in the last twenty years as the brain child of Detroit-based Dr. Goodheart.

It combines techniques of acupressure, chiropractic, neurological, muscular, and nutritional studies to diagnose and treat body malfunction.

Most of the problems common to children in their early years can be remedied softly and safely by kinesiology.

Bedwetting, for example, is an emotional trauma for many families. Kidney infection aside, it has been found that pelvic distortion is the culprit in most bedwetting cases – a physiological and not psychological problem on the part of the child.

Acupressure therapy and a simple corrective treatment to the hips is successfully used by Dr. Diane Saks to help her young patients back to health, harmony, and happiness.

Many mothers have experienced projectile vomiting as a seemingly natural talent of their newborn infant. Not only does baby spit up, but out, too, targeting everything within five feet!

Long accepted as just something babies do, projectile vomiting is easily cured. A spinal alignment to adjust vertebrae out of place gives the baby a more discreet burp!

"It's not easy to be born," says [illegible]

[illegible]

In their Gaylord office, practicing, Diane Saks sees mostly infants and older people while Gary treats ages in between, although both husband and wife are well-versed in all phases of kinesiology.

Gary and Diane are also involved in research, and have published several papers on new discoveries and unusual cases.

One of Gary's more serious but successful cases with children came just after finishing his degree during his first days in practice.

A young teenage boy suffering from a blood condition called "thrombocytopenia" was brought to Gary's office for help.

In this disease the patient has a blood platelet deficiency and so bruises at the slightest touch. There is also danger of internal hemorrhage. The boy was brought to Gary as a last resort – the alternative being removal of his spleen.

"I was nervous" laughs Gary. "Wouldn't you know that one of my first cases would be a serious one!"

Through the muscle testing techniques of kinesiology, Gary was able to pinpoint the problem. He then used acupressure on reflex points to increase the blood supply to the spleen, blanace the acupuncture meridians, and relieve blockages in the lymphatic system.

With the addition of nutrition, as [illegible]

[illegible] patients has spread the word about the new science of kinesiology. Gary and Diane now see patients from Charlevoix to Alpena and Petoskey to Traverse City.

"One summer visitor we treated was so excited about the work we're doing that he flew back to Gaylord after he had returned home for more care," Gary relates.

In other ailments, kinesiology takes the pain out of the cure. Allergy tests used to be a series of unpleasant scratches on a patient's back – both painful and costly.

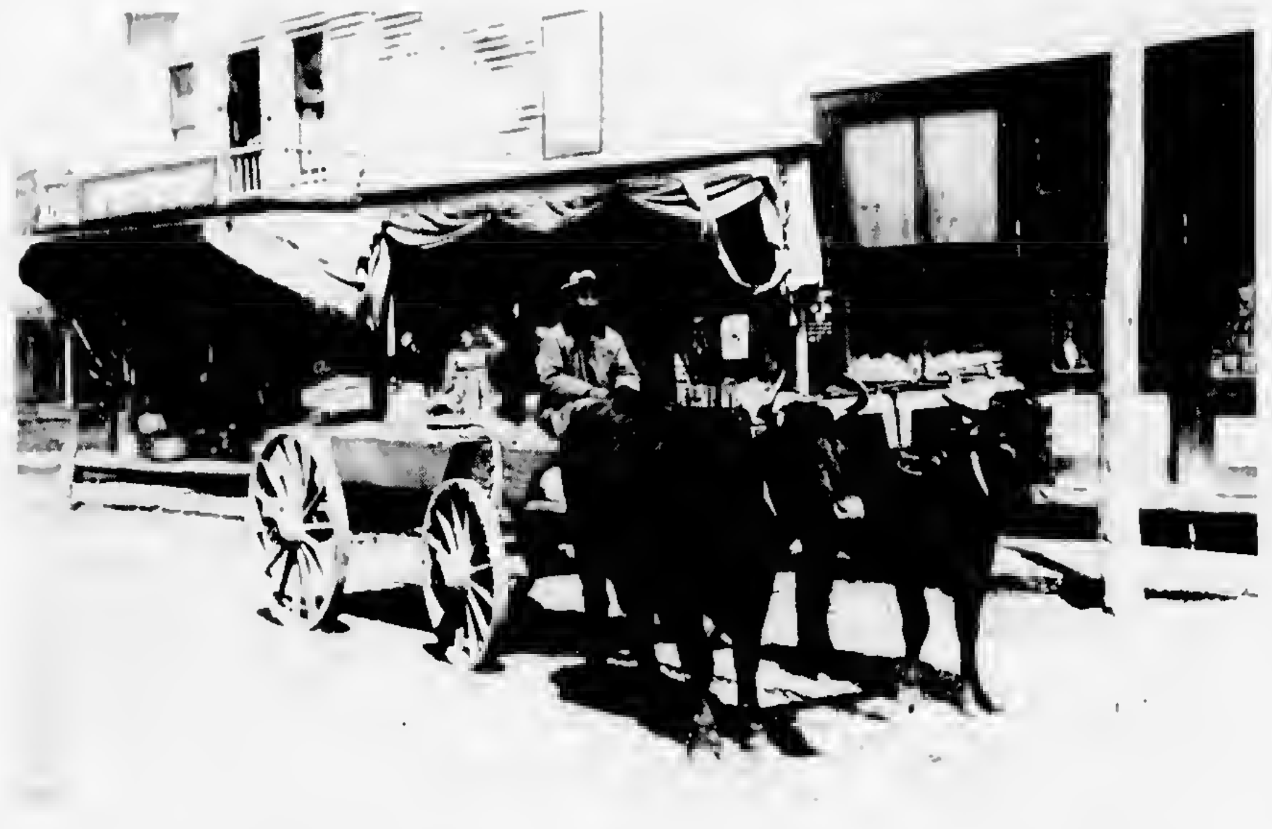
Now with new knowledge and kinesiology, Gary and Diane can identify food sensitivities in patients young and old through muscle testing without using needles.

"I've also been working with kinesiology as an aid in learning disabilities," says Diane enthusiastically.

Whether treating children or adults, the Saks' primary emphasis is on preventive medicine whenever possible. And kinesiology makes it very possible to diagnose weaknesses before they turn into major ills.

"Childhood is a good time to begin working on problems," says Gary, "but it's never too late to start thinking ahead about your health."

MATTHEW THIBODEAU is too young to tell his mother Mary Ann (left) and Dr. Gary Saks (right) just where it hurts, but simple kinesiology muscle testing can identify weak areas. Matthew's problem turned out to be a food sensitivity to peanut butter.



THE UNPAVED STREETS of early Charlevoix were probably not much of a problem for this team of oxen when the ground was dry, but when they turned to mud, the pulling must have been tough. Will E. Hampton mentions these streets in the accompanying story. (Photograph courtesy of Charlevoix Historical Society)

Railroad brought changes to Charlevoix

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series of articles taken from Will E. Hampton's "Memories of Charlevoix the Beautiful Six Decades Ago", written in 1955 when Hampton was an octogenarian. In this installment, he is writing about the days after the railroad came to town and changed its way of life:

In connection with the arrival of the railroad, there was quite a little visiting to the "sink hole" that developed alongside the lake south of Ellsworth. As fast as dirt, trees, and other material could be dumped into the hole, extending for several rods, it sank. It took some time to get enough stability to trust the first cars over the spot, and even for years after, and even now, so far as I know, trains ran with a "slow" order at the spot.

With the coming of the railroad, the usual changes took place in other forms of transportation. Capt. Vanderhoef and his Steamer Friant had to seek new pasturs. The Hannah-Lay boats, and the Northern Michigan steamers, including the old friend, the Missouri, lost much of their business, and eventually gave up the struggle. The luxurious Manitou, with the tremendously popular Capt. Wm. Finucan in charge, lasted a little longer, but with the automobiles to compete with, lost out, as the railroads also found a similar fate later on. Now air traffic is on the gain, and another change is underway in transportation history.

Let us now consider local changes in the life of Charlevoix citizens. No town with any hope of keeping up with the procession could long go with muddy streets, cows in the way, no water works, and no electric lights. It was time to get rid of the kerosene lamps on a few scattered street corners, and other backwoods drawbacks. The Courier had succeeded in getting rid of the cows, and now as its editor I began a campaign for waterworks, and it was soon voted to install a plant, which was located on the shore of Round Lake, in a brick building now used as a woodworking plant.

An artesian well was sunk for a supply of water, which was found to be an exact duplicate of the celebrated Waukesha analysis in every respect, but later proved inadequate and changes to the present excellent set-up had to be made. Ed Guard (sp?) who had been engineer on this father's steamer that ran to East Jordan, was the first water-works engineer, in charge of the two steam pumps.

The electric light plant was not long in follow, power being secured from the dam in Bellaire. Harry Nicholls, a power in local circles, had been a great advocate of the water works, and the "oldsters" who had been opposed to the water-works idea, said "You youngsters wanted it, now go ahead and build it" – and challenged us to run for places on the village council, which we did and were elected. They got a chance to laugh at us, for when the boiler came to be placed, it was found too large to go through the door opening, and the brick had to be torn out to enlarge the opening to permit its entry. However, Harry and I passed the buck to the village president, who was a contractor, and was supposed to know about such things.

The water still rises to the surface in the artesian well, and if whoever now owns the land and well would bottle it, and start an advertising campaign, it might prove as profitable as has the Waukesha water. It was in 1894 that the plant began operating, and my home on Michigan Ave., built that year, was, I think, the first new home to have the water installed. The only bath tubs available locally were wood, with copper lining, and that was was what we had, and the toilets available were all of the type used on steamboats, so that was what we had, until later when the usual kind were stocked by the local plumbers.

The lighting plant was installed a few years after the water-works were put in operation, but the line bringing power from the dam in Bellaire was quite frequently down from limbs, and it was soon inadequate, as well as unreliable, and an auxiliary steam plant had to be installed to ensure current to the increasing demands.

Remember the good ol' days when you collected enough money - returnable pop bottles to take your girl to the drive-in?
but who says money doesn't grow on trees!
all your bottles and cans got me ...

Return bottles and cans

Think twice before you drop a bottle or can into the trash bag. That bottle or can might be worth some money.

Michigan's bottle bill is now law. The bill bans throw-away beverage containers, requiring that they be replaced with cans and/or bottles which carry deposits.

All of which is fine and dandy, except not everyone is familiar with the groundrules in this game; consumers and merchants alike.

According to Attorney General Frank Kelley, merchants who sell take-out beverages, for example, can:

•Refuse to redeem broken, unusable bottles.

•Refuse to redeem bottles or cans from brands which are not carried by the store.

•Refuse to redeem cans or bottles which are not labeled, stamped or embossed with words indicating that the bottle or can is a Michigan returnable.

On the other hand, though, merchants who sell take-out beverages must:

•Accept damaged, scratched or dented cans.

•Accept bottles without caps.

Also under the law, consumers can:

•Return bottles or cans to any store which handles that brand. They are not required to return them to the store from which they were purchased.

•Demand cash, not merchandise, in return for cans and bottles.

•Return cans or bottles individually in boxes, cartons or bags.

If the above groundrules are adhered to, many hassles will be eliminated. However, if you feel you are subjected to unusual or excessive requirements for returning cans or bottles you can file a complaint with the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, 670 Law Building, Lansing, Mi 48913. A complaint can also be filed by calling Kelley's office at (517) 373-1110.

We hope everyone cooperates. We are asking consumers, after purchasing returnable bottles and cans, to also follow these rules:

•Rinse out used bottles immediately.

•Return bottles in their carriers to ease sorting.

•Try not to chip the bottles so they can be reused.

•And, most importantly, to return the bottles and cans rather than toss them out.

Longer semis in Michigan

A bill that passed the Michigan House Monday night, one which I introduced, will allow truckers to operate 60-foot vehicles on Michigan roads, bringing the state's statutes into compliance with federal regulations. I introduced the measure at the request of several independent truckers who were being forced to drive their vehicles in Michigan under different guidelines than in other states.

Upon Governor Milliken's signature, the total length of a truck's cab and semi-trailer will be increased from 55 to 60 feet. The bill does stipulate that the semi-trailer must not exceed 45 feet.

The passage of this bill will give trucking firms much more flexibility in utilizing various tractors and trailers. Conventional cabs vary in length from 12 to 15 feet, meaning that they could not lawfully pull the standard 45-foot trailers in Michigan. As a result, 10-foot cabs built over the engine were being used to pull the standard trailers in the state. However, the "cab-overs" are less wind resistant and fuel efficient than the longer cabs.

Therefore, this bill will help to save on energy, a precious commodity during the Michigan winters.

The bill passed during the last week of this two-year legislative session, showing that the legislature thought enough of it to want to put it on the Michigan books as quickly as possible.

Bills that do not pass by the time the legislature adjourns must be reintroduced during the next legislative session.

Finally! Relations with China

Like most Americans, I suffered a severe case of cultural whim-whams Friday night when President Carter announced that the United States would establish diplomatic relations with our old adversary, Communist China, on Jan. 1.

For goodness sake, what will Barry Goldwater and the Readers Digest have to say about that?

Then, to compound the startling news, the President announced that the United States is breaking its diplomatic ties with our age-old friends, the Nationalist Chinese on the island of Taiwan.

Of course, the two actions go hand-in-glove, since international relations could become a little sticky if more than one government represented the Chinese people on the international scene.

Although some observers are claiming Carter pulled a brilliant diplomatic coup, recognition of Communist China was a foregone conclusion ever since President Nixon took Peking by storm six years ago – the high point of an otherwise ill-starred administration.

It would be sheer folly for the United States to persist much longer in recognizing the government on Taiwan as the legitimate representatives of one quarter of the world's population, particularly when the Peking government has done such a magnificent job in improving the standard of living of the Chinese people.

Why has the United States so stubbornly refused to recognize Communist China for almost 30 years?

I suppose many of us at first actually believed that Chiang Kai-Shek, who had carried his exiled government to Taiwan, would make good on his promise to reclaim the mainland in the name of the Chinese people.

The promise turned out to be an old man's pipe dream, but who was to know that back in 1949?

Relations with Communist China deteriorated rapidly during the Korean War when Americans and Chinese met on the field of battle for the first time. When the war ended in a negotiated settlement, China virtually ceased to exist in the eyes of most Americans for the next 20 years. The American press was not permitted to visit China and the most massive social and cultural revolution the world will ever know took place behind closed doors.

By 1972, China was ready to show its new face to the world. The Nixon visit was arranged and TV viewers across the United States gawked in wonder at the new China, which, for the first time in history, was beginning to meet the needs of her teeming masses.

The country was drab, to be sure. But it also was clean and orderly. Furthermore, the Chinese people seemed to entertain warm feelings toward the United States. The stage was ripe for the diplomatic moves that followed.

What will the new era of diplomatic relations mean to the United States?

Trade doors, of course, will swing open wide. The United States, which is already glutted with foreign merchandise, can expect even more. But we also can expect to sell China some of the tools and heavy equipment it needs to compete in today's world. Furthermore, China represents a vast market for our agricultural products, so our balance of trade should not suffer too greatly, at least at the beginning. We might even be able to sell more than we import, which will be quite a nice switch.

As for Taiwan, the severance of diplomatic ties should have no impact whatsoever on trade relations. Japan, for example, maintains a brisk trade with her island neighbor, although she has recognized the legitimacy of the Peking government for many years.

Eventually one would hope that Taiwan would cut the strings of fantasy and hope that connect her to the mainland and establish her own place among the nations of the world.

A 'single person' hangup

I can't imagine where Americans got hung on the "single person" concept.

Maybe it was, as children in arithmetic class, when we subtracted an odd number from an even and we stored the number on our finger and carried it around and really didn't know what to do with it.

But we have always been uncomfortable with "one left over."

After all, did Adam and Eve have a bachelor friend? Did an orangutan check in on Noah's ark asking, "Have you got a single near the pool?" If God had meant for us to live alone, would he put on menus, "Caesar Salad must be ordered by two?"

It's time we got over it. There are millions of Americans who are alone in this country today by divorce, death, or choice, trying to fit into a world of "table for twos."

A widow confided to me recently that she lives by daylight. People will get their obligations over with to "get together sometime" at lunch, but it's too much of a chore to match single men or women up for dinner.

There are some things traditional hostesses should know.

First, that people without partners eat dinner after six like other people.

Second, you can set an extra chair at the table without having the centerpiece self-destruct.

Third, men and women alone handle moving through crowds and making conversation better than most people give them credit for.

Fourth, you don't have to go out of your way to arrange "handicap parking" facilities or introductions of any of the extras because they are unaccompanied.

Fifth, if you're worried about people without partners being a threat to other couples and their marriage, you're too late. They probably thought of it before that evening.

There is nothing sadder in this world than to see a vast expanse of talent go untapped and unappreciated. There's an entire segment of our population who make wonderful conversation, have great humor, fresh ideas, and in general are good company...who are passed over because a hostess considers them as she does her china...if it doesn't match, people will talk.

A hostess recently said to me what a wonderful guest a particular priest would make for dinner, but he would be an odd number at her table.

It was an odd observation. At the Last Supper, Christ was number 13. (Copyright 1978 Field Enterprises, Inc.)

Computers can cause torment, too

When it comes to causing torment, computers are more dependable than people. This is a truth you can safely have tattooed on your nose.

I began to learn this important fact early in my newspaper career. My first job after graduating from journalism school was inside work for the wife of the publisher of a weekly newspaper in Lapeer.

That first day, I reported to the newspaper office with my university degree in my new attache case, just in case anyone wanted to admire it. That degree was my passport into the fascinating, glamorous world of newspapering.

My first assignment was to investigate a local neighborhood until I discovered the publisher's home. I was then to go inside and help carry a freezer from the kitchen onto the back porch.

My boss on this job was an outpatient from an institution for the mentally retarded. It didn't bother me, a university graduate, to take orders from a semi-moron. What bothered me was that he knew more about moving freezers than I did. When the publisher's wife expressed her gratitude to the 2 movers, it wasn't unjust that the retarded fellow received the most cookies.

But I digress, as usual. It was my second assignment that taught me not to depend on rotten people staying rotten. I was assigned to sell advertising, and I soon discovered it wasn't enough to use my university training to sell a restaurant owner a 10 inch ad every week. I also had to eat dinner in that restaurant every night.

"That dirty bum never pays his bills," the publisher explained, "so you eat there and charge it to the newspaper. At the end of every month, "I'll subtract your tabs from what the restaurant owner owes me for the advertising you sold him. You pay me for your meals and I'll give you a 10 percent discount."

Such complicated finance wasn't included in the journalism curriculum at Michigan State University, but I managed to understand the part about saving 10 percent on my nourishment. It was the best offer I'd had since the cookies. As a bachelor who couldn't make toast, I gained 8 pounds the first month.

But the arrangement ended after the second month when the newspaper bookkeeper gave the publisher startling news. The restaurant had paid its bill in cash. The publisher owed the restaurant $280 cash for my meals, and I owed him $252. He was paying 10 percent to collect a bill that had already been paid.

The disillusioned publisher couldn't believe what had happened to him. "That rotten guy never paid his bill before. It's getting so you can't depend on people to screw you anymore," he said.

There was no clap of thunder, but those words sounded to me like something to be written on stone tablets. Ever since that day, I've been cautious about depending too much on bad people always behaving badly. Despite past performances, there's always the risk that a person who has never missed a chance to torment you will suddenly turn good. When you have every reason to expect a swat, beware of a kiss.

On the other hand, God invented computers to give people an enemy then can depend upon, no matter what. Whenever a computer gets a chance to abuse you, it will. You never have to worry that a computer won't bill you for $400 when you return a $200 purchase. It will.

Example: Recently my wife ordered $2,000 worth of draperies. 4 draperies didn't fit the windows. Hudson's assured her she could withhold payment on the mistakes until they were corrected and she certainly wouldn't be stuck with a service charge on the unpaid balance.

I predicted that Hudson's computer would still be billing her for that service charge 45 years after her death, which will be computer-related. And that's what is happening, no matter how much she complains to the computer's keepers.

In this born-again world of reform and repentance, it's comforting to have a villain you can really depend on, even if it does make you sob all day and scream in your sleep.

Onward and Upward.

Operating on two levels

I have known for years that I am more than one person. Schizophrenic as that may sound, how else can that feeling of operating on two levels be expressed? Maybe you know what I mean. Maybe you have the same problem.

One part of this psyche is the visible me, the me that puts chocolate in the chocolate milk, deodorizer in the bathroom bowl and cakes on the bazaar table. This me laughs at the hole in the side of the Christmas tree we just chopped down, cries over those T.V. movies about football players who died too young, and over-reacts when picking up piles of dirty clothes after a long day at the washer-dryer.

The other part is me, but it's also a place I go. Like switching the stereo from 45RPM to 33 1/3, it's also slower. When I'm there, life is full of sensitivities and awarenesses that I feel compelled to record. If you happened to catch the P.B.S. special "The Good Doctor," you heard Richard Chamberlain give a soliloquy that took the words right out of my mouth regarding this compulsion to write. I remember him envisioning his literary critics filing past his casket making comments like, "Ah yes, he had humor, but Tolstoy, now he was a great writer."

It's hard on the id to hang out one's creative wash. Why expose yourself to all that vulnerability? Like the proverbial ostrich, it's so comfortable to keep your head in the sand where everything is so personal and secure and unchallenged; where there is no risk of criticism or misunderstanding. But I have to admire those who aren't afraid to try. Only recently have I been given courage in that area.

Two rather unpretentious books which have fallen into my possession lately reinforce a certain amount of defense for my position. They made me realize that retreat in the heat of reality is not all bad. One might even be surprised to find a whole fraternity of compatriots there just waiting to share and trade observations. I found this sense of fraternity in a collection of contemporary Michigan poetry, "The Third Coast," published as a bicentennial project by its editors out of Wayne State University in 1976. The other is a fairly local endeavor, a collection of columns by Karen Petrovich who currently writes a weekly column for the Traverse City Record Eagle "Letters From Karen."

"The Third Coast" is a collection of works from 30 Michigan poets, chosen from the contributions of 165. Poetry being my first love, I was interested to see what current editors would sift out for publication. The over-all trend in form appeared to be imagery at the expense of rhythm and rhyme. Free verse, some almost approached a stream of consciousness level. If you have an affinity for iambic pentameter, you won't find it here. You will find enough description and feeling to cover the deficit of discipline. Barbara Drake was one of my favorites. We must be soul sisters unbeknownst to us both. This excerpt from one of her poems entitled "Magic Children," sings the song of Every mother:

My children, you grow so you make me feel like a joke a tiny car a lot of clowns climb out of

In another "Old Folk Tale," she fantasizes herself almost running off with The Handsome Stranger after throwing down her hair over her bedroom windowsill like Rapunzel. Only the hair has been changed to protect the reputation: it is a yellow chenille bedspread since her hair is too short anyway.

Eric Torgersen has one called "A Story" which expresses that disappointment we have all experienced in the pursuit of friendship:

Every new friend
ends up trying to make you eat breakfast.

There are poets for everyone in this little book. Poets with bitterness they have to get out, like David James who in "Child Collecting" has much to say about the possessive mother. There are poets like Faye Kicknosway who let their vivid imagery transform the mundane into a statement of relevance. There was only one poet I worried about. Hugh Fox has a selection of fairly grotesque offerings. They made me reconsider an observation I heard verbalized the other day: the next stop after fantasy is suicide.

Karen Petrovich leaves the fantasy to the poets. In her "Letters From Karen," she manages to capture personal experiences in such a way that you want to say, "Hey, I know what you mean, I feel that way too." Her collection of essays is warming everyone's heart in Traverse City. I can see why.

Not long ago we shared dinner with friends who mean much to me creatively. When the time came to hold hands to bless the food, or for raising wine glasses to the season, I wanted very much to say thank you from my other self. I didn't. Maybe the mood wasn't right. Maybe I was like a candid photographer ready to take the shot but unsure of my setting. Anyway, I'll say it now. I love you, my friends, for supporting that other self, for being excited with me when I take a picture of a dewdrop on a leaf, for encouraging rather than criticizing when I get crazy ideas for my writing. I really don't know how to be one person, and if that other invisible me weren't kept a live, the world just wouldn't look the same somehow.

Which is also the reason I raise a glass to Karen and the contemporary Michigan poets. Why we feel compelled to communicate in this way has little to do with money or fame. It has much to do with the life of our other self. Merry Christmas.

Diana Mason disputes statement

Editor:

I am writing in response to an article that appeared in the Courier on November 29, 1978 concerning Mr. Jim Mitchell. In that article Mr. Mitchell made the statement "After college, I worked with Diana Mason in Petoskey setting up her gymnastics program". Apparently, Mr. Mitchell didn't realize that my gymnastics program had been started three years before he started working for me. At the time he was hired, I had been teaching acrobat and tumbling for three years and the total gymnastics program involving apparatus for one year. I had also been a gymnastics instructor at summer gymnastics camps and clinics.

Mr. Mitchell was merely an employee for eight months. He was hired as a beginning gymnastics instructor and coach. He does not deserve any credit for the starting of my gymnastics school.

Sincerely yours,
Diana Mason

Nuclear technology a threat

Editor:

Recently 14 members of Northern Michigan Alternative Development were arrested for trespassing on Consumer's Power Company's property. This action was thoroughly intended by all involved. We were there to dismantle the Big Rock nuclear power plant. The police had been notified of our intentions, as well as Consumer's Power. The media also knew of our plans.

Arm in arm, carrying a huge neon-orange styrofoam monkey wrench, along with other signs, we marched toward the plant, chanting of love and peace. We were there to celebrate life.

We were stopped three times by Consumer's Power guards and representatives on the road, and notified that unless we left the premises, our arrests would be forthcoming. Each time our decision was to continue until arrested.

Our philosophy of non-violence was carried through. We were totally cooperative during the arrests. We were treated with utmost respect by the Charlevoix Sheriff's Department. The actions of Sheriff Lasater and his whole department are to be commended.

Now, why would these citizens of NoMAD threaten their jobs, homes, etc. to be arrested willingly? Obviously, we were totally unaware at the time of arrest what the outcome would be. Each of us could well still be in jail.

All of us were assured that our cause was well worth making a police record that could mar our futures in the views of many people. To us, there are no scars. There are no regrets. Our actions only strengthened our faith.

We believe that a nuclear technology blatantly threatens the well-being of the human race. The dangers are imminent not only to us, but to future generations. We did this to educate the public. Maybe now, with this performance, people will begin to listen to what we have to say about the dangers. Maybe now, the general public will do some investigations of their own.

Sincerely yours,
Pamela K. Peterson

Indians acting money hungry

Editor:

If being one-eighth Polish makes me 100 percent Pole, I do not know. But as to "Indians," it really isn't the Indian acting like an 1836 Indian fisherman that causes trouble. It's the Indian acting like a 1978 money hungry "whiteman."

Seems that if a court could stretch an 1838 treaty to cover planted fish paid for by the whiteman, then a court could also say the Indian fisherman must divide his catch among his needy fellow tribesman. Thus all might proudly have fish to eat. Isn't that better than some having to accept white man's assistance?

I'm confused.

How are you doing? I hope you are doing good. I am 5. We are busy making things in school. I'm not in a grade, I'm in kindergarden class. I made a candy cane picture colored with red, white and green. I helped decorate a tree to take to my Grandpa's house, because he never gets a tree. I do a good deed every day, ever since Dec. 1, and then I get to open a door on my Advent calendar. Today I had a candy advent calendar and I gave it to my Dad.

I would like my own little flashlight to take to bed with me. You can bring me anything you want me to have for Christmas and surprise me.

Love, Neal Stangis

Dear Santa Claus,

How are you doing? Keeping busy?

For Christmas I want a durm set or a guitar. And I would like a new football. One last thing I wish for a sweat suit. My cousin wants a back-pack and a nerf football. My other cousin wants the Grease album. My brother wants a radio and a football. I don't know what my mom and dad or my freinds want. The world needs more beauty then it all ready has. I'm going to sign off now

Sincerely,
Kevin Shepard

Dear Santa Claus,

How are you guys doing in that cold weather? When I say how are you guys doing, It means you, your wife, your elves and all the reindeer. But it doesn't mean Mr. Frost, though. Well, now let me see. "O'ya! The things I want for christmas are really neat. At least that's what I think. I don't know what my family wants so I just won't say anything about it. The things I would what for Christmas are a little bit of Star Wars dolls like Luke Skywalker, Han Solo, Chewbocca, Darth Vader, C 3-PO and R2-D2. OOps, I almost forgot that I wanted a Pittsburgh Steelers helmet. That's about all. Thank you.

Sincerely yours,
Jon Eakes

Dear Santa Claus,

How is it in the North Pole? We have about one inches of snow. I want: Death Star, Mose Ealy, a Miami Dolphins number 12 football shirt, a Miami Dolphins lamp, Mr Quarterback, a football signed by Bob Gries, and O.J. Simson, A.F.L. and N.F.L. miny football helmet, a Jaws, Stormtroopers, a Tusken Raider a train track, a pair of football pants and I hope the elves could make all of the things. We may have the fireplace. Will you bring us a C.B. for Christmas?

Yours truly,
Mike Gauthler

Dear Santa Claus,

I bet it is very snowy at the North Pole. There's hardly even an inch of it where we live. It is pretty cold out at night. Its been a while since I wrote a letter to you. The last time I wrote one was 1975. I really didn't my mom did it for me because I didn't know how to write then. This year I thought a lot and I would like: an electric car set, a pack of gum, a football, a foot ball helmet and all kinds of other stuff.

Yours truly,
Charlie Steele

Dear Santa Clous,

Whats it like up there? We just got our snow. I never wrote a letter to you before but its ok. How are you? I'm fine.

Now Ill tell you what I want for Christmas. A little kitten 6 weeks old thats what I want., a new horse trailer for my mom and dad, for Lori Rozema a new grebil and cage. For Maria Parsons a new lead rope, and for Lisa Seymour a horse poster. For my teacher a new tape recorder and for Laura Riebel a new back pack and for the world help stop pollution in Charlevoix because there is a lot of trash and it does not look nice.

Sincerely,
Carol Ritsema

Dear Santa,

I hope you are doing fine this year. Are your elvs making lots of toy? Is Mrs. Claus all right? For me this year I would like a: battle cruiser, a sled, a Micrenot, a train, a race set, and a Dalles Cowboys poster. For my family I would like a safe trip down to my aunts house, and a nice Christmas and a happy New Year. And for my friend, Coy, since his favorite teams are the Pittsburg Steelers and the Dalles Cowboys, I want some hellmets for his favorite teams. And for the world I would like peace.

Yours Truly,
Chuck Myers

Dear Santa,

I hope you are feeling good today, because you have to go to all those kids houses on Christmas Eve.

I would like you to bring me a Mr. Quarterback and some nice skis so I can go skiing.

For my mom and dad I would like you to give them a trip to Hawaii for two weeks.

For my sister I would like you get her a watch and dress, and for my friend Steve, a ski jacket and ski gloves.

Yours Truly,
Ty Wagner

Christmas spirit strikes students

By [illegible]

[illegible] with [illegible] Christmas trees [illegible] that Santa's day is near.

When this reporter entered Carolyn DeMoor's first grade room, she was greeted by a full-size Santa Claus who was just a little bit lopsided from being fondled and sat upon, and the walls were alive with bright Christmas art work.

There were paper stockings "sewn" with yarn pushed through punched holes. "The worms' heads peeked through," Mrs. DeMoor explained.

There was a montage of little heads with pursed lips singing Christmas carols. Each child had drawn his own picture, making sure his mouth was [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] the children [illegible] for their parents [illegible] completed [illegible] salt and flour and coffee [illegible] to hang on Christmas trees, red candy canes all red in color because the white syrup didn't harden, green wrapping paper for gifts carefully decorated with the use of spools and paper towel rolls, paper candy candles for tree decorations, and last, but not least, teaching aids with Christmas motifs.

"We tie Christmas in with our regular class work," Mrs. DeMoor explains. "This way we can capitalize on the children's interest in Christmas."

It was a superfluous question, but we asked it: "Are the children excited [illegible]

[illegible] Mrs. DeMoor answered. [illegible]

Christmas for first graders is [illegible] Mrs. DeMoor tells us. "They want to know what they are going to get from Santa. We try to overcome that by making gifts for mother and dad."

Belief in Santa is still with most first graders, according to Mrs. DeMoor. "My answer to them when they show any doubt is, "He comes to my house.""

The first few days of school following the Christmas vacation are also trying ones, Mrs. DeMoor says. "They talk excitedly about their new toys and other gifts, but they soon settle down and everything is calm until the first [illegible]

[illegible] and we exchange gifts because people brought gifts to Him."

What do first-graders want for Christmas? Along with all the current Star Wars toys and something called a "Fuzzy Bumper Barber Shop," the old standbys are still on their lists: baseball bats, trucks, tractors, tool boxes, footballs and football suits, race tracks, electric trains, dolls (especially Barbie), even a puppy and a kitten's bed.

It isn't always Christmas time for first-graders. Throughout the year they work on reading skills and numbers and learn about animals and holidays but most importantly, according to Mrs. DeMoor, they learn to get along with [illegible]

[illegible] They need to learn this early.

Mrs. DeMoor has been teaching first graders in Charlevoix for [illegible] years, and before that taught in Jackson for two years and in Grand Rapids for two years. She is a graduate of Western Michigan University with a major in education and grew up in Jackson where she graduated from high school. She and her husband, Don, have a daughter, Lynne, who is a senior at Charlevoix High School.

"I take the positive approach in my teaching rather than the negative and find it works better," the teacher explains.

"I really enjoy my work and feel sorry for those who don't."

Regional planners propose jail study

Tom Lipps, criminal justice planner for the Northwest Regional Planning Commission, appeared before the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week to explain a proposed study of jails in the 10-county northwest region.

The study would be made by professional jail consultants and funded by federal money with 10 percent matching funds. Lipps indicated that Charlevoix County's share could be as low as $275.

The study would point out deficiencies in county jail systems in light of new and more stringent regulations imposed on them by various governmental agencies. It would also consider the feasibility of multi-county jail systems.

Some of the regulations now being promulgated include separate quarters for those accused of misdemeanors and those accused of felonies; for alcoholics and narcotic addicts; for those with serious physical illnesses; as well as for women and juveniles.

In addition to physical accommodations, the study would go into such matters as rehabilitation programs and medical services rendered by the jails.

A recent decision by Judge James Harvey of the United States District Court in Saginaw concerning jail facilities has caused consternation among county officials and law enforcement agencies because of the stringent standards for jails he is advocating.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater says he has read the judge's instructions to the Saginaw County sheriff and reports they are far-reaching. However, he says that to date he has been able to meet all state requirements in his jail and sees no problem in the foreseeable future.

Meanwhile, the board of commissioners last week adopted a resolution expressing opposition to the construction of county jails to Judge Harvey's standards which are funded either locally or by the state.

The resolution pointed out that many counties in Michigan have financed locally and recently built modern and humane facilities and are operating them in accordance with Michigan State Department of Corrections standards.

It further noted that the new jail standards promulgated by Judge Harvey's decision are not legislative law and are being contested in the U.S. Court of Appeals in Cincinnati; also that no economic impact statement accompanied the decree.

Continuing, the resolution stated that "It has long been recognized and respected that this area of responsibility in Michigan law and tradition has been accepted throughout our history as a state that these detention services be humanely provided locally within the limits that the county could afford."

Copies of the resolution were mailed to all county clerks in the state, the Michigan Department of Corrections, the Michigan Association of Counties, Governor Milliken, Congressman-elect Robert Davis, and local representatives in the state legislature.

A Christmas treat

Sixty-eight nursery children from Charlevoix did something last week that they had probably never done before — made Christmas cookies.

The children made the cookies at the Grey Gables Inn, upon request by owner Dave Phillips. The children rolled the dough, decorated the cookies and then cut them into all kinds of shapes and sizes. Afterwards, when the cookies came out of the oven and cooled off, the children had cookies and milk.

Cookies that were not eaten, were stored and will be used Thursday and Friday when the nursery children have their Christmas party.

Davis appoints staff members

Congressman-elect Bob Davis has announced several appointments to his district and Washington staffs.

District representatives include: Bill Huber of Petoskey, who served as Davis' district representative in the senate for two years, will cover the counties of Emmet, Mackinac, Chippewa, Menominee, Luce, Schoolcraft, and Delta; Charles Goddeyne of Gaylord, covering the counties of Cheboygan, Otsego, Charlevoix, Antrim, Crawford, Montmorency and Oscoda; Jerry Newhouse of Alpena who has served as Congressman Phil Ruppe's district representative for the lower peninsula, will be responsible for the counties of Alpena, Iosco, Presque Isle and Alcona; Gerry Blanchard of Marquette, covering the counties of Marquette, Alger, Iron, Dickinson, Gogebic, Ontonagon and Baraga; Dr. Ed Vandette of Houghton, covering the counties of Houghton and Keweenaw and serving as education sonsultant. Judy Allen of Marquette has been named office manager for the Marquette district office.

Washington staff members appointed thus far include Jan Howell of Marquette, who worked for Davis in Lansing for four years and served as his campaign manager, as administrative assistant; Wendy Menard of Sault Ste. Marie, who has also worked for Davis for four years, as press secretary; Bill Mengebier of Petoskey, who worked on Davis' campaign, will serve as legislative assistant; and John Wilson of Grayling.

Rayders split, play St. Ignace Tuesday

Rogers City and Gaylord have jumped out in front in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference basketball race. Both teams sport perfect 4-0 records.

Rogers City recorded its fourth win Friday night against Charlevoix, 74-55.

The Rayders of Coach Dave Moyer played the Hurons tough for the first 16 minutes of the game, but a poor third quarter performance spelled doom. Charlevoix trailed by seven, 32-25, at half. Then Rogers City outscored the Rayders 23-11 in the third quarter to take a commanding 55-36 lead going into the fourth quarter. Each team scored 19 points in the final stanza.

The Rayders, 1-3 in conference play, were paced by Pat Schmidt with 19 points. Kevin Kratt added 12. Charlevoix hit on 26 field goals and were seven of 10 from the charity stripe. The Rayders also accumulated 21 fouls in comparison to eight for Rogers City.

The Hurons had four players in double figures with Dave Idalski scoring 25 points, John Blair 17, Mark Pilarski 16 and Neil Grulke 11.

Earlier in the week, Charlevoix notched its first win of the young campaign by stomping Grayling, 90-67.

The Rayders grabbed a quick first quarter lead, 28-15, and never relinquished it. The only question about the outcome of the game was whether or not Charlevoix would break the 100-point barrier. The Rayders led at half [illegible] and after three quarters it was [illegible].

Once again, Schmidt led the Rayder scoring parade. The senior forward tallied 28 points, his best performance thus far. Kratt, who played a fine defensive game, added 13 points. Gil Noirot, who teams with Kratt in the backcourt, also chipped in with 13. Ten Rayders broke into the scoring column.

For Grayling, winless in conference play, Todd Dunckley had 17 points and Ken Hebel added 15.

Charlevoix had 40 field goals in the contest and hit an impressive 10 of 11 from the free throw line. Grayling, meanwhile, had 27 field goals and hit on only 13 of 26 from the free throw line.

The Rayders will be back in action Tuesday night when they host the St. Ignace Saints.

Thompson skates to third place

Brian Thompson, a senior at Charlevoix High School, skated to an overall third place in the Intermediate Men's class at the Detroit Metro Open this weekend.

Thompson, 17, placed second in the 220 and third in the 440, 880, three-quarter mile and one mile events.

The Metro Detroit Open was sponsored by the Detroit Speedskating Club. Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Thompson, is a member of the Petoskey Area Speedskating Club.

Earlier this year, Thompson competed in the Birmingham and Wolverine Indoor races. In Birmingham, Thompson finished third place overall by placing third in each of the 400, 800 and 1,000 meter races. In the Wolverine Indoor race at the Jack Adams Arena in Detroit, Thompson came in fourth overall by finishing second in the 400 meter and fourth in the 800 and 1,000 meter races.

JV's beat Rogers City

The Charlevoix JV basketball team evened its record Friday night with a 66-42 win over Rogers City. The Rayders are 2-2 on the season having lost to Grayling, 63-60 earlier in the week.

The Rayders used a big third quarter to break open a tight game against Rogers City. Charlevoix increased a slim six point halftime lead, 27-21, into a comfortable 15 point cushion, 51-36, after three quarters.

For Charlevoix, Jeff Drury had a game high 16 points. Teammate Jim Buchanan added 14. Rogers City was led Chris Hety with 14 points.

Charlevoix was not so fortunate against Grayling.

The game seesawed back and forth with Charlevoix leading, 19-13, after the first quarter and Grayling taking the lead, 35-34, at half. It was 49-49 after three quarters.

Charlevoix had four players score in double figures with Jeff Drury and Buchanan each hitting 14 points and Gary Drury and Mike Loper each scoring 10 points.

Frosh lose first ballgame, 53-50

The Charlevoix freshmen basketball team dropped its first game of the season last week. The Rayders were humped by Grayling, 53-50.

The host Vikings led after each quarter. It was 16-10 after the first eight minutes, 29-22 at half and 35-30 after three quarters.

Charlevoix had four players in double figures with Andy Schafer getting 13 points, Jeff Greene 12, Mike Schmidt 11 and Dave Buday 10.

For Grayling, Terry Fagen had 15 points and Paul Harland 14.

Rec Basketball

In Men's A-League city recreation basketball last week Depot Restaurant took Century 21, 76-69.

The winners led 24-16, 40-35 and 57-46 at the quarter breaks. For Depot, Al Looze canned 17 points, Kim Hocquard 14, Tom Beyer 12 and Chuck Stanek 10. For Century 21, Hud Drenth hit 21 markers and Bill Vandergraf 12.

Swanson's took F.B. Taylor Inc. 75-52. The winners trailed 14-12 after one period but tookover 33-20 and 48-34 at the next two breaks. For Swanson's, Vince Left posted 17 points, Bruce Meggison 13, Randy DeYoung 12 and Roger Crain 10 while for Taylor, Brian Farrell hit 22 and John Nachazel 14 points.

Town House thumped Site Planning, 75-55, with quarter margins of 21-6, 43-22 and 57-36. For Town House, Jerome Harris had 17 points, Dan McKenzie 16 with Rich Leslie and Steve Dunkelberg canning 12 each. For Site Planning, Tim Carey hit 20 points and Jerry Skippergosh and Kevin Griffin 12 each.

DAVE GOLOVICH looks to Coach Norm Probert for instructions during his match with Paul Miller of Glen Lake. Golovich won 14 1

The Petoskey Northmen, coached by Roy Harvey, won the Charlevoix Invitational Wrestling Tournament Saturday.

Petoskey was led by three wrestlers who took first place honors in the 19 team field. Mike Pemberton beat Dave Harvey of Pine River 7-2 in the 105 pound weight class, Kevin Griese beat Sascha Knoblich of Manistee Catholic Central 4-2 in the 119 pound weight class, and John Pemberton beat Max Mitchell 8-6 in the 126 pound weight class.

Charlevoix finished in 10th place and had two wrestlers take seconds in weight divisions. Dave Golovich lost to Chuck Golnick of Grayling 8-6 in the 132 pounds weight class, and Dennis Whitley lost to Bernie Knoblich of Manistee Catholic Central 11-4 in the 178 pound weight class. Knoblich, a defending state champ, was named the tournament's Most Valuable Wrestler.

Four other Rayder wrestlers finished in the top eight of their respective weight classes. Micky Belfy was eighth at 105 pounds, Bill Trost was eighth at 119 pounds, Scott Golovich was eighth at 155 pounds, and Ken Wojan was sixth in the heavyweight division.

Also competing from Charlevoix but not placing were Gerard Wimmer, Joe Borths, Jeff Drenth, Norbert Scharenbroch and Dave Britton.

Altogether, there were 466 bouts during the day with 208 boys competing.

Charlevoix Coach Norm Probert expressed thanks to several workers who volunteered time and energy to make the tournament successful.

Earlier in the week, Charlevoix squeaked by Sault Ste. Marie 35-32. The Rayders have never lost to Sault Ste. Marie in wrestling.

Charlevoix winners include Belfy on a 17-15 decision at 105 pounds, Borths on a forfeit at 112 pounds, Trost on a 13-3 decision at 119 pounds, Drenth on a pin at 126 pounds, Dave Golovich on a 13-5 decision at 132 pounds, Gregg Whitley on a 10-2 decision at 138 pounds, Dennis Whitley on a forfeit at 191 pounds and Ken Wojan on a forfeit in the heavyweight division. Scott Golovich drew 2-2 with his opponent, Richard Wood.

The Rayders are now 1-2 on the season and will have their first home match of the season Thursday against Grayling. The match starts at 6:30 p.m. Probert will talk on wrestling prior to the match and team members will go through a series of moves and techniques to familiarize the public with the fast growing sport.

DENNIS WHITLEY pins his opponent, Greg Molby of Mancelona, in the 178 pound class. Whitley finished second in the weight class.

NORBERT SCHARENBROCH and Bob Fast of Frankfurt had a hard fought match. Fast won in overtime 2-1.

Family fun

Holiday fever heated up in Charlevoix over the weekend as Santa Claus came to town on Saturday and the Christmas Bazaar and Family Fun day was held on Sunday.

The bazaar featured all sorts of games for children. In addition a bake sale and a book sale were held. [illegible] Santa even showed up for the bazaar and many youngsters had their picture taken sitting on Santa's lap.

The bazaar was sponsored by the Parents Advisory Council. Proceeds from the bazaar will be used to purchase additional bleachers for the gymnasium.

ANIMALS at the Charlevoix County Humane Society will be enjoying Christmas, too. At last week's open house visitors brought food for the animals, which was placed under the tree. Nearly 100 people attended the open house. Here, Sandy Powers plays with a cat near the tree.

Health department will not participate in mobile program

District Health Department Number 3 (Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties) has formally notified the Michigan Department of Public Health and Department of Commerce that it doesn't have an interest at present time in participating in the new Mobil Home Park Program. The new program gives the Department of Commerce primary jurisdiction over Mobile Home Parks in the State of Michigan.

According to Dean Mikulski, director of environmental health for District Health Department number Three, there are 20 Mobile Home Parks in the area with 729 sites. Mikulski expressed concern that these 729 sites would not be provided with an inspection for licensing. Mikulski did state that "the department would still be involved in plan review, water and sewage evaluations".

Commissioner, Hobert Diesing of Otsego County felt that it would be best to wait for a response to the letter before taking any further action.

For the area served by District Health Department Number Three the Board of Health also serves as the Governing and Advisory Board to the Home Health Program. Director of Nursing Frances Hooper reported the delivery of Health Department services in this area. For the first nine months of 1978, 191 patients were served. Registered nurses made 944 visits with physical therapists making 221.

Commissioner, Ann Smith of Emmet County commented on the work of the program. It was her feeling the board should support the state and national movement to include reimbursement from Medicare and Medicaid for basic home health care also.

Gerald Chase, administrator for the department gave reports on travel reimbursement, general liability coverage and the regional team contract.

All offices of District Health Department Number Three will be officially closed at 12:00 (noon) on the 15th of December for their annual Christmas party.

The next scheduled Board of Health Meeting will be held on Tuesday, Dec. 19 at 1:30 p.m. in Emmet County. All Board of Health meetings are open to the public. Further information about action taken at Board of Health meeting, please contact your nearest office at Bellaire, Charlevoix, Petoskey and Otsego.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY Commissioner Martin Paul, the commissioner's representative to the Board of Health, discusses the local health department concerns in participating with the Department of Commerce's Mobile Home Program with Dean Mikulski, director of environmental health.

Electric rates increased

The Public Service Commission / Department of Commerce today approved an application by Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative, Inc. of Boyne City for authority to raise its wholesale rates for electric power by approximately $246,403, or 1.6 percent.

Northern Michigan sells wholesale power to three member cooperatives which serve an estimated 63,000 retail customers in northern Lower Michigan.

Capital Improvement Plan requested

The Charlevoix County Planning Department last week was directed to investigate and design a Capital Improvements Plan and Program for the county.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners made the directive at the request of its Ways and Means Committee in a resolution which stated that "A capital improvement budget could be a useful financial budgeting tool in determining large capital expenditures in the future (and) the county is in need of such a document so that the yearly budgeting function can be simplified."

Once the program is designed, it will be presented to the county board of commissioners for adoption and implementation.

Mistletoe is more than stealing a Christmas kiss

LIKE THIS MISTLETOE harvester of a century ago, collectors today must venture into the woods and gather the leafy shrub by hand. The parasite is not commercially cultivated.

To most people, mistletoe means an excuse to steal a kiss at Christmas time. But that's just one of many traditions that have been associated with this curious parasitic plant, according to the current issue of National Wildlife magazine.

"For centuries, people all over the world have considered mistletoe to be a charm against disease, witchcraft, and infertility," says the bimonthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation. Mistletoe superstitions probably came about because of the unusual and rather eerie way in which the plant grows.

Mistletoe flourishes in clumps on the trunks and branches of various hardwood trees, where it robs its host tree of water and nutrients. Often, the host tree is so weakened that it dies. But since mistletoe can produce its own food when necessary, the parasite remains green and moist.

Because they were unable to explain how mistletoe grew, ancient civilizations believed the plant had supernatural powers, says National Wildlife. Peasants in both England and Japan believed that barren women would be able to conceive after eating mistletoe. The Walos of Africa attached mistletoe leaves to their bodies, confident that they would then be protected from injury. The Swedes carved sword handles from the mistletoe branches to ward off witches, while other Europeans wore mistletoe corsages to guarantee a successful hunt.

Mistletoe is not a very tasty plant. In fact, although there are more than a thousand varieties throughout the world, only one animal – the tiny Australian mistletoe bird – relies solely on mistletoe for food. But medical history reveals that despite its taste, mistletoe was often fed to ailing patients by physicians who [illegible]

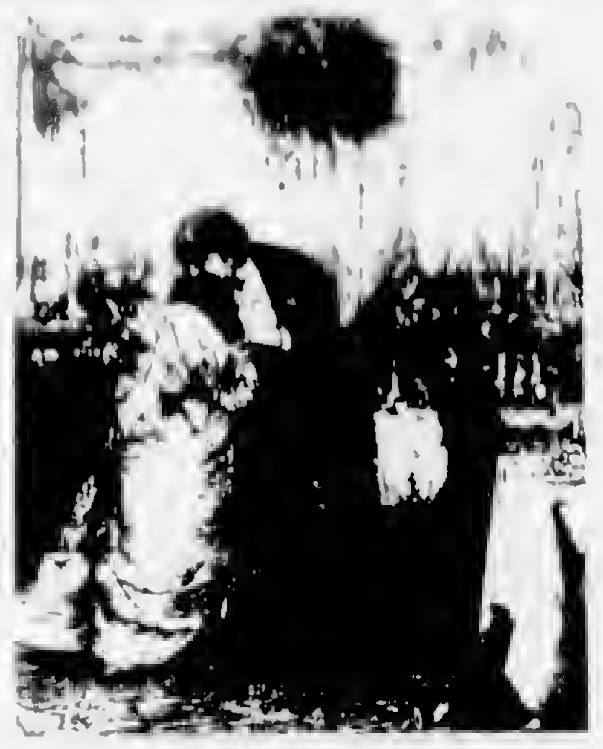
[illegible]

Even as late as the [illegible], National Wildlife reports, some European medical authorities thought mistletoe would cure epilepsy. Since mistletoe attaches itself so firmly to a tree that it cannot be blown down, they reasoned an epileptic could not fall down if he consumed the plant regularly.

As it was thought that mistletoe possessed magical powers, it's not surprising that the plant was long forbidden in Christian churches. It was thought to be tainted with heathenism. But the Druids – the woodsy priests of the ancient Celts – considered mistletoe to be a warm refuge for the woodland spirits during the cold weather. They gathered and hung the plant throughout their dwellings. This primeval practice may be the origin of the western tradition of decorating homes with greenery at Christmas time.

Centuries ago, on the sixth day of a new moon, a white-robed priest armed with a golden sickle could be seen harvesting mistletoe. The Druids believed the plant was too sacred to be collected by just anyone. Traditions change, of course, and today anyone willing to venture out into the woods can gather mistletoe with a pair of pruning shears.

But some traditions change very little. A kiss under the mistletoe dates all the way back to Norse mythology, which dedicated mistletoe to the Goddess of Love.



IN AN EARLIER TIME, stealing a Christmas kiss under the mistletoe was quite a daring thing to do. Today, it's not quite so risque but the tradition is still going strong.

Area agency on aging approves 1979 services plan

The board of directors of the Northwest Michigan Area Agency on Aging gave final approval to the 1979 area plan for services to the elderly at a meeting in Traverse City recently.

The plan is designed to provide services which allow elderly individuals to remain in their own homes instead of having to be placed in an institution. Senior's who can no longer perform all the activities of daily living independently will be able to take advantage of supportive services such as transportation, home health, home chore, and personal care.

The $398,000 of service money is from the Older Americans Act and is sub-contracted to local commissions and councils on aging. Almost 9,000 or one out of four of the regions 36,000 senior citizen population have received services in one form or another through the aging network in Northwest Michigan.

The plan includes a $12,000 training grant to provide for eight senior education programs as well as workshops and training sessions for the regions aging network staff and volunteers providing services to seniors.

In addressing itself to the total needs of the senior population, the Area Agency on Aging has awarded a $140,000 contract to Community, Family and Children Services for a senior employment program. The grant provides funding for 33 part-time jobs for low-income seniors 55 and over. The jobs are located in a wide-range of community organizations including schools, libraries and county Commissions and Councils on Aging.

One of the major initiatives for 1979 will be the development of home care meals for isolated and home bound elderly citizens. The program is being developed on a small scale first to work out any potential problems. The plans call for two meals, one hot and one cold to be delivered five days a week to home bound elderly who through physical and mental limitations are unable to prepare the meals themselves and have no friends or relatives in the area capable of doing so.

Below is a breakdown of the service contracts awarded to local county aging organizations.

Antrim County Commission on Aging	$16,700
Benzie County Commission on Aging	$12,800
Charlevoix County Commission on Aging	$23,100
Friendship Centers of Petoskey and Emmet County	$24,670
Grand Traverse Commission on Aging	$37,840
Kalkaska County Commission on Aging	$11,000
Leelanau County Commission on Aging	$15,550
Manistee County Council on Aging	$34,140
Missaukee County Council on Aging	$5,750
Wexford County Council on Aging	$28,800

One of the highlights of the plan is the 1979 Senior Olympics which is expected to draw over 200 participants throughout the state for the three day event.

Second, the DEP enables Patrie, a 1978 graduate of Allendale High School, to wrap up his personal affairs before leaving home.

Patrie will enter the Regular Air Force on Jan. 2. Following graduation from the six-week training course at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, he will receive technical training as a Food Services Specialist and be assigned to an Air Force duty station.

Happy New Year

Girl, 9, pulled from lake

Gilbert Ice says "it's a miracle" that his nine-year-old daughter, Karla, is still alive today. And he has John Osterberg to thank.

Karla and her eight-year-old friend, Michelle Mailloux, were feeding the ducks at Round Lake Saturday afternoon when the two girls bumped into each other on a dock and Karla lost her balance and fell into the lake.

"I don't know how deep the water is there," said Ice, "but I know you can't see bottom.

"And Karla can't swim a lick."

Michelle was unable to reach Karla and pull her back to safety so she ran to the lumberyard – where Osterberg was working – to get help.

According to Ice, Osterberg was on a tractor when he heard Michelle hollering. He apparently couldn't understand what Michelle was saying until she pointed to the lake, Ice said. Osterberg immediately ran to the area where Michelle had pointed and found Karla, who had somehow managed to stay near the top of water despite going under at least once, her father said.

Osterberg pulled Karla from the water and carried her to the Mailloux home.

"It was a grace of God that the boy was there," Ice said. "We just can't thank him enough.

"This was our Christmas present."

Karla is still in shock, Ice said, and has been kept in the house while complaining of chest pains and running a temperature.

"But," Ice said, "it's just a miracle how it turned out considering what could have happened."

Karla and Michelle are both third graders at the elementary school.

Juveniles apprehended, may face extradition on two charges

Four Charlevoix juveniles have been apprehended in Hernando, Miss., and may face charges of theft and breaking and entering back in Charlevoix.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department has asked officials in Hernando to hold the juveniles – who were picked up on a traffic violation over the weekend – until today when Probate Judge John Murphy will decide on extradition.

The four juveniles are believed to have stolen a 1976 Buick stationwagon from Louise Lent of Bay Shore. The car was reported stolen early Thursday morning. Also, Thursday morning $126 in cash plus several checks were taken from Foto Fast in Charlevoix. Mrs. Lent is manager of Foto Fast and the key to the building was on the same key ring as the car key.

It was also reported Thursday that four juveniles were missing and were reportedly armed, leading police to believe that the juveniles may have been involved in the theft and breaking and entering.

Mayor reviews 1978, looks ahead to 1979

What happened in Charlevoix in 1978? What are the city's priorities in 1979? The Courier talked with Charlevoix Mayor Sam Supernaw recently and asked what transpired in the past year and what is predicted for the coming year.

COURIER: "One of your goals when you took office was to find a city administrator. How important is it to have a city manager?

SUPERNAW: Under the charter it's imperative that we have a council-manager type of government. The manager runs the day-to-day activities of the city with the council giving direction. Before, under the Fourth Class Cities Act, there was no specific reference to a city manager because the law was so old. But the charter requires one and I think we got a competent person for the job (Norm Gaffney). I think he is doing a real good job administratively and is getting us back in line. We have a $2.5 million budget and it needs attention.

COURIER: Did the city suffer by not having a city manager?

SUPERNAW: Oh, yes. I don't know if suffer is the right word, but we did get behind because council had to take care of the day-to-day activities and really couldn't look ahead. Now with someone in there doing all the routine work council can look to the future. For instance, we have now met with the township (Charlevoix) and are trying to get things straightened out between the township and city, we are going ahead with our water project and we are planning to extend our sewers.

COURIER: How is the relationship between the city and the township?

SUPERNAW: It's at an initial stage right now. We had a meeting with the township recently and they brought up several issues they want resolved. I don't see any problem with them. In fact, we're going to discuss them Monday at a committee meeting. I think the people on the committee are willing to work and I don't see any great problems.

COURIER: What kind of issues does the township want resolved?

SUPERNAW: One of their priorities is mutual aid between fire departments, which we will discuss Monday. They want back-up power lines for the north side station. They are presently under REA and they want the city to extend lines to the station just on a back-up basis. They want equal rates for residents at recreation facilities and they want a schedule of rates for sewage processing (if township supplies lines).

COURIER: Was there any discussion of a merger at the meeting?

SUPERNAW: It wasn't discussed at the first meeting, but I know it's in everybody's mind. I think when we get this (current issues) out of the way that that might be the next step. I like to talk about it because I think we have so much in common. I think it's inevitable that we start working out an agreement for a merger. One of my top priorities for the upcoming year will be to try and work out an equitable situation for the city and township.

COURIER: What other priorities do you have for the upcoming year?

SUPERNAW: Well, of course, we have applied for a water grant which, hopefully, would allow us to build a new water tower and would allow us to update out pump house where we need a new sump pump. We also have applied for a sewer grant which would allow us to extend our lines to all areas of the city not covered by sewers. It would also allow us to separate storm and sanitary sewers, which will be mandatory soon. A priority list comes out in May and, hopefully, we'll be right up there.

COURIER: The city started implementing the charter in June. How has the transition been?

SUPERNAW: I don't think it has been as difficult as we anticipated. I think it will take a year or two, though, before we can really function good under it. But it hasn't really changed our day-to-day activities. The biggest change was going to a council-manager type of government. But, in general, I think it's going well.

COURIER: We have heard that this year's budget will be tight. What are your thoughts on that?

SUPERNAW: I understand in the financial statements that we are in pretty tight straights right now. I think inflation has taken most of our money. And also we are still recovering from that one year when we had a drastic low tax which cut into our surplus.

COURIER: Will any city services have to be cut or curtailed?

SUPERNAW: I couldn't say for sure at this time. We'll have to wait. Offhand, though, I would doubt it. I think we can get along. We're tied in a lot with the union so we really can't layoff people. One of the few areas we could cut would be recreation, but that's mostly volunteer and doesn't cost the city much.

COURIER: Looking back, how would you assess 1978?

SUPERNAW: It being my initial year I was pleased with the progress we made in such a short period of time. We got a city manager and City Hall is functioning very well administratively. The Mt. McSauba project is, hopefully, finished. We have been active on a water grant. We got our senior citizen housing rolling. And I would like to pursue having the city purchase more property along the beach on Ferry Ave. Hopefully, we'll make some dock improvements this spring.

COURIER: How is your relationship with council and the city manager?

SUPERNAW: I'm satisfied with it. We don't have any problems. I think I'm an easy guy to work with. I listen to everybody.

No dumping!

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the State of Michigan Health Department have warned city officials that they will no longer allow violations to continue at the city owned disposal site, which is located southwest of the city off U.S. 31 south in Charlevoix Township.

The city uses the site to dispose of leaves and tree limbs, which are burned once a year. However, the public has been using the site to dispose of refuse.

"This area is not for public use and the dumping of refuse, junk, furniture, building materials and all other materials must cease," said City Manager Norm Gaffney.

Two local students candidates for academy

U.S. Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., today announced a record number of 90 nominees – including 17 women – to compete for appointment to the U.S. Army, Navy, Air Force and Merchant Marine Academies in 1979.

The 90 nominees will be competing for 20 openings in first-year classes starting next summer. Final selection will be made by the four service academies.

Among the nominees are Chris Henkel of Charlevoix and Darryl Christensen of East Jordan. Henkel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Henkel, is a nominee for the Air Force while Christensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Christensen, is a nominee for the Navy.

"Because of a greater number of available openings in 1979, I am delighted to have the opportunity to make a larger number of nominations than ever before," said Griffin. "The quality of this year's applicants was so high that, quite frankly, it would have been impossible to cut the list of nominees any further."

He said he was "particularly pleased" at the significant increase in the number of young Michigan women seeking – and winning – academy nominations.

The 90 finalists for 1979 hail from more than 60 Michigan communities and were selected from some 500 applicants on the basis of grades, character, extracurricular activities, leadership potential, and letters of recommendation.

Several are straight-A students and all were top scorers on College Entrance Examination Board of American College Testing Program exams. They now face further testing by the academies for which they have been nominated.

Griffin nominated 30 candidates for three appointments to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.; 20 candidates for two appointments to the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md.; and 30 candidates for three appointments to the U.S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo.

He also selected 10 candidates who will compete with all other Michigan nominees for 12 appointments to the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y.

The nation's fifth service academy – the U.S. Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn. – does not utilize a congressional nomination system.

Charlevoix Yesterday

THIS BUILDING, behind the County Building, served as the County Jail and residence of the sheriff until the new jail was built on Garfield and Grant streets in 1971. It has since been remodeled to house the District 3 Health Department, the Department of Building Inspection, Commission on Aging, and the Commissioners' meeting room. Entrance is now from the doors on the right. (NOTE: Charlevoix old-timer Otto Yemmens tells us that the date on last week's "Charlevoix Yesterday" should have been 1927, not 1957).

Lasater among law officers taking driving course

The police receive a copy over their car radio to apprehend a speeding vehicle. With siren blaring and lights flashing, the police maneuver their car through the traffic and lights at the highest speed possible.

As they negotiate a curve, the car starts to skid – then an accident? Possibly not, at least their chances for a mishap would be less after learning advanced emergency and evasive driving techniques.

This is the reason why 11 law enforcers from the Region 10 Advanced Police Training Progam, at Northwestern Michigan College, attended the Advanced Emergency and Evasive Police Driving Technique Instructor Training Course early in November.

One of the 11 law officers taking the course was Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater. Each of the 11 law officers received certificates, which will allow them to teach the driving safety course to law officers in their departments.

The two-day, 16 hour course, at the General Motors (GM) Proving Ground in Milford, involved extensive classroom and behind-the-wheel driving instruction which included: off-road recovery, skids, cornering skids, low/high speed skids, evasive maneuvers, controlled braking, double lane changing, and serpentine course.

The course was taught by Richard "Doc" Whitworth, manager of traffic Planning, Training and Safety at the GM proving ground. He has a master of arts in highway traffic safety and has authored and co-authored several papers and booklets on safety driving and training techniques.

The instructor training program in safer driving techniques for law enforcement training centers, university safety centers, emergency medical training centers, and school bus drivers is one of the ways GM hopes to help reduce traffic accidents.

Hospital honors two employees for exemplary service

A plaque honoring Edna Essenberg and David Thurston will be displayed in a prominent place in Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Mrs. Essenberg and Thurston, both hospital employees, were the recipients of the first Charlevoix Area Hospital Exemplary Service Award.

The awards were announced at the hospital Christmas party Wednesday afternoon by hospital administrator Richard Krueger.

"The idea of the Exemplary Service Award is to recognize individuals who have served the hospital in unusual ways," Krueger explained.

"The recipients of this award were chosen for their personal attitude, the influence they have on others, their loyalty to the hospital that goes above and beyond their duties, and their outstanding conduct.

"These are people who when the chips are down, come through for the hospital," Krueger continued.

The recipients of the award were chosen by nomination submitted by fellow employees, followed by five rounds of balloting of a special employee committee.

Mrs. Essenberg, a nurses aide, nearly missed her own award because it was her day off, Wednesday, and she went Christmas shopping.

She was clearly stunned to hear Krueger announcing her name and delineating her accomplishments as she arrived.

As an aide, Mrs. Essenberg works more closely with patients than perhaps any other employee.

"She has done an outstanding job," Krueger said, as approving applause came from fellow employees.

"We get letters from patients specifically mentioning Mrs. Essenberg when they praise the care they have received at Charlevoix Area Hospital," Krueger concluded.

David Thurstan, hospital controller, received similar cudos for his "dedication" to the hospital.

Thurston, a graduate of Boyne City High School in 1965, holds a degree in biology from Lake Superior State College, and has earned credits toward a masters degree in business administration from Michigan Technological University.

Thurston who is the chief financial officer for the Charlevoix Area Hospital, instituted the computer system at the hospital which has become a model for small hospitals across the country.

He is president of the local Hospital Financial Managers Association.

In praising Thurston's work, Krueger said that Thurston tirelessly gives long and extra hours for the hospital.

Jim Hoopfer, chairman of the committee which helped select Mrs Essenberg and Thurston said that in naming recipients of Exemplary Service Awards, the "Hospital and their fellow employees are expressing the sentiment that some people, by the example they set in daily work, are respected and stand out.

"There is something special about the way these people approach their jobs – attitude, cooperation, dedication," Hoopfer said, searching for the right words to define the intangible qualities.

"David is the type of supervisor that is not just thinking about his job or his department. He has an overall view of the hospital.

"As a nurses aide, Edna [illegible] contact with patients than anyone [illegible]. She gives baths, backrubs and is always running for the patient. She is an important communications link between the patient and the nurses.

"Edna never stops with just the essentials of her job," Hoopfer concluded.

Both Thurston and Mrs. Essenberg were taken by surprise at the announcement of their honors.

The plaque which reads "Charlevoix Area Hospital wishes to recognize the following employees for their Exemplary Service" has many blank spots after Thurston's and Mrs. Essenberg's names, indicating that in coming years other employees' names will be added.

DIXON AVENUE was one of the first streets in Charlevoix to be paved with concrete, about 1908. The main sewer line for the north side was laid along Dixon Avenue just before the paving. Will Hampton tells about the problems involved with these projects in the accompanying article. The picture is circa 1927.

Hampton tells how Charlevoix secured the Carnegie Library

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth in a series of articles taken from Will E. Hampton's "Memories of Charlevoix the Beautiful Six Decades Ago," written in 1955 when Hampton was an octogenarian. In this installment, he is writing about securing the Carnegie Library, paving the streets, and completing a sewer system:

When I was elected President of the Board of Education, I discovered the inadequacy of the school library, which was the only one in town, and as Andrew Carnegie was scattering free Carnegie libraries all over the land, I got the Board of Education to help in getting a Carnegie Library for our town.

There was only one requirement on the part of the Carnegie Foundation, namely that the city furnish the site and pledge to expend a certain sum yearly for books, etc. In our case, the cash we would have to pay out was, as I recall, about $1,200. There was considerable opposition to the plan to secure the library by people who thought that Carnegie money was "tainted", but money to buy the lot on the corner of State Street and Clinton was donated by generous citizens.

One argument I used in urging the securing of the buildings was that the basement could be planned so that it could be used by the City for offices. Objections were made that this might conflict with the agreement with the Carnegie foundation, but these objections were offset by the saving of a considerable sum every year paid for rent by the City for offices, and, until the new City Hall was erected in recent years, the city offices were located in the basement, and the City saved thousands of dollars, and Mr. Carnegie nor anybody else ever said "boo".

The muddy condition of Bridge Street had been overcome through the use of macadam, but it was not until during my term as Mayor in 1908 that real pavement was voted and Bridge Street was paved from the river to the foot of south hill with bitpulithic (sp?). Cement was just beginning to be used for pavements, and, as the Council had in mind the paving of Dixon Avenue to the depot and Chicago Club, a delegation of aldermen and myself visited Ann Arbor, which at that time was the only city that had any considerable experience with concrete.

The Ann Arbor officials were enthusiastic, but there was a lot of local opposition to concrete, so a local cement contractor agreed to put down a sample strip of concrete up on the south hill from the end of the bitpulithic, and this was done, and later, after the big sewer on Dixon Avenue was complete, he was given the contract, and the pavement is still in good condition. People were fearful that it would prove slippery, but the contractor agreed to stamp the concrete off into blocks with crevices between, to give the horses a footing! This was done, presumably the only piece of concrete paving ever laid with that kind of decorations!

I spoke of the of the sewer on Dixon Avenue. The council had decided that a complete sewage plan for all of the north side should be laid down, with the main pipe on Dixon Avenue, and an engineer was secured and his plan adopted, and a contract let for the construction of the Dixon Avenue main sewer to a man who was low bidder. This chap had just done a job of tarvia paving on Michigan Avenue that was not very satisfactory, so I had insisted on a goodly penalty clause for failure to complete the word in the specified time, which was as I recall, June 1st.

As I had feared, the work dragged along until when it was finally completed, the penalty held back by the City amounted to $1,500. Friends of the contractor, and even some of the Council, felt sorry for the contractor, who undoubtedly did, as he claimed, lose money on the job. However, I felt it was his fault; he had kept Dixon Avenue in a state of impassability all through the height of the resort season, and I refused to sign a check for the $1,500, and my good friend and supporter Olaf Nordrum promised not to sign while I was out of town on my fraternal work, and so the City never did pay the penalty cash held out.

Motorists not buying plates

The longest late March and early April license plate lines ever are predicted by Automobile Club of Michigan at its offices if the current 20 percent drop in sales continues.

Auto Club states that many motorists are putting off the purchase of new plates until the outcome of a petition drive, that would halt the average 30 percent fee hike is known.

Auto Club says the legislation awaiting the governor's signature in Lansing would guarantee a return of any already paid license plate fees above the previous rate if the petition drive is successful. The petition drive not only would leave license plate fees at the 1978 level but would halt an additional two-cent-per-gallon gasoline tax from being levied Jan. 1.

Auto Club reminds motorists they have until March 1 to order license plates by mail through the Secretary of State's office.

Seese retires from post office

When Bill Seese started working for the United States Post Office in Charlevoix it only cost three cents to mail a letter or postcard. And postcards were a penny.

That was in 1951.

Friday was his last day at the post office. Seese is now going to enjoy retirement.

"Oh, I'm just going to loaf around," he said with a smile on his face.

When he's not "loafing" Seese plans to become more active with the Northwest Michigan REACT team and also coach in the women's slo-pitch softball league.

If there is one person in town who knows everybody else it's probably Seese.

"When I was sorting the mail I think I knew everybody," he says.

Seese has delivered mail to many Charlevoixians. He has been a city and a rural carrier. For the past eight years he has worked route 2, which covers M-66 to Ironton, and route 1 which covers the Norwood area.

Since his arrival at the Post Office, Seese has worked for five postmasters; Joe Foster, Pete Timmer, Dan Jeneit, Rex Davis and Joe Swartzfisher. There have also been two officers who stepped in between the appointments of the postmasters; Bill Supernaw and Wayne Chellis.

Seese, who was born in Johnstown, Penn., moved to Charlevoix in 1945 shortly after marrying Betty Shores, who was from this area. They were married a week after he was discharged from the Army. He spent nearly three years in the Army, mostly in Europe, as a radio dispatcher.

Prior to landing his job at the post office he worked for the Miller Boat Company and the Petoskey Cement Company.

He and his wife have three children: Greg, Patricia and Albert. Albert also works at the Charlevoix post office.

Another of Archie's yarns

Archie Rounds, a former resident of Charlevoix who now summers at Walloon Lake, is safely back in Florida for the winter, but one of Archie's rib-tickling yarns is still working it's way across northern Michigan.

It seems a friend of Archie's, a gentleman considerably beyond the first blush of middle age, decided one fine afternoon last summer to ask his wife to go for a ride with him in the family jalopy.

The missus thought it would be a dandy idea.

"But before we leave, I'd like to crawl under the car and make sure the gizmo is properly connected to the grommet," said her husband.

"No rush," said his wife. "That will give me time to run across the street to the drug store and pick up a few things.".

So while Mr. Friend was laboring under the car, Mrs. Friend pawed over counters of notions, picking up a package of Band-Aids and a pair of sunglasses. She also bought a large vanilla ice cream cone which she intended to share with her husband.

However, when she returned home, a long pair of legs was still protruding from under the car and Mrs. Friend was overcome by an uncommonly strong urge to pull a practical joke on her helpmate.

So she leaned over, pulled down his zipper and inserted the vanilla ice cream cone in his pants.

Then she marched up the steps and into the house.

You can well imagine her surprise when she found her husband in the kitchen, washing grease off his hands at the kitchen sink.

"If you're in here, who is under the car?" Mrs. Friend wailed.

"That's old Fred from down the street," her husband answered. "He came down to give me a hand. He's got a bum ticker, but he still likes to monkey around with cars."

With a great deal of reluctance, Mrs. Friend told her husband what she had done and the two of them raced outside. Old Fred's legs were still protruding from the car, but there was no movement or sign of life. Mr. Friend and his wife each grabbed a leg and pulled the old gentleman out into the daylight. His breathing was labored and the eyes had rolled back into their sockets.

Mr. Friend raced into the house and summoned the city ambulance crew by telephone. By the time they arrived, Old Fred had started to rally and the attendants lifted him carefully onto the stretcher and began carrying him to the ambulance.

"What happened to you?" one of the attendants asked solicitously.

"The last thing I knew, I was working under the car when some d— fool came along, pulled down my zipper and put an ice cream cone in my pants," Fred answered.

With that, one of the attendants carrying the stretcher let out a howl of laughter and dropped Old Fred, breaking his arm.

If you don't believe the tale, you'll have to contact Archie when he and Virginia return from Florida next summer. He swears it really happened.

DOESN'T CHARLEVOIX look nice this holiday season with most of the downtown shops dressed up like Christmas packages, with red ribbons and bows across the windows?

Although they are almost overpowered by our super street lights, the little lighted Christmas trees on the lamp poles also add a decorative touch. Plaudits should go to the Chamber of Commerce and its willing and imaginative workers.

And a Happy New Year!

A revival in food gifts

Food gifts have experienced a revival in recent years. Like any gift, a gift of food will be more appreciated if it shows you put some special thought into it. A 70-year old grandmother or grandfather who finds it difficult to carry heavy canned goods might find a basket or box full of buffet-size cans of fruits and vegetables especially appealing. These small cans contain approximately one cup and are just right for the one-and two-person household. Tuck in some items you know he or she might like but would be unlikely to buy for themselves.

The mother of a former teenager recently recalled how she always put a jar of maraschino cherries in her son's Christmas stocking because he liked them so much. It was a special treat at Christmas that will likely remind him of his mother's thoughtfulness far longer than his yen for any food.

The right food gifts are especially appropriate for people who have special dietary problems. If you make them so much the better and do include the recipe. Sugarless jams and jellies, dill pickles or another sugarless pickle or relish is an ideal gifr for a diabetic. Dressing up the jar with a ruffled fabric cover may make the container as much a gift as the contents.

Baskets of fresh fruit are often given at holiday time – sometimes to the extent that much of it is wasted. To avoid this problem, include some dates, prunes, raisins and other dried fruits. The dried fruits will keep for months and will be a real treat in February or March.

A fruit basket does not have to be gigantic. A woven bread basket filled with several oranges, apples and bananas is very likely all a small family will consume with all the other goodies on hand at holiday time.

Another piece of kitchen equipment that makes a nice container for fresh fruit is a wire vegetable steamer. Fill it with fresh oranges and lemons. Stick in a couple wooden spoons, tie steamer handles together with a colorful fluffy bow.

Another record for a shutout

I'm one of those women who believe life will continue even if I don't know that quarterback Charlie Fuggs needs 14 passes to move ahead of the legendary Orlow Spitt who threw 6,442 completiohs for a combined yardage of 36,033 yards, 1,500 of them while wearing SuppHose.

Maybe it's not a complete full life, but I'm willing to make sacrifices. My husband is not.

He believes there has not been a prophet like Curt Gowdy since Moses and that when Curt announces someone has broken Johnny Unitas's record of 26 passes in a sudden-death playoff, there will be a flash of lightning and rain for 40 days and nights.

"Who cares?" I shouted back at the set.

"Shhh," he said motioning for silence.

"They could make up those statistics and..."

"'Will you knock it off,' said my husband. "Now I'll never know who holds the record for fumbles in the NFL during a nationally-televised game which was attended by a vice president."

"If you're so impressed by statistics," I said hysterically, "I'll give you some statistics. Did you know:

"The record for rushing is held by your son who has been the first one to answer the phone on the first ring for the last five years?

"Did you know that I lead the Domestic League in toilet tissue spindle changing? I have single-handedly changed the spindle 6,340 times and lead by 60 rolls the closest contender, Brenda Claptree, who signed on with the Hiltons?

"Are you remotely interested that a little know draft choice, who as a kid used to hang around the kitchen a lot and dream, now picks up 184 pairs of socks a day in her son's bedroom?

"Maybe you'd be interested in how many incomplete sentences I toss out a day that no one listens to or answers? Or how many times I've intercepted the car keys so we can use our own car once in awhile?

"You want color? I'll give you color. We have two brothers playing on the same team for dishes. I think if you'll check the record book you will find we have not had that kind of a relationship between siblings since Cain and Abel were a duo back in Genesis."

I looked at my husband. He hadn't heard a word I said. "Oh well, I just witnessed another record for a shut-out...eight months and four days.

Midge Costanza: A much smarter woman

My wife was telling what she had to do when she got married. She had to quit her job at Detroit Edison. No married women were allowed on the Edison payroll.

"I can't believe things were that bad," said a young woman listening to Pat's tale of discrimination. "Why did you put up with it?"

"It happened 30 years ago," Pat explained. "Women didn't complain about such things in those days. I'm ashamed to admit we just accepted that we were second-class citizens. Women today are much smarter."

This conversation was appropriate to the occasion. Around 180 women and 20 men were gathered at the Detroit Plaza Hotel to hear Midge Costanza give a speech. Ms. Costanza is one of those much smarter women.

She was the first woman to serve on the senior staff of a president of the United States. She was Jimmy Carter's assistant for public liaison for 20 months. Her job was to listen to people complain and then tell Carter what they were complaining about.

Ms. Costanza's career in Washington was short but colorful. Her witty irrevelence sometimes offended the natives. It's all right for presidential aides to crack wise if they are men. If they are women, they should shut up and be forever grateful they are no longer duty bound to serve the coffee.

When it came to wisecracks, Ms. Costanza didn't disappoint her Detroit audience. "Being here is the second most insignificant event in my life," she said. "The first most insignificant event was when Sen. Moynihan put his hand down the front of my dress. It was as insignificant for him as it was for me."

She insisted she didn't quit her Washington job because her office was moved into the White House basement. She said she and Carter still have the same goals but differ on methods and priorities. She still talks to the president regularly and admires him greatly, she said.

But Ms. Costanza couldn't resist adding: "I don't mind that Jimmy Carter is reborn. I just don't understand why he had to come back as himself."

Before she was the first woman on the president's senior staff, Ms. Costanza was the first woman elected to the City Council of Rochester, N.Y., and she was also the first woman to be vice-mayor of Rochester.

"People are always asking me how it feels to be the first woman this, and the first woman that," she said. "I tell them it's great to use the men's rest room but I still keep falling off the damn thing. I think the depth of my answer equals the depth of the question."

Getting serious, Ms. Costanza called Phyllis Schlafly "the world's greatest female impersonator...I'd like to make bookends out of her and Anita Bryant."

Ms. Costanza's message can be heard clearly through the laughs. She is saying it is outrageous that a woman should be regarded as no more than an appendage to a man, unable to get a credit card without passing a sperm test, and good for nothing more important than hanging around the supermarket, talking laundry soap with the rest of the girls.

There's been a little progress made since my wife was forced to quit her job. But there's so much more to be done. There should come a day when men no longer convene to decide whether a woman should or shouldn't have a baby. But this nation is still burdened with lawmakers who think they're liberal because they concede all women aren't born to be housewives – some of them are born to be typists.

Midge Costanza's speech was sponsored by Marygrove College and New Options, a placement and consulting firm for women and minorities. She was introduced by Geraldine Barrons, a New Option director. Mrs. Barron leads 2 lives, she is also Gerry O'Connor, rip-rousing singer at the Woodbridge Tavern in Detroit.

After the speech, back at the tavern, Gerry sang "I Am Woman." Dozens of women stood up to sing with her, loudly, even militantly. One of them was an ex-Edison employee, 30 years late, but catching up fast. Good for her.

'My Life' is reflection of 70's

My Life
Billy Joel
Joelsongs, 1978
Got a call from an old friend we used to be real close said he couldn't go on the American way closed the shop, sold the house bought a ticket to the West Coast
Now he gives them the stand up routine in L.A.
I don't need you to worry for me cause I'm all right
I don't want you to tell me
it's time to come home
I don't care what you say anymore
this is my life
go ahead with your own life
leave me alone
No one said you have to offer me a second chance
I never said I was a victim of curcumstance
I still belong
don't get me wrong
you can speak your own mind but not on my time
They would tell you you can't sleep alone in a strange place then they'll tell you
you can't sleep with somebody else
Ah but sooner or later you sleep in your own space either way it's okay you wake up with yourself
repeat chorus and end:
I don't care what you say anymore
this is my life
Go ahead with your own life
leave me alone.

Billy Joel has a new album out, nine weeks on the charts and climbing "52nd Street." I can't help remembering that it was about Christmas time last year when I got his "The Stranger LP", never realizing that "Just the Way You Are," the hit single on the same would be only one of five songs to make that album one of the best musical buys of the year."

Now a selection off his latest album release is No. 4 on the top 10 already. The song is "My Life," and although I'm not familiar with all the cuts on "52nd Street" it thematically paints a similar picture which was begun of Billy Joel in my mind last year: a bit of a cad, fed up with society and its institutions and spoon-fed advice. If the 50's produced songs depicting post-war and depression frivolity (How Much is That Doggie in the Window), and the 60's music coined the seriousness of the era-of-crisis (Bridge Over Troubled Waters), then perhaps it is possible to see a reflection of the 70's in a song like "My Life." Brothers and sisters, the age of the Personal Identity Crisis is at hand. We have little in the way of major cause: WORLD HUNGER, WAR, OVER-POPULATION. These are such intangible factors in our personal lives that the average middle class American has little recourse but to be introspective. And Billy Joel can sing that ballad as well, if not better, than any.

Recently an old friend who is just entering the "parent-of-the-teenager" passage of her life, and who has never been one to easily assume the role of the steadfastly passed on a bit of newfound wisdom. Maybe the advice is applicable to whomever it was that drove Billy Joel's friend over the brink be it wife, mother or lover.

A good listening technique for parents according to my friend, especially during those reactionary years, is to limit one's responses in the heat of discussion or controversy to five simple words. They are: Yes. No. Really? Wow! and Whatever. Sorry I can't footnote with references, but offhand, it sounds like some version of effectiveness training.

If five words sounds like a vocabulary handicap, and your tongue is bleeding just thinking about all that biting, it might not be a bad idea to read the newspaper, let a friend cry on your shoulder about problems he's having with his child, or sit in on a divorce proceeding. Parents, spouses and lovers drive their loved ones away or at least up a wall at an alarming rate. Statistics are available at our local department of social services to substantiate this point. The trick is: how to be loving and supportive and correctional if necessary without constantly interjecting ourselves and our own values onto the other. We all know how to put our foot into our month, but can we ever learn how to put our hand over that mouth at the right times?

Yes. It's theoretically a good idea. No. It wouldn't be easy. But, really, it could be a way to lend a loving ear without Wow! stifling the person in each other. Whatever. There might not be any harm in trying.

Meet Charlevoix

...Robert Sell

Robert Sell is director of Substance Abuse Services for District Health Department No. 3 covering Charlevoix, Antrim, and Emmet Counties. This week he tells the Courier about what the program offers and some plans for the future.

COURIER: What do you mean by "substance abuse"?

SELL: Abusive use of alcohol and or drugs, both prescription and street drugs, or licit and illicit drugs.

COURIER: What kind of services do you offer to persons with alcohol or drug problems?

SELL: We offer outpatient counseling services – group, individual, or family. Persons wanting such services should call me at 547-6523. We also get referrals from the schools, medical people, the clergy, the courts, and other agencies.

COURIER: How do you go about counseling?

SELL: At the first interview with the client, we gather initial information and decide if the client and counselor want to work together. If so, we set up regular meetings. At these meetings we identify what the counselor and client will work on. In alcoholism, the goal is sobriety. We encourage clients to seek support groups such as AA. Often we form our own support groups.

COURIER: Where do you go from there?

SELL: Also, in counseling sessions we work on personal problems resulting from the use of alcohol and or drugs. These problems may be family or job related or inter personal relationships. We try to find out how to deal with these problems. The focus is to help people rehabilitate themselves.

COURIER: What else?

SELL: Another part of our program is case finding. We go out and meet with groups such as medical, court, and education people and offer assistance in ways they can work with substance abuse and make referrals to agencies.

COURIER: What is the court referral program?

SELL: Judges have the option to divert users to programs dealing with drug and alcohol effects on the body – and self-awareness kind of thing. – "Do I have a problem, what can I do about it?" Sometimes we make recommendations back to the court concerning the clients and how best to handle them. We might recommend a group such as Parents Anonymous, Parents Without Partners, Overeaters Anonymous, Big Brothers / Big Sisters, or Alanon.

COURIER: What else do you do?

SELL: The third facet of our program is education and prevention. This is directed primarily to school age children and teachers, even down to the lower grades. The idea is for teachers to be comfortable with effective education, to know how to talk to kids about feelings, problem-solving, and self-awareness. Hopefully, if a person has skills in problem-solving and feels good about himself, he won't turn to substances as pacifiers. We also have workshops for other professionals such as doctors and nurses. We work with them in ways to better serve their clients or patients. Parent education is another facet. We have classes for them in Community schools, covering parenting skills – how to become comfortable using alternatives to physical punishment, how to use praise, how to move from the negative to positive. The biggest aspect is communication, how to keep communication open between parent and child.

COURIER: Do you have plans for anything new?

SELL: In the future, one of my goals is to form a Citizens Advisory Committee to the Substance Abuse Division. We need input from interested citizens concerning the use of drugs and alcohol. We would like to hear from people interested in serving on the committee. They may call me at 547-6523.

COURIER: What is your biggest problem right now?

SELL: Alcohol. We're moving through the poly-drug abuse situation – alcohol and other drugs. Anyone who wants to get marijuana knows how to get it. We're not seeing much use of hard drugs here. We're not getting as many overdose calls as we used to. The combination of alcohol and tranquilizers set up a high potential of danger. Alcohol and marijuana is more frequent.

COURIER: How is the Substance Abuse Services program set up?

SELL: We have offices in health department headquarters in three counties – Charlevoix, Antrim, and Emmet. We're funded by county allocated health dollars and state dollars through the office of Substance Abuse Services (known as OSAS). OSAS dollars are channeled through the Northern Regional Substance Abuse Coordinating. We also get some funds from United Way and from charges for counseling Agency (NRSACA) in Gaylord, which are on a sliding scale. The governing board for NRSACA is made up of representatives from the three counties. The reverend Milton Walls of Boyne City represents Charlevoix County, Willard Vander Ark represents Antrim County, and Dave Munger represents Emmet County.

COURIER: What is your budget?

SELL: Around $140,000. Our staff consists of Jan Elliot Biddick in Charlevoix, responsible for outpatient counseling, alcohol highway safety (court referral program), and prevention; Dick Phillips in Charlevoix, associated with the jail program and outpatient counseling, he has offices in the sheriff's building; Judy Baker in Antrim County; Worthy Trufant in Emmet County, responsible for counselor supervision, outpatient counseling, and consultation to other agencies; Robert O'Brien in Emmet County, primarily responsible for outpatient services and now doing most of the group counseling; and Jeanette O'Brien in Emmet County who works in education and prevention.

COURIER: Tell us something about yourself.

SELL: I grew up in Dayton and graduated from high school there. I did my undergraduate work at Bowling Green State University majoring in education and specializing in speech and hearing therapy. I earned my master's degree from Wright State University in mental health counseling. I also had further training in the drug and alcohol field at Adelphi University in Long Island, N.Y.

COURIER: How long have you been in this area?

SELL: A little over a year. I came from the Children's Mental Health Program in Xenia, Ohio. While there I was counselor and education specialist. Previous to that I was a teacher in drug education in the schools of Coldwater, Ohio. Before that I was speech and hearing therapist there.

COURIER: How did you become interested in drug and alcohol counseling?

SELL: While I was a teacher I became concerned about young people using drugs and alcohol. I joined a crisis hotline as a volunteer and decided to move into the field professionally. My concern was further generated by the fact that Patty and I have four children of our own. She is administrative assistant at CHIP Counseling Center.

COURIER: Where do you live?

SELL: In Charlevoix. Our four kids are Colleen, 13, Army, 12, Jennifer, 9, and Bobby eight.

COURIER: What do you do when you're not working?

SELL: This time of year, cross country ski with the family, and in the summer, sail. I also enjoy tennis.

COURIER: Do you have anything else to say?

SELL: Only that I would like to hear from people interested in drug and alcohol abuse. The Charlevoix number is 547-6523, and if I'm not there, I'll probably be in Petoskey at 347-3928.

Workers preparing Big Mac for 22nd winter

Since the end of last winter, maintenance crews on the Mackinac Bridge have been preparing the five-mile structure over the Mackinac Straits for another winter.

This will be Big Mac's 22nd winter.

The major chore on the bridge, the connecting link between Michigan's two peninsulas is painting. But the work required to maintain the mammoth, predominantly steel structure, includes much more.

This past summer, for instance, a pair of workmen began checking and tightening all the 20,000 bridge deck stringer bolts on the 19,205 foot span.

The project, one-fourth completed, will continue for the next three years, according to Orlando Doyle, chief engineer for the Mackinac Bridge Authority.

Necessary maintanance repairs were made on the road surface during the past construction season and it is ready for another winter.

"The best way to avoid major problems is to make sure routine maintenance procedures are carried out on schedule," said Lawrence A. Rubin, executive secretary of the authority.

Major maintenance work is completed between April 1 and Nov. 1. During that period, the bridge maintenance crew of 16 swells by 36 additional employees.

"Most of them are back year after year and have the experience needed to keep the bridge in top shape," Rubin said.

Maintenance workers have just finished a race against winter weather to convert heavy vehicles from summer to winter maintenance. From late April to late October this equipment is used to paint steel, repair concrete and asphalt, check mechanical bridge parts such as expansion joints and cable supports, and the entire bridge electrical system including deck and vital navigation beacons.

Compressors, sandblasters, paint sprayers and lifting booms must be removed from these heavy vehicles. They are then converted from flatbeds to dumptrucks and are equipped with snow plows and underbody scrapers. This transition is always nip and tuck because every effort is made to squeeze in the last possible item of summer maintenance before converting to winter chores.

Financial aid workshop

Any parent with a college or college-bound student is aware that the cost of higher education is increasing annually. For instance, in the last year the cost of attending a four year or community college in Michigan has gone up seven percent. For four year private colleges the cost has increased 17 percent, Charles Bentley, counselor at the Charlevoix High School, reports.

The complex and often frustrating process of applying for financial aid for post secondary education will be the topic of discussion at a financial aid workshop scheduled for Monday, Jan. 8, at the Charlevoix High School.

Cliff Denny, director of financial aid at North Central Michigan College, Gayle Karczynski and Bentley, counselors at the high school, will [illegible] financial aid at the workshop.

Each and every student who will be applying for financial aid for college and their parents are encouraged to attend the meeting, which has been scheduled for 7 p.m. Jan. 8 at the high school cafeteria. The cafeteria is in Building B and can be reached through the May Street entrance.

Board of Health to get new faces

The Board of Health for District Health Department No. 3 will have a couple new faces at their January meeting.

Charlevoix County Commissioners Martin Paul and Ralph Richardson will be replaced after losing their commission seats in the recent election.

Both men were honored recently for their dedication and service to the board. Paul has served on the board since 1975. He has been chairman of the board since 1976. Richardson served on the board this year.

Also, a public hearing regarding health priorities and basic health services will be held before the start of the next board meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 16. The meeting begins at 1:30 p.m. in Gaylord.

Anyone with questions regarding this hearing may contact their closest health department office in Bellaire, Charlevoix, Gaylord or Petoskey.

Rayders lose heartbreaker

The Charlevoix Rayders will try and regroup over the holiday before getting back into basketball action in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference.

After five games, the Rayders stand 1-4, which puts them in sixth place

Charlevoix had a chance to notch victory No. 2 and move up in the standings on Tuesday when they hosted St. Ignace. But a basket at the buzzer gave the visitors a 64-62 win.

St. Ignace led throughout the contest, grabbing a 16-11 first quarter advantage and then slipping into the lockerroom at halftime with a 30-27 lead. Charlevoix closed the margin to one point, 48-47, after three quarters and eventually pulled even, 62-62, before Larry Peters of St. Ignace unc- ked a shot at the buzzer to give the Saints the win.

The Rayders had three players in double figures. Pat Schmidt scored 19 points, Bob Plumin added 14 and Scott Morgan tossed in 10. Schmidt leads the Rayders in scoring this season with a 17.4 point per game average.

St. Ignace was paced by Grant Simmons who tallied 24 points. Kirk Wyers and Peters added 14 and 10 points, respectively. The Saints are 3-2 in conference play.

Fans were also treated to an exciting game in the junior varsity contest as Charlevoix claimed a 60-59 win.

The game was tied 44 all, going into the final eight minutes of action.

The Rayders were led by Jim Beaudoin with 12 points, Gary Drury and Jim Buchanan added 11 points each and Jeff Drury had 10.

Charlevoix also won the freshman contest, 60-45. Dave Buday had 17 points and Andy Schafer had 12 points for Charlevoix.

Grandma's remedy still good

Colds and other upper respiratory tract illnesses probably cause more discomfort and time lost from work or school than any other American health problem.

A cold is caused by one or more of many viruses, the American Medical Association reminds. Actually, grandma's remedy is still good. If you get a cold, stay home in bed. Keep warm. Gargle with warm salt water to ease a sore throat. Take a mild pain reliever for the discomfort.

None of this will cure the cold, but it will make you feel somewhat more comfortable while your body's natural defense mechanisms are building up enough steam to overcome the virus.

In some circles in recent years, massive doses of Vitamin C have been advanced as therapy or preventive for the cold. Physicians everywhere hoped it would work, but scientific studies thus far have failed to prove the usefulness of Vitamin C for colds.

Most of us have a cold or two during the course of the winter. Usually we try to keep going to the office, but sometimes we feel too bad to work, and spend a day or two at home.

There are medications now available — antihistamines, pain relievers, cough suppressants, and fever reducers — that can make the symptoms of a cold much less severe. These have their limitations and their problems. Antihistamines can cause drowsiness, which can be highly dangerous when driving an auto. If you get a cold, ask your doctor about the medications that reduce runny nose and sneezing and coughing.

As youngsters heard the old folks say, Treat a cold and cure it in two weeks, let it alone and it will go away in a fortnight. The time element isn't that exact, but the theory is the same.

Frostbite is hazard of winter

An ever present winter hazard in North America is frostbite.

Frostbite is, naturally, more of a problem in the northern states, but even in much of the South there are occasional nights cold enough to nip unprotected noses and cheeks.

Frostbite can be very painful, resulting in amputations, and can leave the victim hypersensitive to cold for the rest of his or her life.

In some ways the damage of frostbite is similar to a burn. First degree frostbite, like sunburn, is an injury to the surface skin. It is likely to attack ears, toes, fingers, cheeks or nose. Second degree frostbite produces blisters, as in second degree burns. In third degree frostbite the damage is deep and much of the frozen part may be lost.

The American Medical Association points out that prevention is the best protection against frostbite.

Prevention means being properly dressed in warm clothing, waterproof shoes, and heavy, dry socks, with good covering for head and ears. Keep clothing dry from both outside moisture and from perspiration, and avoid tight clothing or garters that may restrict circulation.

Motorists traveling across country in subfreezing weather are advised to have heavy clothing and shoes in the car, in the event of a breakdown and a necessary hike for help.

First signs of frostbite are a "pins and needles" prickly feeling, and then numbness. The affected part will turn white or grey and later red.

First aid possibilities are limited. Thawing of the tissue as soon as possible is the first consideration. This can best be accomplished by getting indoors into a warm room. Use warm water, not too hot. Treat the frozen part gently and do not rub or massage it. The old technique of rubbing snow or ice water on the frozen spot does more harm than good by delaying thawing.

'Take it easy' is shoveling rule

The winter snows are here again, and millions of householders are faced once more with clearing walks and driveways.

Snow shoveling requires a lot of energy and muscle. Pushing a stalled auto out of a drift is even more demanding.

Once again the American Medical Association reminds men of middle age and beyond, especially those who are overweight and lead sedentary lives, to take it easy in clearing away the snow from walks and drives.

If you're in good health, snow shoveling actually is good exercise — if you take it easy. This could mean getting up half an hour earlier in the morning of a fresh snow fall, to allow time for leisurely shoveling with frequent brief rest periods. The frantic, hurried approach to clearing the drive in an effort to get to work on time most definitely is not good for health.

Most common serious health result of overexertion from snow shoveling is a heart attack. If your heart is sound, it likely won't be damaged. But if you already are prone to a heart attack, the extra exertion can trigger it.

Unless you have had a recent checkup, however, you cannot be certain you aren't a likely candidate for heart trouble. Take it easy. Don't be ashamed to invest in a machine that blows or scrapes aside the snow, with a small engine substituting for muscle power. Or hire the neighborhood lad down the street to shovel your walks.

Snow shoveling can be good for you, if you use common sense. Exercise and fresh air in the winter are important to maintaining health. Just don't overdo it.

The first VISTA volunteers began work 15 years ago in the poorest and most isolated communities in the United Stated.

Volunteer ranks swelled from the strongly felt impulses of Americans to share with others their caring and their labor.

FAITH REVEALS THE GOOD THINGS ABOUT OUR YOUTH

Our most unfairly maligned age group is the one consisting of older children and teenagers. Because of the spectacular, headline-making antics of a very small minority, our young people are routinely suspected of everything from noise, insolent behavior and drug addiction to school vandalism and a willingness to knock an elderly woman to the ground for the few dollars in her handbag. In truth, the vast majority of our youth are friendly, respectful, enthusiastic, law-abiding, hardworking students; intent only on learning to make their way in the world and perhaps improving it in the process. If your training and influence have been reinforced by family attendance at the Church of your choice, then YOUR children undoubtedly belong to this praiseworthy majority.

The greatest reverence is due the young.
—Decimus Junius Juvenal
(circa 50-130 A.D.)

"Even a child is known by his doings, whether his work be pure, and whether it be right."

Cribbage tourney Jan. 4

The 49th annual Odd Fellows-Masons cribbage tournament will open at the American Legion post home at 8 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 4 Sims Baker, tournament secretary, has announced.

The tournament which is open to all cribbage players will be played on Thursday during the following weeks concluding on March 8 and will be held at alternate sites, the post home and the Masonic Temple with the first games to be played at the post home.

Captains for this year's play are Bruce Reinhart for the Odd Fellows and Gerald Johnson for the Masons. They became captains after receiving high point honors during the 1978 tournament.

At the conclusion of the tournament the winning group is entertained at a dinner hosted by the losing team. During the 48 years the tournament has been played, the I.O.O.F. has won 27 years and the Masons 21 years.

When the tournament was organized, the team captains were Joseph Williams of Round Lake Lodge No. 293, I.O.O.F. and Forrest Fowler Sr. of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282 F. & A.M. Ray Ashdon was the first secretary and served in the position for several years. He was succeeded by Sam Sorenson, Williams, Baker, A. D. Cunningham and, again, Baker.

During the past season, the Odd Fellows was the winning team.

Social Services has toll free number

Beginning Monday, Dec. 18, the Michigan Department of Social Services will provide a toll-free telephone number to the state agency designed to furnish general food stamp program information to the public.

The number to dial for this service is 1-800-292-5590. However, in Wayne County only the local number to dial is 256-3103. These numbers will be in service Monday through Friday of each week, except holidays, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Department officials emphasize that this service is intended to provide only general program information, such as basic eligibility requirements and what is needed to establish such eligibility by food stamp recipients.

County Bank promotes Foster and Brown

Gordon R. Wellman, president of Charlevoix County State Bank, has announced the promotions of Maurice J. Foster and LoAnne A. Brown.

Foster was named executive vice president. Foster, better known as "Morrie" to everyone in Northern Michigan, has held various positions with the bank for over 30 years. He attended Western Michigan University and graduated from the Michigan School of Banking. He is a U.S. Navy veteran, past president of Charlevoix Community Chest, past quartermaster of Veterans of Foreign Wars, and member of St. Mary's Church. Foster has four children, Robert residing in Florida, Susan residing in Traverse City, Mary residing in Colorado and Linda in Grand Rapids.

Ms. Brown was named to the position of vice president and cashier. Ms. Brown has been employed by the bank for 29 years. She is a graduate of Charlevoix High School and went on to graduate from the Michigan School of Banking at Northern Michigan University and the Graduate School of Banking at the University of Wisconsin. She has served as past president of the Charlevoix Community Chest, past director of the Chamber of Commerce, past president of the Northern Michigan Chapter B.A.I., past president of the Northern Michigan Chapter N.A.B.W., and has served on various committees of Michigan Bankers Association. Ms. Brown has three daughters, Marcia, Terri and Andrea residing in Grand Rapids.

The promotions were approved by the bank's Board of Directors Dec. 18.

Vet hospital approved by AAHA

The Charlevoix Veterinary Hospital, U.S. 31 South, has been reevaluated and remains an approved member hospital of the American Animal Hospital Association (AAHA).

All AAHA member hospitals must meet and maintain quality standards set by the association. The quality standards of member hospitals are routinely checked by a trained staff of field representatives who make in-hospital evaluations.

Headquartered in South Bend, Ind., AAHA has over 8,500 veterinary members who engage in companion pet or small animal practices. Over 3,000 veterinarians are either directors, co-directors or associates of 1,200 member hospitals. The remaining 5,500 belong to any one of six affiliate member classifications.

The prime objective of the association is to continually upgrade the quality of small animal medicine. In addition to establishing standards, AAHA provides long term programs of continuing education for its members.

The Charlevoix Veterinary Hospital has been a member hospital of the American Animal Hospital Association since 1975. Dr. David F. Norton is the director of the hospital. Also associated with the hospital is Dr. Mark A. Westenbroek.

Over 1,200 AAHA member hospitals in the United States and Canada are all subject to periodic on-site evaluation. In the state of Michigan over 168 veterinarians are associated with 60 AAHA member hospitals.

Health Department gets grant to research diabetes control

District Health Department No. 3 has received a grant of $38,983 from the Michigan Department of Public Health to conduct an "Applied Research Project" in the area of diabetes control.

The Health department will be employing a full time nutritionist who will provide nutritional consultation visits to diagnosed diabetics in the four county area served by the District Health Department. These visits will be followed by a community health aide who will assist the individual and his family (in adjusting to a prescribed diet) through the provision of basic instruction and assistance in food shopping and preparation. It is hoped that through these efforts the rate of hospitalization for the treatment of diabetes can be reduced. As part of the research effort the cost of the project will be closely compared to the costs of hospitalization that would have been expected without conducting such activities.

Diabetes is a chronic disease that has become a major cause, or contributing cause of disability and death and in this area ranks as the sixth or seventh leading cause of death. Between seven and 10 percent of the residents of this area over the age of 65 suffer from this disorder. In general it is a disease that is controllable through a combination of drug and dietary management. Available evidence indicates that inability to follow medically prescribed diets is the primary reason for poor control in most diabetics.

This project will function as part of the District Health Department No. 3 Home Health Care Program. Other services currently available through that program include skilled nursing visits, home health aide services, and physical and speech therapy services.

In conducting the project the health department will be working closely with area physicians, hospital dieticians, and North Central Michigan Health Systems Agency.

Hosts should give guests test before they leave New Year's party

Holiday party hosts who make their guests "sing" a sober tune before driving can help "Detect A Drunk" and keep those who overindulge in alcohol off Michigan roads this New Year's, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"We are advising persons serving alcohol over the holidays to test guests' driving capability before they leave New Year's parties," stated Auto Club General Manager James Moffat.

Through its "First A Friend, Then A Host" program, Auto Club is offering free "Detect-A-Drunk" information sheets through its 55 offices statewide. The sheets show hosts how to test for sobriety.

The "Detect-A-Drunk" sheet lists eight easy-to-do activities for sober participants, including "Three Coins on the Carpet," which requires picking up coins tossed on the floor, and the "Hokey Pokey," turning in a circle three times without staggering.

"Lock-Around the Clock" requires inserting a key in a door lock while "Stagger Line" consists of walking heel to toe in a straight line. The "ABCs of Love" demands reciting the alphabet, and, to "Stand Tall," one must stand erect and unsupported without weaving.

"Imbibers should take our "Detect-A-Drunk" test before leaving a party so they don't end up performing some of those same tasks at curbside for police," explained Moffat. He said the test was put together with the cooperation of the Dearborn Police Department.

"While Auto Club stresses no drinking for drivers, we realize that eight out of 10 motorists probably will have a social drink or two and then drive during the holidays," he added. "Our aim is to make drivers aware that moderation in alcohol use can help "Bring 'Em Back Alive!"

Alcohol was a known or suspected factor in nearly 70 percent of the 15 New Year's holiday fatalities.

"With the legal drinking age rising to 21 on Dec. 22, it is hoped that the lethal combination of drinking and driving will be greatly reduced over previous holidays for motorists under 21," Moffat said.

Auto Club statistics show that the most likely candidates for fatal traffic accidents this holiday are drivers 26 or younger who will drive after drinking.

Over the last New Year's holiday, 61 percent of the drivers involved in fatal traffic mishaps were 26 or younger even though that group makes up less than 30 percent of the Michigan driving population.

Darkness was another common factor, with all of the mishaps over New Year's occurring at night. Ninety five percent of the drivers involved were less than 25 miles from home during the two holiday periods.

Approximately 3.4 million cars will travel an estimated 575 million miles in Michigan over the 78-hour Christmas and New Year's holidays, which is about 20 percent below the mileage driven over normal summer holiday weekends.

The New Year's weekend starts at 6 p.m. Friday (Dec. 29) and runs through midnight Monday (Jan. 1).

Party hosts can be "First A Friend, Then A Host" this holiday season by following these simple Auto Club suggestions:

Keep ample supplies of soft drinks, coffee or tea, non-alcoholic punch and lots of food on hand for party guests.

As the hour becomes late, shut off all alcoholic beverages, and turn on a good supply of food and coffee.

Don't encourage guests to have "one for the road"...unless it is a non-alcoholic beverage. Make that last "belt" for a departing guest an automobile safety belt.

Plan other activities, such as playing party games to keep guests' thoughts off alcohol and on having fun.

Arrange transportation for drivers who fail "Detect-A-Drunk" tests.
